A major challenge before ACSWP is shared broadly with the Presbyterian Mission Agency social witness programs, including the Presbyterian United Nations and Washington Offices. This challenge is how to serve new generations of the church in faithful yet more innovative ways, not only with new technology, but with new ways of engaging young people. As examples, the ACSWP coordinator assisted interns in the Office of Public Witness and in Collegiate Ministries in adapting policy statements into educational materials for younger adults on voting rights (2016) and gun violence (2017). Especially as younger evangelicals have come to share many views of justice, particularly racial and environment justice, they welcome the Gospel that contains a social conscience.

The ACSWP recognizes the need of the church to develop new ways to witness to a younger generation. Many of these young people may have limited knowledge of the Bible and Christian faith, but they thirst for a deeper understanding of justice and love. The challenge is to communicate and sustain a church-wide conversation when relationships and programs have been weakened and memories and traditions lost. Fortunately, the General Assembly’s social witness agenda has been on target in many areas including environmental issues and green energy, peace affirmations, racial justice and greater economic equality. In each of these areas, the church has done its homework and ACSWP stands ready to help the church strengthen its voice and credibility among youth and young adults.

In addition to establishing the online journal which might be more widely read than a paper journal by young adults, a part-time staff position within ACSWP focuses on engaging youth and young adults in social witness policy. In addition to being the managing editor of Unbound, Henry Stone is the associate for young adult social witness. In this role he strives to strengthen the voice of congregants and ministers under forty years. Some of this work includes employing social media to link Unbound articles to electronic communications platforms used by younger individuals. Specifically, he uses Twitter and Facebook to make such linkages and he is an active participant in the Facebook support group, “Young PCUSA Leaders.”

A related challenge is to engage more fully with youth and young adults in the development of policy because of the unpaid time required to attend ACSWP meetings. Employment and family duties compete for volunteer time and energy. It has been easier to engage persons whose careers and families are at later stages and can allow the travel and meeting time necessary to fully participate in ACSWP meetings. While the engagement of a good number of youth and young adults in policy development remains an unmet challenge, it is one that will receive explicit attention in the new decade. The current youngest member of ACSWP will be one of the two ACSWP co-chairs beginning her term after the 223rd General Assembly (2018) and, as a visible young adult leader, she and the committee intend to further address this challenge.

VII. ACSWP Future Objectives

The ACSWP proposes to address the challenges described in Section VI by putting extra attention and energy toward achieving its full mandated mission. In a spirit of collegiality, the ACSWP has put its future objectives before the General Assembly as directions open to debate and, we hope, affirmation.

Endnotes

A. Fidelity to Mission and Partnership

1. Each committee or commission was created by the church and exists to serve and support the church’s mission in a particular area. Each committee or commission is expected to exhibit a constant faithfulness to and in fulfillment of its servant role in the life of the PC(USA).
2. The basic process of the committee or commission should demonstrate fidelity to the mission and accountability procedures set forth in its establishing deliverance, charter, or mandate from the assembly. The committee or commission should exhibit leadership in guiding the church in engagement with the work and resources in which the committee or commission acts.

3. The committee or commission should exhibit practical cooperation with the other agencies or committees of the church in areas of overlapping responsibility and opportunity.

4. The committee or commission should provide timely responses to directives and requests from the General Assembly.

B. Effectiveness of Services

The services of the committee or commission are consistent with its assembly or constitutional mandate.

1. The committee or commission has a defined and consistent process for completing its work.
2. The committee or commission has a regular process of self-evaluation of its services.
3. The committee or commission employs a strategy for effective communication with the church-at-large.
4. The committee or commission utilizes current and emerging technologies to enable it to fulfill its mission.

5. The committee or commission has developed a vision and plans for its work in light of its historic mandate and the emerging issues before and context of the PC(USA).

Item 11-20

[The assembly approved Item 11-20 as amended. See pp. 13, 63.]

Commissioners’ Resolution. On Church Support in Response to Support of Suicide Prevention Efforts.

The 223rd General Assembly (2018) recommends that PC(USA) congregations take action as follows to engage in the work of suicide prevention:

1. Encourage the leadership of each congregation to acknowledge the challenges caused by suicide deaths by addressing them in prayers, sermons, educational events, and conversations.
2. Provide support for those who are suicidal or have attempted suicide.

3. Engage families of those who have lost loved ones to suicide, responding faithfully to the impact of grief, loss, stigma, and isolation, all of which burden suicide survivors (those who have lost family, friends, or other loved ones to suicide).

4. Acknowledge the church’s role in contributing to the stigma and silence that envelops the topic of suicide.

5. Recognize and share the Gospel message of life, hope, and resurrection [as an antidote to] [in relation to] suicide, [in coordination with professional and medical assistance].

6. Learn how to recognize signs of suicidal intention and know local treatment and prevention services as well as how to make a referral.

7. Participate in events like National Suicide Prevention Month in September,1 the International Survivors of Suicide Loss Day in November,2 and the Faith Communities events of the National Action Alliance for Suicide Prevention.3

8. Encourage church members to participate in training such as Mental Health First Aid, Applied Suicide Intervention Skills Training (ASIST), and Soul Shop training for faith leaders.

9. Create partnerships with government agencies, legislators, law enforcement, schools, funeral homes, and national and local suicide prevention organizations to provide practical and spiritual help for individuals and families coping with mental health disorders and with loss to suicide.

10. Host Suicide Survivors groups, suicide prevention trainings, and participating in community awareness of suicide loss and prevention.

[11. Direct the General Assembly to publish the list of resources found in the rationale in all online denominational resources to congregations.]

Rationale

Recent well-publicized celebrity deaths by suicide have focused national attention on the alarming increase in suicide rates in the United States.4 Suicide is the tenth leading cause of death in the U.S. Each year nearly 45,000 Americans die by suicide, and for every death, twenty-five attempts are made.5

It is estimated that 90 percent of suicides are related to undiagnosed and/or untreated mental illness, such as depression and bipolar disorder.6 Many individuals suffering from such illness do not seek treatment, either because they or their loved ones do not recognize the symptoms, do not know where to seek help, or are deterred from seeking help by the stigma associated with mental illness and suicide.7

Suicide, as a life-and-death matter which on its face contradicts the natural human instinct for self-preservation and seems to violate the biblical injunction to “choose life!”8 is a natural topic for the church to address. For hundreds of years, and often still today, believers have understood the church’s teaching to be that suicide was a sin and that those who died by suicide would face eternity in hell.9 It has not been unusual for families of those who have died by suicide to be refused church funerals or gravesites. However, “faith communities are a natural setting for suicide prevention. Spiritual beliefs and practices tend to help people experience greater hope and meaning in their lives. Faith communities can also provide opportunities for developing positive relationships with others and can be an important source of support during difficult times.”10

As a significant presence in the community, and one to which people turn for guidance in matters of life and death, the church bears a responsibility to contribute to initiate open and frank discussion and education about suicide prevention. It is imperative that we become knowledgeable and at ease in discussing this challenging topic that brings devastation to so many individuals and families.

Endnotes

Advice and Council on Item 11-20—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 11-20.

Deaths by suicide have dramatically increased in our society and all Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) congregations are affected directly or indirectly. Item 11-20 requests that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) encourage the leadership of all congregations to openly and compassionately acknowledge the challenges caused by deaths by suicide.

Furthermore, it stipulates that congregations take action by engaging in the work of suicide prevention (e.g. education, individual and family support, training, referrals, etc.). This faith-based work is to be done both at the congregational level and in partnership with others in the community.

It is important to note that Item 11-20 is in tandem with Item 10-11, which requests that the General Assembly revisit and update “Comfort My People: A Policy on Serious Mental Illness,” approved by the 218th General Assembly (2008) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

Advice and Council on Item 11-20—From the Advocacy Committee for Women’s Concerns (ACWC).

The Advocacy Committee for Women’s Concerns advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 11-20.

The ACWC strongly advocates for the work of suicide prevention, mental illness awareness and healthcare, suicide ideation education, as well as grief and guilt support for family members who have lost loved ones due to death by suicide completion.

Completed suicide is a significant cause of death in the United States for men/boys and women/girls. When considered through the lens of women’s concerns, however, it is important to look at the rising statistics of suicide-related deaths among women:

National Public Radio recently reported that over the past two decades, “the number of people dying by suicide in the U.S. has risen by about 30 percent. And, while the majority of suicide-related deaths are among boys and men, a study published June 14, 2018, by the National Center for Health Statistics finds that the number of girls and women taking their own lives is rising.” Dr. Holly Hedegaard, a medical epidemiologist at the NCHS noted, “From 2000 to 2016 death by suicide increased by 21% for boys and men, compared with 50% for girls and women. The biggest change is among women in late middle age, with an increase of 60%.” Middle age women are often caught in the “sandwich generation”—both caring for children at home, as well as their aged parents. [Likewise for] women leading single-parent households. Women may not have time to take care of themselves, be kind to themselves, or get the social support they need. These can be factors in stress, and stress is a known cause of anxiety and depression, which both are known factors of suicide ideation, as well as death by completed suicide. But, as Jill Harkavy-Friedman, vice president of research at the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention articulates, “Suicide is a public health concern. The statistics published 6/14/18 underscore the need for a national prevention effort.”

Understanding the increase in suicide-related deaths among women, as well as understanding how women and families are affected when a loved one dies from completed suicide, clearly brings into view the need the PC(USA) to engage in the work of suicide prevention.

Therefore, the Advocacy Committee for Women’s Concerns advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 11-20.

Commissioners’ Resolution. Responding to People Impacted by Opioids and Other Addictive Substances.

The 223rd General Assembly (2018) recommends that PC(USA) congregations take [action as follows] [the following actions, as appropriate] to address the impact the opioid crisis and other substance use disorders have on our churches and communities:

1. Encourage the leadership of each congregation to acknowledge the challenges caused by the opioid epidemic and other substance use disorders by addressing it in prayers, sermons, educational events, and conversations.

2. Engage people with substance use disorders in ways that hold them accountable with compassion and grace.

3. Engage families of those with substance use disorders, responding faithfully to the impact of grief, loss, financial strain, and other factors that addiction has on families.

4. Recognize and share the Gospel message that is inherent in stories of recovery.

5. Engage in practices that reflect the radical hospitality of Christ in the spirit of the Good Samaritan parable, including offering space for healing for recovery groups, transportation to services, and connections to people in the community.

6. [Learn how to recognize signs of addiction and knowing local treatment and prevention services as well as how to make a referral] [Partner with local treatment and prevention services for ongoing referral and training on how to recognize signs of addiction.]

7. Celebrate hope in Christ and affirm that recovery is possible.

8. Participating in events like National Prevention Week in May and National Recovery Month in September.

9. Train on the use of Naloxone (Narcan) and make it available in the church building for emergencies.

10. Create partnerships with nonprofits, government agencies, law enforcement, and funeral homes to provide practical and spiritual help for individuals and families coping with substance use disorders.

11. Host NA, AA, or [Nar-Anon Al-Anon, or other faith-based recovery groups] [other spiritual recovery programs].

12. Host Nar-Anon or Al-Anon spiritual recovery programs for those affected by the disease of addiction for families and friends.

13. Partner with local jails and recovery home operators to offer opportunities for spiritual and social connection after release for people recovering from a substance use disorder.

Rationale

“On average, 115 Americans die every day from an opioid overdose. In 2016, over 11 million Americans misused prescription opioids, nearly one million used heroin, and 2.1 million had an opioid-use disorder due to prescription opioids or heroin.”—Opioid Epidemic Practical Toolkit, Dept. of Health and Human Services

Individuals and families with substance use disorders often live in fear and shame. They are afraid to confess that they or their loved ones are suffering because, as one PC(USA) pastor in recovery said, “Silence is the price we pay for admission to church.”

As the church and followers of Jesus Christ we are called to have a prophetic voice in our communities and speak out with authority and boldness to the tragedies around us, including opioid abuse and other substance use disorders.

The problems aren’t limited to just the drug user; families are impacted as well. Jobs are lost when crisis after crisis with a child or spouse prevents work. Savings are depleted getting a loved one rehabilitative help, often multiple times. Wallets are emptied of their cash, checks are forged, and valuable household items are sold as those with a substance use disorder steal to feed their addiction.
The good news is that churches offer the key elements that are vital in preventing, dealing with, and recovering from a substance use disorder. Churches offer a connection to God, a supportive community, and opportunity for strong personal relationships. We believe Christ calls us to offer healing for those suffering from substance use disorders.

Opioid and other substance use disorders are present where we are:

The top ten states with highest overdose deaths in 2016: Florida, California, Pennsylvania, Ohio, New York, Texas, Illinois, Michigan, Maine, New Jersey.iii

Top ten states with the most Presbyterians (current): Pennsylvania, North Carolina, California New York, Virginia, Texas, Florida, Ohio, New Jersey, Illinois.iv

Additionally, in 2016, the five states with the highest rates of death due to drug overdose were West Virginia (52.0 per 100,000), Ohio (39.1 per 100,000), New Hampshire (39.0 per 100,000), Pennsylvania (37.9 per 100,000), and Kentucky (33.5 per 100,000).v Some of these states have high rates of PC(USA) membership.

Note: This resolution seeks to address people-centered actions of the church rather than policies as set forth in Item 11-08, A Report with Recommendations on Drug Policy: Putting Healing Before Punishment—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy.

ACSWP ADVICE AND COUNSEL ON ITEM 11-21

Advice and Council on Item 11-21—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 11-21.

Item 11-21 proposes increased congregational attention and primarily “recovery” (or 12-step program)-related actions to respond to opioid abuse and other substance use disorders.

As the proponents note, Item 11-21 complements the proposed Item 11-08, From Punishment to Healing, developed to address drug issues in terms of public health, harm reduction, criminal justice system reform, and matters of de-criminalization or legal regulation. That report does include practical and personal actions, including the recommendation that each presbytery to have facilitators “visit congregations in their presbyteries to support their deeper reflection, learning, and engagement” through education, community service, advocacy, etc. Item 11-21 adds several elements not in Item 11-08, such as encouraging congregations themselves to purchase Naloxone to treat overdose victims, ideally by members trained to administer emergency injections.

This resolution is online with the core values of ACREC including

1. advocating for the healing and the protection of the most vulnerable;
2. People take drugs and fall into gambling and other forms of addiction as they try to escape forms of social ills such as injustices and oppression that affect mostly people of colors; and

3. Our commitment to ministries of healing and restoration.

Advice and Council on Item 11-21—From the Advocacy Committee for Women’s Concerns (ACWC).

The Advocacy Committee for Women’s Concerns advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 11-21.

While Item 11-08 addresses drug policies, this overture addresses actions that can be done at the congregational level to inform, educate, and talk about the opioid crisis in the country that is affecting the lives of most every person, as the degree of separation between the person suffering with this terrible addiction and ourselves is minimal for each one of us.

From the perspective of the concerns of women, it is noted that, according to the American Medical Association, “Women bear greater burden of opioid epidemic. According to the Center for Disease Control, between 1990 and 2000, overdose death from prescription pain killers (opioids) increased 265% in men, and 400% in women. The American Journal of Public Health cited in a 2010 study that ‘women can become dependent when using smaller amounts of drugs for a shorter period of time.’ Dr. Melinda Campopiano, medical officer with the Department of Health and Human Services’ Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration said, ‘The importance of gender with regard to substance-use disorders has gained increasing attention as evidence highlights significant gender differences in prevalence rates, health service utilization, treatment outcome, and physiological consequences of alcohol and drug consumption. In general, the data suggest that women progress from use to dependence more quickly than men, suffer more severe emotional and physical consequences of drug use as compared to men, yet underutilized treatment. Furthermore, significant gender differences in psychiatric comorbidity were revealed with women in the study more likely to have reported past or current psychiatric disorders, including significantly higher rates of depression and anxiety.’

With these known factors, the Advocacy Committee for Women’s Concerns advocates for all aspects of this overture, and advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 11-21.

Commissioners’ Resolution. On Advocating for the Citizens of Puerto Rico.

The 223rd General Assembly (2018) directs that the PC(USA):

1. Engage in direct advocacy with the Executive and Legislative branches of the U.S. Government against the unjustified additional tax burden imposed to the U.S. citizen residents of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico by Public Law No. 115-971 (Tax Bill) of December 22, 2017.

2. Develop, publish, promote, and distribute among the denomination a series of Bible studies, sermon series, and any additional educational material to promote an educated discussion of the causes and effects of modern colonialism and the systematic economic and financial genocide.

[4. Direct the Presbyterian Mission Agency, through its Office of Public Witness, to advocate for the U.S. Government to repeal the provisions in the Jones Act that limit Puerto Rico’s imports to using U.S.-owned shipping companies, a requirement that has substantially hindered its recovery from the 2017 hurricanes and its economic growth more generally.]

[5. Direct the Presbyterian Mission Agency, through its Office of Public Witness, to advocate for the U.S. Government to conduct another rescheduling of Puerto Rico’s debt obligations, given the way that, since the previous rescheduling, the hurricanes (and the insufficient support for recovery) have greatly reduced the island’s fiscal capacity to service its debt.]

[Financial Implications: PMA $4,500]
The Island of Puerto Rico became a U.S. territory in 1898. The residents of Puerto Rico received U.S. citizenship in the year 1917. However, after 100 years of citizenship, those that reside in the island are treated as second-class citizens by the U.S. Government. In some cases, the law gives equal rights and responsibilities to the U.S. residents of Puerto Rico, while in other cases, such as U.S. Public Law 115-97, the law creates additional impositions, tax burdens, and disadvantages.

The elimination of the U.S. Tax Code Section 936, which promoted manufacturing employment during the 1980s, forced several manufacturing and service companies to relocate from Puerto Rico. This change to the U.S. Tax Code reduced drastically the employment availability and, therefore, the governments operational income. The U.S. Congress allowed Puerto Rico to issue municipal bonds to replace the lost taxes under the new IRS Code guidance.

The issue of municipal bonds was basically the only available source of operational income for the local government as the same U.S. Tax Code limited access to new business endeavors and new jobs, leaving Puerto Rico with a $76 billion bond debt, more than twenty years of economic depression, and a decreasing population.

Starting in 2016, the Government of Puerto Rico and all public service corporations have been operating under Public Law No. 114-187, named Puerto Rico Oversight, Management and Economic Stability Act (PROMESA). PROMESA imposes a congregational oversight control board over the Puerto Rico democratically elected and appointed officials. The oversight board has the inherent power given by Congress to amend the local budget and to influence the operations of all branches and agencies of the government, thereby limiting the fiscal power of the governor and legislature of the Government of Puerto Rico financially. The board answers only and directly to the U.S. Congress.

In September 2017, Hurricanes Irma and Maria devastated Puerto Rico. The already fragile infrastructure was destroyed. The supplies chain from the U.S. to Puerto Rico, which by the Jones Act of 1920 prohibits foreign vessels to transport goods and supplies into Puerto Rico, became nonoperational, limiting the few recovery efforts taking place. Today, Puerto Rico is still recovering from the devastation left by the hurricanes. More than 10 percent of the residents are still without electric power or running water. More than 60 percent of traffic lights are nonoperational or do not exist any longer. The supply chain is not fully functional, limiting the availability of food, supplies, and goods.

The Base Erosion provision of Public Law No. 115-97 adds an additional tax burden to the residents of Puerto Rico. The law declares that all products, goods, or services manufactured or developed in Puerto Rico are to be considered as from foreign sources. Therefore, an additional 20 percent tax is imposed on those goods when transferred in the economy. This additional tax burden imposed by the second-class-citizen treatment of the residents of Puerto Rico directly affects the recovery efforts, promotes additional departures of manufacturing companies, and motivates the residents to continue the migration to the fifty states.

We are called by God to preach with a prophetic voice, to announce and denounce against injustice and oppression. The Scots Confession declares that “The Works Which Are Counted Good Before God includes: “To honor father, mother, princes, rulers, and superior powers; to love them, to support them, to obey their orders if they are not contrary to the commands of God, to save the lives of the innocent, to repress tyranny, to defend the oppressed, to keep our bodies clean and holy, to live in soberness and temperance, to deal justly with all men in word and deed, and, finally, to repress any desire to harm our neighbor, are the good works of the second kind, and these are most pleasing and acceptable to God as he has commanded him himself. ...”

Our Lord Jesus Christ said: “He has sent me to proclaim liberty to the captives and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty those who are oppressed.” Puerto Rico has been oppressed for more than 120 years under a text book example of modern colonialism oppression directed by the U.S. Government. We, faithful servants of the Lord, are called to stop such oppression.

Therefore, the PC(USA) is called to raise a prophetic voice against the systematic economic genocide, oppression, and colonialism of the U.S. Government against Puerto Rico and its residents; and to educate its members in the causes and actions that create the devastating effects of a systemic economic genocide and colonialism of the oppressed.

ACSWP ADVICE AND COUNSEL ON ITEM 11-22

Advice and Council on Item 11-22—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises approval of Item 11-22 with amendment as follows:

“4. Direct the Presbyterian Mission Agency, through its Office of Public Witness, to advocate for the U.S. Government to repeal the provisions in the Jones Act that limit Puerto Rico’s imports to using U.S.-owned shipping companies, a requirement that has substantially hindered its recovery from the 2017 hurricanes and its economic growth more generally.

“5. Direct the Presbyterian Mission Agency, through its Office of Public Witness, to advocate for the U.S. Government to conduct another rescheduling of Puerto Rico’s debt obligations, given the way that, since the previous rescheduling, the hurricanes (and the insufficient support for recovery) have greatly reduced the island’s fiscal capacity to service its debt.”

The rationale section of Item 11-22 already discusses the problem with the Jones Act.

The fact that Puerto Rico is not a state means that its debt is not sovereign, like that of states. States can use the possibility of default to improve their bargaining position with creditors, which Puerto Rico cannot.

Since the 222nd General Assembly (2016), when we last addressed the matter of Puerto Rico’s debt, the danger of a fiscal death spiral has greatly increased, as the added taxes to service debt discourage investment and increase out migration to the mainland U.S.

ACREC ADVICE AND COUNSEL ON ITEM 11-22

Advice and Council on Item 11-22—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC).

The United States of America continues to keep colonialism alive, specifically in relation to the Island of Puerto Rico, even though its inhabitants are U.S. citizens.

We agree that the treatment of Puerto Rico by the U.S. Government after Hurricanes Irma and Maria, borders on intentional systemic racism or even genocide.

Many in the island still lack basic necessities such as electricity and potable water. The death toll has risen dramatically in the aftermath of the hurricanes.

Puerto Rico and its citizens should be treated fairly.

Item 11-23

[The assembly disapproved Item 11-23. See pp. 56, 64]

That the 223rd General Assembly (2018) do the following:

1. Direct the Co-Moderators of the General Assembly, in consultation with the Office of the Stated Clerk and the General Assembly Committee on Representation, to appoint a PC(USA) Emerging Technologies Commission (ETC) of no less than eight and no more than twelve elders and ministers to review the current issues surrounding the potential forthcoming international automation crisis and other pertinent disruptive technologies that have the potential to radically impact society, the church universal, and the PC(USA), specifically in the next fifteen years. The ETC will accomplish this by identifying the adaptive and technical challenges surrounding mass automation and pertinent potential disruptive technologies in consultation with companies, nonprofit organizations, and academic institutions dealing specifically with issues of automation and emerging technology. The ETC will work toward receiving feedback/input from the leadership of churches, presbyteries, synods, and the Office of the General Assembly in order to develop recommendations for appropriate future action.

2. Direct the ETC to make a final report of their work, along with recommendations and suggestions for action, to the 224th General Assembly (2020). If the work requires more time, the team is directed to report to 225th General Assembly (2022), with an interim report to the 224th General Assembly (2020).
Present Situation

In 2013, an Oxford Study indicated that up to one-half of all jobs in the United States are at risk of being fully automated in the next twenty years. More recently, the McKinsey Global Institute posited a lesser number; that up to one-fifth of the global workforce will be affected by 2030. That study suggests that up to one-third of the workforce in richer nations like the United States and Germany will be replaced.

The Church & Society Is Ill Prepared

Even if the percentage only ends up being 12 percent to 22 percent in the U.S., as the McKinsey report suggests, such unemployment rates would be the greatest percentage of job loss in the United States since the Great Depression. In those years, 25 percent of all Americans were out of work. The Great Depression lasted a decade and the unemployment rate in America didn’t drop below 10 percent until after the U.S. entered the Second World War and began mass military production, reinvigorating the economy.

A modern loss of jobs of this magnitude would likely shake the foundations of society creating new levels of unimagined poverty, increased income inequality between the rich and the poor, and heightened racial and ethnic divisions. Other emerging technologies in development, such as biomedical enhancement technologies, advanced Artificial Intelligence, mixed reality platforms, and emerging digital technologies, also have the potential to have quickly developing repercussions on humanity and the cosmos in next decade.

The Opportunity

Technology is exponentially developing at rates faster than ever before in history. The PC(USA) has a unique opportunity to consider the advancing technological situation in order to preemptively develop ministry plans in preparation for the coming challenges of automation and other disruptive technologies. Developing effective contextual ministry plans to address such issues has the potential to avoid catastrophic social suffering and unrest, maintain peace, and create greater levels of social unity & equity while simultaneously helping the church to garner unprecedented social relevance.

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises approval of Item 11-23 as amended below: [Text to be deleted is shown with brackets and with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown with brackets and with an underline.]

1. Direct the [Co-Moderators of the General Assembly, in consultation with the Office of the Stated Clerk and the General Assembly Committee on Representation, to appoint a PC(USA) Emerging Technologies Commission (ETC) of no less than eight and no more than twelve elders and ministers] [Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy to consult with the resolution proponents, with the Presbyterian Association on Science, Technology, and the Christian Faith, and with the Social Ethics Network of Presbyterian ethicists and theologians, on a prospectus and potential consultant researchers] to review the current issues surrounding the potential forthcoming international automation crisis and other pertinent disruptive technologies that have the potential to radically impact society, the church universal, and the PC(USA), specifically in the next fifteen years. [The ETC] [The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP), with appropriate technical volunteers and consultants,] will accomplish this by identifying the adaptive and technical challenges surrounding mass automation and pertinent potential disruptive technologies in consultation with companies, nonprofit organizations, and academic institutions dealing specifically with issues of automation and emerging technology. The [ETC] [Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP)] will work toward receiving feedback/input from the leadership of churches, presbyteries, synods, and the Office of the General Assembly in order to [develop recommendations for appropriate future action.]

2. Direct the ETC to] make a final report of their work, along with recommendations and suggestions for action, to the 224th General Assembly (2020). If the work requires more time, the team is directed to report to 225th General Assembly (2022), with an interim report to the 224th General Assembly (2020).”

Item 11-23 raises important concerns that the church must address. However, having just completed a report on the Precautionary Principle (Item 08-07) that originated in a similarly broad overture, it recommends that the General Assembly should direct that these concerns be addressed through existing church structures and organizations instead of appointing a new and separate “commission” (properly a “committee”). We recognize that the 1993 guidelines for social witness policy require those proposing social policy development to consult with the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy and thus may appear self-serving, but our advice is in fact to gauge interest in this project and to respect current resource limitations.

The automation of work raises important questions about the meaning and place of work in human life, inequality, and the character of the social contract. We only need to consider the disruption and violence caused by the first industrial revolution to imagine the disruption that further automation, artificial intelligence, and machine learning may bring. Within the United States the first industrial revolution displaced workers, generated divisions between capital and labor, contributed to inequality, inspired some sabotage, stirred labor and political movements, remade city, congregational, and family life, and led to a renegotiation of the social contract (much of which happened during the New Deal). We do not yet see the transformation what current technological advances will mean, yet it is important for the church to think theologically and practically to anticipate possible changes and clarify what doctrines such as vocation, covenant sin, etc., may mean in the developing context. These changes were addressed in a regular set of church reports and statements, notably in the original 1908 “Social Creed of the Churches,” and including major reports on labor and work in 1944 and 1996.

Technically the General Assembly would not appoint a “commission” (which would have special authority to act on behalf of the assembly), but a committee or task force. In this case, we are aware of networks of Presbyterians with scientific, technological backgrounds and interests in this area. The possible costs of consultants and researchers would be considerably less than the proposed commission, though forming a reference group of volunteers would still require some funds.

Commissioners’ Resolution. On the Degradation of Civil Discourse.

That the 223rd General Assembly (2018) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)

1. Expresses to the world its dismay and concern at the degradation of civil discourse, the system of checks and balances, and other practices typical of a representative democracy.

2. Urges sessions to lead their congregations in regular prayer, study, and discernment as to God’s will.

3. Directs the Stated Clerk to collaborate with ecumenical and interfaith partners to communicate directly and individually via the appropriate media our dismay and concern to the President and Vice-President of the United States of America, each member of the United States Congress currently in session, and each member to serve in the Congress that will convene in January 2019, governors of states, leaders of state legislative bodies from at least two political parties, and local government executives, and urge them to speak out about similar concerns regarding the function of representative democracies in the United States of America; and urge them to protect the freedoms inherent to representative democracies.

4. Directs the Stated Clerk to notify leaders of other branches of the church and other faiths, and to communicate directly and individually via the appropriate media our dismay and concern to the President and Vice-President of the United States of America, each member of the United States Congress currently in session, and each member to serve in the Congress that will convene in January 2019, governors of states, leaders of state legislative bodies from at least two political parties, and local government executives, and urge them to speak out about similar concerns regarding the function of representative democracies in the United States of America; and urge them to protect the freedoms inherent to representative democracies.

Rationale

We as Presbyterians share a common heritage with the social contract known as representative democracy.

We as Presbyterians value that heritage as a gift and calling of God to a form of service and abundant life in our society, following teachings of John Calvin and John Knox, among others.

We value the gift of civil discourse as part of that heritage and of our belief that we are created as children of God.

A sentiment that does not adequately value that heritage and distorts the gifts and values of civil discourse in a representative democracy appears to be growing in the United States of America.

Remembering the writings of Martin Niemöller, it is the time to speak up.
Advice and Council on Item 11-24—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises the 223rd General Assembly (2018) to approve Item 11-24.

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) supports this resolution endorsing civil discourse and the checks and balances in our governments at all levels.

The title and text could use some editing to clarify the distinctions between “discourse” and “discord.”

Advice and Council on Item 11-24—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC).

This resolution affirms the prophetic foundation of the PC(USA) of speaking truth to power and is aligned with the core values of our Christian beliefs.

This resolution supports the work of ACREC as it advocates for the church to speak out and act on issues negatively affecting people in church and society. Nonviolent civil discourse has long been a method of oppressed and marginalized people to achieve civil rights, racial justice, economic justice, environmental justice, housing, and education disparities.

ACREC believes a lack of action by the PC(USA) will directly and negatively impact the ability of the church to realize living in a beloved community.

Reconstituting the Racism Truth and Reconciliation Commission—From T. Denise Anderson and Jan Edmiston, Co-Moderators of the 222nd General Assembly (2016) and Byron Wade, Vice-Moderator of the 218th General Assembly (2008).

That the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve reconstituting the Racism Truth and Reconciliation Commission as the Special Committee on Racism Truth and Reconciliation and

- that the Special Committee on Racism Truth and Reconciliation be composed of fourteen members;
- that no less than four members of the special committee be persons of color; and
- that the special committee hold its first meeting no later than September 30, 2018, bring a progress report to the 224th General Assembly (2020), and a final report and recommendations to the 225th General Assembly (2022).

Rationale

These recommendations are in response to the following referral: 2016 Referral: Item 11-12. On the PC(USA) Continuing Its Efforts to Dismantle Racism within Our Denomination and the Larger Society—From the Presbytery of Baltimore (Minutes, 2016, Part I, pp. 46, 56, 719).

The Co-Moderators, working in consultation with the General Assembly Nominating Committee, appointed former General Assembly Vice Moderator Byron Wade as the chair and sought to fill out the membership of the commission as directed by the 222nd General Assembly (2016). After months of work, the Co-Moderators, along with the General Assembly Nominating Committee (GANC) and Commission Chair Byron Wade, came to the conclusion that the assembly might be better served if the composition of the commission was changed.

Since the commission’s sole responsibilities were to conduct a listening campaign and submit recommendations to the assembly, we feel it does not need to be a commission as it has no charge to make any structural changes. We feel that having this be a committee with fewer people would not only be a more appropriate form for this group, but would also be easier to appoint since it does not have the same ruling elder/teaching elder ratio requirements.
The original requirement that 75 percent of the commission be comprised of people of color, while commendable, is inordinately cumbersome to people of color and places the burden of this important work on them. The 222nd General Assembly (2016) Co-Moderators and the Vice Moderator of the 218th General Assembly (2014) ran into numerous issues appointing this commission. Gifted and willing candidates of color were already serving elsewhere, the pool is relatively small in a nearly 90 percent white denomination, and others were simply unwilling because they are tired of being expected to do the antiracism work of the church. Out of respect for the energies of those who may be called to serve in this capacity, we ask that the burden be shifted.

Item 11-Info

A. Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Agency Summary

The committee is composed of twelve regular members representing African Americans, Native Americans, Latina/o Americans, Asian Americans, Middle Eastern Americans, and European Americans.

The 2016–18 membership of the committee is as follows:

Buddy Monahan, chairperson; Native American Consulting Committee representative, corresponding member to the Presbyterian Mission Agency Board and the General Assembly;

Tom Priest, vice-chair, National Black Presbyterian Caucus representative;

Nahida Halaby Gordon, chair of Resource and Referral Subcommittee, Middle Eastern American, at-large, liaison to the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP);

Victor Adventius Hamel, chair of Study and Comment Subcommittee, National Asian Presbyterian Caucus representative;

Tony Aja, National Hispanic/Latino/a Presbyterian Caucus representative;

Holly Haile Davis, Native American, at-large;

Raafat Girgis, National Middle Eastern Presbyterian Caucus representative;

Michelle Hwang, Asian American, at-large;

Gwendolyn Magby, African American at-large, liaison to the Advocacy Committee for Women’s Concerns (ACWC);

Jessica Vazquez Torres, Hispanic/Latino/a, at-large;

Vacancy, at-large representative;

Gloria Tuma, liaison from the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP);

Ruben Ortiz Rodriguez, liaison from the General Assembly Committee on Representation (GACOR).

The committee was staffed by Courtney Hoekstra, associate for advocacy committee support, Presbyterian Mission Agency, and Sherri Pettway, administrative assistant, Presbyterian Mission Agency.

Assigned Functions

The Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC) works to fulfill its General Assembly mandate to provide advocacy and monitoring on issues affecting people of color in both church and society. The committee evaluates social trends in church and society and provides advice and counsel to the General Assembly (GA) and the Presbyterian Mission Agency Board (PMAB). The committee addresses issues, including civil rights, racial justice, environmental justice, economic justice, public education, law enforcement, health care, employment, and housing as they directly impact communities of color and thereby the entire body of Christ. The committee also monitors the implementation of programs and policies approved by the church that impact the participation and quality of life for people of color within the church. The ACREC works in close cooperation with other agencies and entities within the church, including the Advocacy Committee for Women’s Concerns (ACWC) and the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP), to fulfill its responsibilities. The ACREC’s assigned functions, as stated in the Presbyterian Mission Agency Manual of Operations include:

- a. Prepare policy statements, resolutions, recommendations, reports, and advice and counsel memoranda on racial ethnic concerns to the General Assembly at the request of the General Assembly, the Presbyterian Mission Agency Board, or on its own initiative.
- b. Advise the Presbyterian Mission Agency Board on matters of racial ethnic concerns including statements concerning pressing issues that the council may wish to consider between meetings of the General Assembly.
- c. Provide advice and counsel to the General Assembly and its committees on overtures, commissioners’ resolutions, reports, and actions before the General Assembly that impact issues of racial ethnic concern.
- d. Assist the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy in maintaining an up-to-date and accurate compilation of General Assembly policy on racial ethnic concerns and provide information to the church as requested.
- e. Provide the Stated Clerk, the Moderator of the General Assembly, and the Executive Director of the Presbyterian Mission Agency Board with information as they fulfill their responsibilities to communicate and interpret General Assembly policies on racial ethnic concerns.
- f. Monitor the implementation of racial justice policies and programs relative to racial ethnic concerns.
- g. Through advocacy maintain a strong prophetic witness to the church and for the church on existing and emerging issues of racial ethnic concern.

The committee has direct access to the General Assembly and the Presbyterian Mission Agency Board, and its chair has corresponding member status with the Presbyterian Mission Agency Board and with the General Assembly.

Officers for 2016–2018

The 2016–2018 Executive Committee of ACREC consists of Buddy Monahan, chair; Tom Priest, vice-chair; Jose Luis Casal, secretary (partial term; then became a vacant position); Nahida Gordon, chair of Resource and Referral Subcommittee; Victor Hamel, chair of Study and Comment Subcommittee.

Accomplishments

The Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns used its regularly scheduled meetings to explore a wide range of topics of special interest to the committee and its work. The ACREC is committed to and has participated in anti-racism and cultural proficiency training at each of its meetings. The committee also hears and responds to reports at each meeting from all of the caucus/council/coordinate committee representatives and liaisons to and from other groups. At most meetings in Louisville, ACREC connects with various staff people in the building to connect with the work of the Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA) and the Office of the General Assembly (OGA), in particular.

In 2016, following the 221st General Assembly (2016), the committee met as follows:

- September 22–23, 2016—Louisville, Kentucky: ACREC’s first meeting after General Assembly focused heavily on actions taken at the General Assembly that were focused on racial justice. Based on this review and current racial justice issues in the church, country, and world, ACREC set some priorities for their work during this two-year cycle. The committee connected with Molly Casteel, staff to the General Assembly Committee on Representation. They also elected and installed their new executive committee.

In 2017, the committee continued its work with the following schedule of meetings and content summaries:

- January 22–23, 2017—Tucson, Arizona: The ACREC visited with partners in Agua Prieta, Mexico, and learned more about the deportation process and the impacts of the border wall. They also viewed the documentary, Locked in a Box. The ACREC also met with the Reverend Alison Harrington from Southside Presbyterian Church in Tucson. The cultural proficiency team of ACREC worked with staff from the Presbyterian Mission Agency on the PMA’s revision of their six-year cultural proficiency plan.

- May 19–21, 2017—Louisville, Kentucky: The committee was led by ACREC member, Jessica Vazquez Torres, in a half-day training on Racism, Power, & Dominance in the U.S. and the Church. The Stated Clerk, J. Herbert Nelson, II, and Cora Brown, manager of administration (OGA) met with ACREC. The committee discussed concerns with the PMA Board and the Governance Task Force proposals. After extensive discussion on the training held the first day of the meeting, ACREC voted to change their name to the Racial Equity Advocacy Committee (REAC).
October 19–20, 2017—Chicago: The ACREC discussed highlights from the September Presbyterian Mission Agency Board meeting, including the approved report of the Governance Task Force, which grants the advocacy and advisory committees a seat with full voice and vote on the new twenty-member board. The committee heard an update from Holly Haile Thompson and Buddy Monahan on the important work of the Doctrine of Discovery team. The ACREC had lunch and discussion with two associate pastors at Fourth Presbyterian Church, Chicago: Vicky Curtiss and Nanette Sawyer, who jointly staff their First Presbyterian Chicago’s Racial Equity Committee. The ACREC had a Go-To-Meeting conversation with Samuel Son, manager for diversity and reconciliation of the Presbyterian Mission Agency about race audits. The ACREC also had a Go-To-Meeting conversation with Tom Hay, Associate Stated Clerk and director of assembly operations in the Office of the General Assembly about the implications of holding the PC(USA) General Assembly in St. Louis, a city fraught with racial tensions and issues. General Assembly Nominating Committee liaison to ACREC, Lindsey Anderson, and Valerie Small, Assistant Stated Clerk and manager of GA nominations, met with ACREC to discuss the need for ACREC’s participation in recruitment to ACREC.

In 2018, the committee had its final full-committee meeting prior to General Assembly:

January 18–20—Louisville, Kentucky: The ACREC worked to complete all of its reports for the 223rd General Assembly (2018). The committee discussed concerns about some of the preliminary proposals of the Way Forward Commission. The greater portion of the meeting was spent discussing, drafting, reviewing, and editing resolutions to be submitted to the General Assembly.

Items of Business for the 223rd General Assembly (2018)

The following items were sent to the 223rd General Assembly (2018):

A Resolution to Advocate for the Human Rights of All Citizens of Yemen

A Resolution on the Status of Jerusalem

A Resolution on Prioritizing Translation and Accessibility in the PC(USA)

B. The Advocacy Committee for Women’s Concerns (ACWC) Agency Summary 2016–2018

“The [Holy One] is a stronghold for the oppressed, a stronghold in times of trouble” (Ps. 9:9).

“The Spirit told me to go with them and not to make a distinction between them and us” (Acts 11:12).

“... [Be] doers of the word, and not merely hearers ...” (Jas. 1:22).

Introduction

The context of women’s advocacy is a human situation where women experience injustice because they are women. Grounded in communal faith in God who liberated the people of Israel from oppression, covenanted with Israel that they might do justice, and motivated by painful recognition of sexism within and without, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) explicitly articulated in the Articles of Agreement its commitment to work against gender-based discrimination. The Advocacy Committee for Women’s Concerns (ACWC) is a contemporary fulfillment of this promise. The new Book of Order continues to uphold this commitment: “In Christ, by the power of the Spirit, God unites persons through baptism regardless of race, ethnicity, age, sex, disability, geography, or theological conviction. There is therefore no place in the life of the Church for discrimination against any person” (Book of Order, F-1.0403). Created by the mandate of the 205th General Assembly (1993) at the recommendation of the Report of the Task Force on Shape and Form, ACWC is charged with the responsibility of assisting the church to give full expression to the rich diversity of its membership as specified in the Book of Order, G-4.0403 ... monitor[ing] and evaluat[ing] policies, procedures, programs, and resources regarding the way in which they impact the status and position of women in the church ... and advocate[ing] for full inclusiveness and equity in all areas of the life and work of the church in society [as a whole]. (Minutes, 1994, Part I, p. 262)

Assigned Responsibilities

The ACWC’s assigned functions are delineated in the Presbyterian Mission Agency Manual of Operations (September 2016) (Appendix 1F, p. 38–39). They include:

- Preparing policy statements, resolutions, recommendations, reports, and advice and counsel memoranda on women’s concerns to the General Assembly at the request of the General Assembly, the Presbyterian Mission Agency Board, or on its own initiative;

- Advising the Presbyterian Mission Agency Board on matters of women’s concerns including statements concerning pressing issues that the board may wish to consider between meetings of the General Assembly;
- Providing advice and counsel to the General Assembly and its committees on overtures, commissioners’ resolutions, reports, and actions before the General Assembly that impact issues of women’s concerns;
- Assisting the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy in maintaining an up-to-date and accurate compilation of General Assembly policy on women’s concerns and provide information to the church as requested;
- Providing the Stated Clerk, the Moderator of the General Assembly, and the Executive Director of the Presbyterian Mission Agency with information as they fulfill their responsibilities to communicate and interpret General Assembly policies on women’s concerns;
- Monitoring the implementation of women’s policies and programs relative to women’s concerns; and,
- Through advocacy maintaining a strong prophetic witness to the church and for the church on existing and emerging issues of women’s concerns.

The ACWC is housed in the Office of the Executive Director of the Presbyterian Mission Agency. The committee has direct access to the General Assembly and Presbyterian Mission Agency Board (PMAB). The ACWC has organized itself with a leadership team of three co-chairs: two serve as corresponding members to the General Assembly and the Presbyterian Mission Agency Board respectively. One member of ACWC is a voting member of the Committee on Mission Responsibility Through Investment (MRTI). There are twelve voting members of the committee; ten members are nominated by the General Assembly Nominating Committee (GANC) and elected by the General Assembly. They are chosen based on their individual qualifications and do not represent any constituencies. One member is the current moderator for justice and peace of Presbyterian Women and one member is a member of the Presbyterian Mission Agency Board, chosen and sent by that body.

Members who were elected to the committee in July 2016 were Jeanne Choy Tate (filling a two-year partial term from a vacancy), Terry Alexander (liaison to ACSWP), Jon Forbes, and Destini Hodges (resigned in 2017). Mary McClintock Fulkerson and Susan Carter Wiggins (corresponding member to the 223rd General Assembly [2018]) were reelected for their second terms. Regina Meester continued as a member sent by the Presbyterian Mission Agency Board, and Wanda Beauman continued as Presbyterian Women Moderator for Justice and Peace member of ACWC. Voting members who continued from the previous term were Kerri Allen (dual MRTI member), Joyce Rarumangkay (liaison to ACREC), Floretta Watkins (corresponding member to the PMAB), and Joann Haejong Lee.

The committee also welcomed liaison members from partner groups: Gwendolyn Magby, from the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC); Joanne Sharp from the National Association of Presbyterian Clergywomen (NAPC); and Sylvia Thorson-Smith from the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

Gatherings and Foci

At each of ACWC’s meetings, the committee reviews and evaluates its work. The ACWC has also committed to checking in on having an intersectional approach to gender justice, taking into account the various intersections of women’s identities, including but not limited to considering race, physical and mental ability, class, etc. Each meeting includes reports from all liaison and dual members on the work of the groups to whom they are connected.

This cycle, ACWC divided their work priorities into four working groups:

1. Gender-Based Violence
2. Women of Color
3. Gender and Leadership
4. Family Leave & Contract Workers

Each group met both at each face-to-face meeting, as well as electronically between meetings, in order to complete their work. The full committee had the benefit of learning from the work of each of the groups at each meeting. Ultimately, these groups set the priorities for ACWC heading into the 223rd General Assembly (2018).

During 2016–2018, ACWC had five regular meetings:

October 29–30, 2016, in Louisville, Kentucky:

- The committee spent a significant amount of time on introductions and orientation, as this was the first meeting for those elected at the 222nd General Assembly (2016).
The committee reviewed their work at General Assembly and discussed best practices and places for improvement in the next cycle. They also looked ahead to what items approved by the 222nd General Assembly (2016) they would need to monitor in the coming years.

The ACWC determined a focus for their work in the next two-year cycle, including making assignments for their four working groups and splitting up to meet in those groups to set priorities.

February 2–4, 2017, in El Paso, Texas, and Ciudad Juárez, Mexico:

- The ACWC discussed current events and the particular need to respond to sexism in U.S. culture at this time.
- The committee heard a report from ACWC member, Jeanne Choy Tate, on Cameron House and the history of abuse that occurred there as well as the healing work of that community.
- The committee spent the day in Ciudad Juárez, Mexico, connecting with partners in ministry there and learning about gender justice work amidst the particulars of the culture there. They also visited a portion of the border wall and learned of the impact of this barrier on all living in the area.
- The ACWC continued work in their assigned working groups, incorporating any relevant learnings from Mexico into their focus areas.

July 8–10, 2017, in St. Louis, Missouri:

- The ACWC had the opportunity to participate in worship at Big Tent (which some members attended prior to the meeting).
- The committee spent a day learning about the domestic violence prevention and assistance organization, Lydia’s House, and then volunteered by cleaning there. Their hope was to begin to connect in a more meaningful way with the city in which the 223rd General Assembly (2018) will be held in conjunction with the Stated Clerk’s Hands and Feet initiative.
- The ACWC met with PMA Interim Executive Director, Tony De La Rosa, and discussed concerns with the PMA’s Family Leave policy.
- The committee met with the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly, J. Herbert Nelson, II, and discussed concerns about clergy abuse, reporting abuse, and collection of data surrounding cases of abuse.
- The ACWC heard extensive reports from each of the ACWC working groups.

November 9–11, 2017, in Washington, D.C.:

- The ACWC met with Co-Moderator of the 222nd General Assembly (2016), Denise Anderson, and discussed her sense of gender justice concerns around the PC(USA).
- The committee heard personal reports on immigration struggles from ACWC member, Joyce Rarumangkay (re. obtaining her green card), and the Reverend Lisa Hamel (re. international adoption).
- Valerie Small, manager of GA Nominations, and Mary Lynn Walters, General Assembly Nominating Committee member, met with ACWC to give updates on the nominations process and what is needed from ACWC.
- The committee began to discussion of resolutions to General Assembly.
- Dr. Barbara Fears, from Howard Divinity School, presented to ACWC in conjunction with their focus on black women and girls.

January 11–13, 2017, in Louisville, Kentucky:

- The ACWC received, reviewed, and approved drafts of resolutions to be submitted to the 223rd General Assembly (2018).
- The committee received and approved joint statement with Presbyterian Women addressing #MeToo/#ChurchToo.
- The ACWC participated in a community-building exercise to strengthen the internal teamwork of ACWC.
- Rhashell Hunter, Director of Racial Ethnic & Women’s Ministries, met with ACWC to discuss work being done in connection to the Status of Women project.

The committee discussed the work and proposals of the Way Forward Commission.

The ACWC renewed its commitment to undergird work with a reformed theological framework.

Actions of the committee for consideration of the 223rd General Assembly (2018):

- A Resolution to Respond to Disparities Experienced by Black Women and Girls
- A Resolution to Require and Expand Family Leave Policies
- A Resolution on Determining the Need for an LGBTQ+ Advocacy Committee in the PC(USA)
- A Resolution on Sexual Misconduct in the PC(USA)
- A Resolution to Amend Book of Order, D-11.0403a

C. Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) Agency Summary.

Assigned Responsibilities: Strengthening Presbyterian Social Witness

Social witness is part of what it means for the church to be “salt” and “light” in the world today. Coming from Jesus’ words in Matthew 5:13–14, the images of Salt & Light also give name to the ACSWP on-line newsletter. They undergird the committee’s faithfulness to its mission statement:

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) serves the prophetic calling of the whole Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) by providing the General Assembly with careful studies of pressing moral challenges, media for discussion and discernment of Christian responsibilities, and policy recommendations for faithful action.

This brief narrative summarizes the committee’s responsibilities, its procedures and personnel, its accomplishments and activities. The committee’s minutes for the past two years are also submitted to the assembly and are reviewed by designated members of the Social Justice Committee. And because this year is ACSWP’s time for its periodic review, the committee has submitted an extensive self-study, done by a sociologist member who worked in assembly data with Presbyterian Research Services.

The term, social witness, is a shorthand way to combine evangelism and social justice. Witness is bigger than advocacy, but it has the moral purpose of pointing to God’s intention for some part of the world, and often drawing attention to people in need or who are suffering. The key point of the mission statement is that everybody has a conscience where the Holy Spirit speaks, what John Calvin called, the “inner forum.” Yet the sense of moral concern is not just our individual “social righteousness,” to use the name of one of the six “Great Ends” of the church. The Confession of 1967 makes clear that just as individuals and congregations have prophetic responsibilities, so does the whole church, to demonstrate the “kingdom of God” to the world. As expressed notably by Martin Luther King Jr., the church is to be a “moral conscience” to the nation.

Jesus asks whether his disciples can discern “the signs of the times” of their particular time and place. The work of the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) is to help the church discern what it means to proclaim and embody the Gospel in relation to contemporary society. In this work, the ACSWP and its task forces are directed to draw upon a wealth of resources:

- the voices of the biblical text;
- the wisdom of theological discourse;
- the guidance of the Reformed confessions;
- the tradition of past policy statements;
- the insights of sociopolitical disciplines;
- the advice of members and all governing bodies of the church;
- the insights of people who are poor, victims of existing policies, and those who have not had a voice in councils of the church; and Social witness can occur at many different points: in a church session, in a presbytery, in an advocacy group, in the participation of Christians in mission, in a meeting of the ecumenical church, in an individual Christian’s brave refusal to “go along” with injustice. At this General Assembly, one of the resolutions, “Honest Patriotism,” is partly about being able to admit that injustices have happened.

For Presbyterians, decisions about the church’s social witness are made by persons elected to serve in mid councils (session, presbytery, synod, and General Assembly). As councils of the church meet, the elected persons are commissioned “... not simply to reflect the will of the people, but rather to seek together to find and represent the will of Christ” (Book of Order, F-3.0204). The advisory committee’s structure and function go back to 1936 when “consecrated” and justice-oriented persons from the Boards of Christian Education and National Missions were elected to a Social Education and Action Committee. A similar process was occurring in the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

In providing service and resources to meet the needs of congregations, mid councils, and the General Assembly, ACSWP members find guidance in the mission statement quoted above. Theologically grounded ethical reflection is part of the salt and light of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

The ACSWP engages with the “grassroots” in assisting the General Assembly to discern what it means to proclaim and embody the Gospel in a world that remains too grim for too many. Experience counts. At the same time, the committee’s membership contains persons with expertise in theology, social ethics, and various other disciplines, most of whom hold advanced degrees.

Making a personal social witness begins with very individual ways of growing and developing as a Christian—prayerfully studying the Scriptures, being inspired by Jesus, the prophets, and courageous stands of the church, gaining insight from past ethical witness, connecting one’s faith with others in the Christian community, and then being faithful in the world beyond the church. The ACSWP seeks to be a partner in the ministry of reconciliation, for “each member [who] is the church in the world …” (Book of Confessions, The Confession of 1967, 9.38).

The church-wide work of the ACSWP is based on ethical guidance from the Scriptures, the Book of Confessions, and the Book of Order. The 1993 General Assembly policy statement, Why and How the Church Makes a Social Policy Witness (OGA-93-019), provides extensive documentation of key biblical passages and is a useful document in congregational interpretation of the ACSWP and its mission.

All of those biblical texts have a common theme. The Gospel says that to confess Jesus Christ as Lord is to believe that God can and has overcome the powers of sin in the world. Christians do not work alone, but join that Christ Jesus who is already at work in our world. John Calvin taught that social concern, expressed by action on behalf of our neighbors, is a central part of the faith. Our historic confessions, the work of the theologians, and the actions of 222 General Assemblies have reaffirmed that message. Our faithfulness as Reformed Christians is embodied in love and justice.

Communications Developments

The traditional way of transmitting the church’s social witness was print. In addition to the Minutes of the General Assembly, since 1908 there were print journals that provided analysis and “how to” for congregations and individuals, agencies, and councils of the church. ACSWP has migrated partly to the online world where many of our members live, as do many others we have not yet reached. We will say a word about our online journal and mention one new digital resource.

In 2011, the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy launched an internet justice journal, with the support of the Compassion, Peace, and Justice ministries area and the larger General Assembly Mission Council, now Presbyterian Mission Agency. The new journal, Unbound: An Interactive Journal of Christian Social Justice, was designed to strengthen the social witness of the whole church and to be an open forum on areas where new witness is needed. The url (internet address) is http://justiceunbound.org/; the name, “unbound,” refers not only to the lack of binding, but to Jesus’ words at the resurrection of Lazarus, “unbind him,” and to images of prisoners freed. The journal was launched in a meeting in Denver with members of the Presbytery of Denver.

In September 2011, the then General Assembly Mission Council designated the journal to be the successor to Church & Society magazine, which itself continued the work of print journals going back to 1908 (The Amethyst, Moral Welfare, and Social Progress). Back issues of all of these journals have been made available through the American Theological Library Association.

A key goal of Unbound has been to connect twenty- and thirty-something readers with the social witness policies of the church, using an intergenerational editorial staff. The current managing editor is Henry Koenig Stone, a recent Masters of Public Policy graduate of the University of Chicago. Previously, the Reverend Gina Bairby served as editor; she is now a pastor in Taos, New Mexico. Her predecessor was the Reverend Patrick Heery, who became editor of Presbyterians Today before being called to the pastorate in Auburn, New York.

Unbound seeks to improve its methods for sharing stories and building allies for social justice and social teaching. We know from sales of print policy booklets—down to about $2,500 last year (2017) from about $4,000 in previous years—that accessing the policies is mainly by download (free), for both individual and adult study use.

In addition to the internet journal, the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy maintains a website and distributes an e-newsletter, “Salt & Light.” Unbound links to these and to the various sites of other Compassion, Peace and Justice ministries.
A new resource is a thumbdrive loaded with social witness policy statements on the range of topics that the church has addressed in the relatively recent past. This clearly saves space for those who do not want to use paper but it also shows the changing history of how the church has addressed issues of sexuality, war and peace, labor rights, and many others. It is meant to help pastors and scholars (and scholar pastors!), and presbyteries, and seminary and college libraries, and seminarians writing papers, and so on.

Meetings of the Full Committee

In Baltimore, hosted by the First & Franklin St Presbyterian Church, the committee heard from its theologian-pastor on the uses of historical symbols, the associate executive presbyter on conversations about race and organizing for jobs for residents, a professor at Johns Hopkins University Medical School who researches psilocybin, and two other drug policy researchers, working on a study assigned by the 221st General Assembly (2014).

In Louisville later that year, the committee met extensively with staff of various programs and saw the new area across the 3rd floor where the committee’s new offices (and resource room/library) reside.

In Tucson, Arizona, the committee was hosted by St. Mark’s Presbyterian Church and met with Borderlinks at Southside Presbyterian Church, discussing sanctuary movement history and current immigration matters with former Moderator John Fife and his successor, Alison Harrington. Members Sylvia Thorson-Smith and Rachael Eggebeen helped host as well.

In Washington, D.C., the committee held a consultation with several experts in national security and global order, met with new Office of Public Witness staff, with the Reverend Jennifer Butler of Faith in Public Life on witnessing in the media and in politics, with Dr. Jaydeee Hanson on the precautionary principle, and with the Reverend Al Sharp of Clergy for a New Drug Policy.

In Chicago, the committee met partly at the offices of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (ELCA), and with Dr. Roger Willer, theological advisor on social ethics. The committee also met with Dr. Donna Riley of Purdue University’s Engineering School, and with several officials of the PC(USA): Co-Moderator, Jan Edmiston; Melinda Sanders, Esq., and Conrad Rocha, Esq., of the Governance Task Force of the Presbyterian Mission Agency; Valerie Small of the General Assembly Nominations Committee. The committee also welcomed Pamela Brug, MD, and the Reverend Sara Dorrien-Christians, as consultants.

In Florissant, a part of the St Louis set of municipalities, the committee was hosted by the Florissant Presbyterian Church and heard from Presbyterians from the Cote Brilliant Church, the Oak Hill Church, Eden Seminary, and a street feeding ministry. The committee also reviewed reports going to the General Assembly.

Procedures and Personnel

In support of the work of the assembly, the ACSWP is given direct access to the assembly as it meets biennially. Between sessions of the assembly, the ACSWP also assists the Presbyterian Mission Agency Board (PMAB), the Office of the General Assembly (OGA), and other agencies of the church as their work involves the development and interpretation of social witness policy.

The committee carries out its responsibilities in five major ways. They are the

1. development and recommendation of new social witness and policy for approval by the General Assembly;

2. interpretation and communication of the General Assembly’s social witness and policy, both to the church and the world at large;

3. provision of advice and counsel to the entities and mid councils of the church on matters of social witness policy when developments merit social-ethical attention;

4. provision of advice and counsel to the General Assembly when it meets as a governing body (in oral and memoranda form); and

5. monitoring of peace and justice concerns per mandates from the General Assembly.

The ACSWP develops and recommends new social witness policy primarily in response to referrals from the General Assembly (GA) and its entities, and in a manner consistent with the Manual of the General Assembly, “On Forming Social Policy.” This section is based on the 1993 “Why and How” document cited at the beginning of this narrative. Both the more extensive policies and shorter resolutions require depth of theological reflection, breadth of input, and diversity of participation.
In most cases, the presbyteries originating the General Assembly assignments remain connected to the work of the study teams, although teams are more representative and seek to meet in and receive input from people in other parts of the country.

The committee’s Advice and Counsel group carries out the task of providing advice and counsel at the meeting of the General Assembly (GA). This group of elected committee members, together with other staff and resource persons from several Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA) and Office of the General Assembly (OGA) entities, advises commissioners in assembly committees and other entities about social policies applicable to issues before the assembly. It may also comment on the need or direction for future social policy. Such analysis and recommendations are provided through “Advice and Counsel Memoranda,” by oral testimony by resource people before assembly committees, and informally. The ACSWP chair or a co-chairperson is a corresponding member to both the General Assembly and the Presbyterian Mission Agency, with voice but not vote, and can offer advice and counsel in those meetings.

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) consists of twelve members, nine of whom have been at-large members elected by the General Assembly from the whole church and three who have been Presbyterian Mission Agency Board (PMAB) members confirmed by the assembly. In the last two years the PMAB has only designated one former member, Dr. Jean Demmler, of Denver, Colorado. Other members are: Beverly Brewster, Sleepy Hollow, California; Linda Eastwood, Chicago, Illinois; Rachael Eggebeen, Tucson, Arizona; Kevin R. Johnson, Detroit, Michigan; Raymond R. Roberts, Westfield, New Jersey/Richmond, Virginia (co-chair); Steven Webb, Fairfax, Virginia (co-chair); Rob Trawick, New City, New York; Sylvia Thorson-Smith, Tucson, Arizona; Gloria Tuma, Portland, Oregon. Staffing for the committee includes Christian T. Iosso, coordinator; Henry K. Stone, managing editor, Unbound journal; and Lacey Gilliam, part-time senior administrative assistant.

Accomplishments

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) members and staff make themselves available for interpretive events and preaching as requested and as time allows. Such events included presentations in presbyteries and congregations and consultations with a number more.

Of particular interest, several members of the committee met with members of the Presbytery of Foothills in Spartanburg and Greenville, S.C., in October of 2016, to follow up on that presbytery’s suite of overtures designed to revise much of the PC(USA) national structures and change ACSWP largely into an educational program. While these measures were all roundly defeated, the presbytery’s viewpoint is important to understand, especially at a time of partial reorganization of the denominational agencies.

In September of 2017, the committee was pleased to note the publication of a book based on the six-year peace discernment process, Five Risks Presbyterians Must Take for Peace, by Westminster/JohnKnox Press. As primary author, the ACSWP coordinator spoke in several churches in the Fall on the book.

The committee welcomes inquiries through its office in Louisville. All mid councils, churches, and members are encouraged to use the "Presbyterian Social Witness Policy Compilation," which contains the core of the assemblies’ social policy statements since 1946. It is revised regularly to meet the needs of the church and can be downloaded from the worldwide web at (http://index.pcusa.org/nxt/gateway.dll?f=templates$fn=default.htm).

The ACSWP holds a stated meeting following each General Assembly to discern and prioritize its work; periodically between the assemblies, to review progress on papers and projects; and in January before an assembly, to edit and approve final drafts for submission to the assembly. This year the committee has prepared the following reports to strengthen current social witness policies:

- Honest Patriotism. This is a resolution that addresses the importance of truth in politics and counters chauvinistic nationalism.

- Healing Before Punishment: In the place of the punitive strategies and violence that have led to mass imprisonment, narco-state corruption, and an underground drug economy, this report advocates a partial shift in how Christians should approach a drug-abundant society and its addictive appetites.

- Religious Freedom without Discrimination. This resolution affirms the historic position of the Reformed tradition in the U.S. against those who would abuse claims of religious freedom to deny equal treatment or access to others.

- Global Order and National Purpose. This is partly a proposal for an ecumenical study/consultation process on the need for maintaining international law-based agreements with allies and affirming human rights and diplomacy.

- Precautionary Progress. This is a report reviewing ways of reducing and managing risks of new technologies, requested by the 221st General Assembly (2014).

- Self-Study of the Committee. This is part of the General Assembly standard cycle of reviews of standing committees and includes recommended directions for the future.
• A Gospel from St Louis: The 221st General Assembly (2014) approved “The Gospel from Detroit,” which led to an “urban ministry roundtable” that reported to the 222nd General Assembly (2016) in Portland. This report contains accounts of five congregations seeking racial justice in the St Louis area, building on organized conversations at the Big Tent in 2017 (also held in St Louis).

From 2016, following their approval by the General Assembly, the committee assisted the Office of the General Assembly (OGA) in the publication of the following reports: Abiding Presence (on end-of-life issues), Israel-Palestine: For Human Values in the Absence of a Just Peace, A Study Guide for Israel-Palestine ..., Human Trafficking and Human Rights, New Hopes and Realities in Cuban-American Relations: A New Moment (Ingles/Espanol). These resources are online: http://www.pcusa.org/acswp/resources.htm.

The ACSWP works collaboratively with the four mission and ministry areas of the Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA), other General Assembly agencies, and the Office of the General Assembly (OGA). The ACSWP has liaisons from the Compassion Peace and Justice ministry area, and from the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC) and the Advocacy Committee for Women’s Concerns (ACWC). When possible, the committee spends time with local church members, with relevant presbytery committees, and with ecumenical contacts during its stated meetings. ACSWP members and staff have spoken at and distributed policy resources at several presbytery meetings and gave workshops at the Ecumenical Advocacy Days co-sponsored by the Office of Public Witness in Washington, D.C.

As invited, the committee assists in programming an annual gathering of the Social Ethics Network (SEN) (formerly known as the Theological Educators for Presbyterian Social Witness (TEPSW)). This group is composed primarily of Christian ethicists currently or formerly serving in seminaries and other educational institutions related to and/or in covenant relationship with the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). Since the last General Assembly, the committee assisted with three such gatherings. In January of 2017, the SEN met in New Orleans prior to the Society of Christian Ethics meeting there. In the Fall of 2017, a small SEN group met in Boston prior to the American Academy of Religion/Society of Biblical Literature meeting. In January of 2018, SEN met prior to the Portland, Oregon, meeting of the Society of Christian Ethics.

On Opposition to Congressional and State Anti-BDS Legislation—From the Synod of the Covenant.

The Synod of the Covenant overtures the 223rd General Assembly (2018) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to:

1. Confirm PC(USA) support for the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights (1948) and the instrumentalities of the United Nations and the international justice system developed since then to make those rights realities in all countries.

2. Defend and advocate for the constitutional protection under the First Amendment for all United States citizens, religious and civic organizations, companies and corporations that exercise their freedoms of speech, association, and other civil rights to support measures of economic witness (boycott, divestment, sanctions, or BDS policies and strategies) designed to bring those freedoms and rights to Palestinians and other persons living without full citizenship and under occupation.

3. Oppose specific U.S. legislation (and efforts by agents of foreign governments) to suppress measures of economic witness (boycott, divestment, sanctions, or BDS policies and strategies) such as “The Israel Anti-Boycott Act,” Senate Bill (S) 720 and House Resolution (H.R.) 1697, which seek to impose civil and criminal penalties for nonviolent BDS resistance against human rights violations in Israel and Palestine.

4. Advocate for the repeal of statutes of various states that seek to impose civil penalties or unconstitutional restrictions upon individuals and companies that support BDS policies and strategies and thereby violate the letter and spirit of the First Amendment.

5. In cases where litigation may be brought challenging state anti-BDS statutes on the First Amendment, due process, and other constitutional grounds, instruct the Stated Clerk of the PC(USA) to provide support by filing amicus curiae briefs in appropriate situations, in coalition with other justice, religious liberty, and human rights groups whenever possible.

6. Direct the Stated Clerk and appropriate Presbyterian Mission Agency program staff to develop resources and implement strategies for member education, interreligious dialogue, and public witness concerning the importance of the First Amendment freedoms of speech, association, press, and exercise of religion for all Americans, including the right to protest through boycott and divestment, and other nonviolent means.

[Financial Implications: Per Capita (2019) $1,000 (2020) $2,000. Total—$3,000]

Rationale

The First Amendment grants all of us free speech, association, and pursuit of our religious beliefs. It states: “Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibit the free exercise thereof; or abridge the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people to peacefully assemble, and to petition the Government for redress of grievances.” The First Amendment also applies to state governments by the Due Process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. Neither Congress nor the states may infringe upon these First Amendment guarantees.

The United States Supreme Court has held in NAACP v. Claiborne Hardware Co., 458 U.S. 886 (1982) that peaceful boycotts fall within the protection of the First Amendment, even when, the purpose of the boycott is “… concededly to advise customers and prospective customers ... not to patronize a certain employer” In the case, blacks boycotted white merchants to achieve equality and racial justice. The Court approved that such a boycott is a lawful exercise of the First Amendment even if the purpose is to bring about political, social, or economic change.

This overture is thus a needed application and extension of prior General Assembly action for justice:
(3) The General Assembly affirms the traditional freedom of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and other religious, civic, and private organizations in the United States to determine their own practices of investment or divestment, boycott or selective purchasing, in advocacy for peace and human rights, and therefore opposes efforts in state legislatures and elsewhere to limit or punish these exercises of freedom and nonviolent solidarity. (Minutes, 2016, Part I, p. 476 of the electronic version)

This statement is found in the recommendations section of Israel-Palestine: For Human Values in the Absence of a Just Peace, a careful report approved by a strong majority of commissioners to the 222nd General Assembly (2016). See: https://www.presbyterianmission.org/resource/israel-palestine-human-values-absence-just-peace/.

Senate Bill 720 would levy civil and criminal penalties upon United States’ citizens and companies that participate in BDS policies and strategies, including fines of $250,000 up to $1,000,000 and a maximum of twenty years in prison for those who engage in BDS against Israel. The Senate Bill 720 has the support of more than forty-two senators and the H.R. 1697 has the support of 247 house members. (It takes 218 house members to pass the bill in the house).

Senator Gillibrand of New York was a cosponsor of the Senate Bill, but withdrew her support upon learning of the civil and criminal penalties solely because it violated freedom of speech.

If the bills pass the House of Representatives and the Senate, the penalties would discourage United States citizens, churches, colleges and universities, companies, corporations, and organizations from participating in BDS policies and strategies and give up their First Amendment rights. If passed, the law would apply to any BDS activity in the United States or in Israel or its “territories”, i.e. the West Bank. The Attorney General of the United States would have the authority to prosecute potential violations of the law against individuals or companies who boycott the products of Israel or settlements in the West Bank.

In the case of PC(USA) policy established by the 220th General Assembly (2012) and 221st General Assembly (2014), actions taken by our church to boycott products manufactured in illegal Israeli settlements (according to international law) in the West Bank (2012), and the divestment of PC(USA) holdings in Caterpillar, Inc., Hewlett-Packard, and Motorola Solutions (2014) for profiting from nonpeaceful pursuits in the West Bank and Gaza would be considered illegal according the United States law. This not only violates free speech in the United States, it also violates the right of religious organizations to not participate in, or divest from activities that violate the religious conscience of Americans engaging in the practice of their religious faith.

At least twenty state legislatures have passed anti-BDS statutes barring each such state from entering into state contracts with any individual or company that participates in BDS policies or strategies. The state statutes reject and denounce the international BDS movement and impose a civil penalty, which infringes upon First Amendment rights.

On October 11, 2017, the American Civil Liberties Union filed suit against the State of Kansas challenging its anti-BDS law as violating the First Amendment.

To target BDS policies and strategies with congressional and state anti-BDS laws that carry civil and criminal penalties in order to ban freedom of speech in the United States on one issue, namely the violation of human rights towards Palestinians in Israel/Palestine, is unconstitutional.

Article 19 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, and recognized in international human rights law in the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, supports freedom of speech. Article 19 of the UDHR states that “everyone shall have the right of freedom of expression; this right shall include freedom to seek, receive and impart information and ideas of all kinds, regardless of frontiers, either orally, in writing, or in print, in the form of art, or through any other media of (his/her) choice.”

ACSWP ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 12-01

Advice & Counsel on Item 12-01—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).
The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 12-01.

Item 12-01 calls for opposition to legislation that seeks to impose civil and criminal penalties for support of, and participation in, BDS policies and strategies directed at ending the illegal occupation of the West Bank, East Jerusalem, and Gaza. This resolution is consistent both with past General Assembly actions regarding nonviolent protest against the occupation, and with the policy of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) regarding the protection of free speech, as noted in the rationale above.

Commissioners are aware that the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has a robust history of engaging in boycotts of particular products for various reasons, divesting from companies whose actions are in conflict with the mission of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), and supporting governmental sanctions based upon human rights violations and other actions.

Past General Assemblies have taken actions with regard to boycotting settlement products and with regard to divesting from certain companies profiting from the occupation that could become actionable under some of these statutes, in the broadest reading of some of the proposed legislation. The proposed legislation, which this overture opposes, is inconsistent with existing positions of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) with regard to the situation in Israel / Palestine.

Even more importantly, for the purposes of this overture, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), in both policy and practice, has championed freedom of speech and the inviolability of conscience as important pieces of our theological tradition. Regardless of whether the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) ever chooses to endorse or to reject the BDS movement to end the occupation of Palestine, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has a stake in affirming the right of any organization or individual to engage in nonviolent protest.

ACREC ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 12-01

Advice & Counsel on Item 12-01—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns.

The Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 12-01.

This overture seeks to safeguard first amendment rights that are under attack by groups working in favor of a foreign country. Specifically, the overture seeks to safeguard the first amendment rights of United States citizens, churches, colleges and universities, companies, corporations, and organizations who choose to advocate for BDS. (See https://bdsmovement.net/.)

Boycott, Divestment, Sanctions (BDS) is a Palestinian-led movement for freedom, justice, and equality. BDS upholds the simple principle that Palestinians are entitled to the same rights as the rest of humanity.

Israel is occupying and colonizing Palestinian land, discriminating against Palestinian citizens of Israel, and denying Palestinian refugees the right to return to their homes. Inspired by the South African antiapartheid movement, the BDS call urges action to pressure Israel to comply with international law.

BDS is now a vibrant global movement made up of unions, academic associations, churches, and grassroots movements across the world.

There are three simple requests by this movement: These nonviolent measures should be maintained until Israel meets its obligation to recognize the Palestinian people’s inalienable right to self-determination and fully complies with the precepts of international law by:

1. Ending its occupation and colonization of all Arab lands and dismantling the wall.

2. Recognizing the fundamental rights of the Arab-Palestinian citizens of Israel to full equality.

3. Respecting, protecting and promoting the rights of Palestinian refugees to return to their homes and properties as stipulated in UN resolution 194.
Item 12-02

On Advocating for the Human Rights of All Citizens of Israel—From the Synod of the Covenant.

The Synod of the Covenant overtures the 223rd General Assembly (2018) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to do the following:

2. Direct the Office of the General Assembly, through its Stated Clerk, to write to the United States president and secretary of state urging them to [seek United States government suspension of all economic and military aid to Israel until the latter is in| use diplomatic tools to bring Israel into| full compliance with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (of which Israel is a signatory) by changing its laws, policies, and practices that favor its Jewish citizens and discriminate against its Christian and Muslim citizens and other ethnic minorities.

3. Direct the Stated Clerk to write to the U.S. president and secretary of state, urging them to advocate with their Israeli counterparts to cease all actions that block equal access of all citizens in Israel’s
   a. legal system;
   b. citizenship privileges;
   c. income and employment;
   d. distribution of resources and social welfare;
   e. accessibility to land;
   f. educational resources;
   g. availability of health resources; and
   h. political participation.

4. Direct the Presbyterian Mission Agency, through the Office of Public Witness and the Presbyterian Ministry at the United Nations, to advocate for and witness to the human rights of all Israeli citizens regardless of their religious or ethnic minority status until Israel is in compliance with international humanitarian laws, specifically the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights. In particular, these offices should advocate for equal access for all people in Israel’s
   a. legal system;
   b. citizenship privileges;
   c. income and employment;
   d. distribution of resources and social safety welfare;
   e. accessibility to land;
   f. educational resources;
   g. availability of health resources; and
   h. political participation.

5. Direct the Office of the General Assembly and Presbyterian Mission Agency, through its program units, to study, and inform all Presbyterians regarding the discriminatory practices in Israel today and to advocate for equal rights for all citizens who live in Israel, regardless of their religious and ethnic identity.

[6. To call on the United States government to rejoin and re-engage with the United Nations Human Rights Council.]
How did events develop so that Christians and Muslim citizens of Israel are experiencing discrimination as outlined in this overture? In answer to this question, consider a brief historical background.

Historically, Palestine was part of a larger geographic region known as the land of the ancient Canaanites, which comprised the area now known as modern Palestine/Israel, Jordan, Lebanon, coastal Syria, and southern inland Syria. Careful examination of the archaeological evidence demonstrates that "there was population continuity through successive millennia" in the land of Canaan. Archaeological evidence of human habitation dates from the twelfth millennium BC to the present, constituting fourteen millennia. The estimated existence of the geographic entities of the ancient kingdoms of Israel and Judah constitutes a but a small sliver of time—less than five hundred years.

Israeli government accounts frequently assert that Palestinians are desert people who recently came in from the East (Arabia). There is no reason to doubt that Palestinians are descendants of the original inhabitants of Canaan as there is no archaeological evidence whatsoever for a complete disappearance of a people from Palestine and their replacement by outsiders. The one exception is the attempt (though only partially successful) by the government of Israel to transplant a European Jewish population into Palestine in an attempt to replace its indigenous people and their culture.

During most of the first two decades of the twentieth century, Palestine was part of the Ottoman Empire, which had controlled Palestine for 400 years, beginning in 1516. After the First World War, when the Ottoman Empire was dismantled, England and France divided the Middle East into separate mandates, and on June 22, 1922, Great Britain became the mandatory for Palestine. At this time, the census of Palestine showed that Jews constituted 7.9 percent of the population.

Ignoring the human rights of the Palestinian people, Great Britain facilitated the mass immigration of Jews from Europe into Palestine and by 1946, the population consisted of 32.96 percent Jews and 67.04 percent Christians and Muslims. Therefore, in spite of the great influx of European Jews into Palestine, the Jewish population continued to be a minority population.

On November 29, 1947, the United Nations General Assembly (Resolution 181) voted to recommend partition of Palestine into two states, one Jewish and the other Palestinian. The territories designated to the Jewish and Palestinian states would be 56 percent and 43 percent of Palestine, respectively. Jerusalem and Bethlehem were to become an international zone. At the end of 1946, Jews had acquired by purchase 6 to 8 percent of the total land area of Palestine and comprised approximately one third of its population. In other words, the recommended plan in effect would take land owned by Palestinians and proposed to give it to a new Jewish state. Israel uses UN GA resolution 181 as a justification for the right of Israel to exist as a country when in fact the United Nations does not have the legal right to partition a country. Israel, as a state, was won at the point of a gun, and its recognition by the Truman Administration gave it instant "legitimacy.”

The Zionist leadership wanted to have the land of Palestine without a people—free of all non-Jewish Palestinians whether Christian or Muslim. This wish has been expressed in various forms early from the founding of Zionism to this day. Nur Masalha, in his book The Politics of Denial: Israel and the Palestinian Refugee Problem, describes in detail the theme of "population transfer" or "ethnic cleansing" in the thinking and action of the Zionist movement in Palestine-Israel. His work is largely based on Hebrew and Israeli archival sources; it represents some of the most original work in this area and is frequently cited by later authors.

As early as 1891, a leading liberal Russian Jewish thinker, Ahad Ha’Am (Asher Zvi Ginsberg) observed that the Zionist “pioneers” believed that:

"... the only language that the Arabs understand is that of force. ... [The Zionist ‘pioneers’] behave towards the Arabs with hostility and cruelty, trespass unjustly upon their boundaries, beat them shamefully without reason and even brag about it, and nobody stands to check this contemptible and dangerous tendency.”

Masalha documents with meticulous detail the Zionist leaders’ early plans that the “transfer” of the Palestinian people was a necessary prelude to the founding of the state of Israel. Tactics for such a transfer evolved with time. In the beginning, there was hope through negotiations with colonial powers such as Italy, England, and Turkey that these powers would cooperate with the voluntary or forced transfer of the Palestinian population. When these tactics failed, purchase of land was the attempted device. However, by late 1947, the Jewish National Fund and others had acquired by purchase only 6 to 8 percent of the land. Clearly other tactics were necessary if the Zionist leaders were to achieve their goal of taking possession of the land. After the United Nations General Assembly voted to recommend partition of Palestine in 1947, civil war erupted. The Yishuv (the Jewish community in Palestine) armed forces, the Hagana, Irgun Tzavi Leumi, and Lehi groups, were fully armed, largely provided by the British, and on the offensive against largely unarmed (who were systematically disarmed by the British mandatory administration), disorganized, and powerless Palestinian groups. Both force and psychological intimidation were tactics used to initiate and implement the mass exodus of 750,000 to 800,000 Palestinians. After the cessation of hostilities, the massacre of villagers was used as a successful device of intimidation that resulted in the mass exodus. This relentless campaign of terror and expulsion continues unabated but in muted form to this day.
Palestinians who remained in Israel but driven from their villages became “internally displaced persons.” Indeed, rather than allowing these displaced Palestinians to return to their lands and villages, the Israeli government declared them to be “present absentees” under the Absentee Property Law and denied them return to their homes and communities.

Americans hold dear Thomas Jefferson’s assertion in the United States Declaration of Independence: “We hold these truths to be sacred and undeniable; that all men are created equal and independent, that from that equal creation they derive rights inherent and inalienable, among which are the preservation of life, and liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.”

And the 210th General Assembly (1998) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) voted to “Request pastors and sessions to find ways within the life of congregations to participate in the commemoration of the anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights through worship, Bible study, intercessory prayer, and utilization of the annual General Assembly Human Rights Update, which calls special attention to Human Rights Day each year on December 10; and in making available for every member a copy of the “Universal Declaration of Human Rights” for study and understanding. (paragraph 25.0409, p. 478). Encourage middle governing bodies, sessions, and individual members to pray for all victims of human rights abuse and for those who persecute them, also seeking ways to act on behalf of these victims (paragraph 25.0433, p. 481).”

The Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR) has thirty articles. Of these articles, this overture focuses on the ten articles listed below that the Israeli government, even though it has ratified this declaration, has particularly violated in the case of its minority Palestinian citizens:

- Article 1. All human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights.
- Article 3. Everyone has the right to life, liberty and security of person.
- Article 5. No one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.
- Article 7. All are equal before the law and are entitled without any discrimination to equal protection of the law.
- Article 9. No one shall be subjected to arbitrary arrest, detention or exile.
- Article 13. Everyone has the right to freedom of movement and residence within the borders of each state. Everyone has the right to leave any country, including his own, and to return to his country.
- Article 15. Everyone has the right to a nationality. No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his nationality nor denied the right to change his nationality.
- Article 17. No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his property.
- Article 21. Everyone has the right of equal access to public service in his country.
- Article 23. Everyone, without any discrimination, has the right to equal pay for equal work.

According to Adalah, an independent human rights organization and legal center staffed by Jewish and non-Jewish Israelis and based in Israel, there exists, in Israel laws and practices, a structural system of inequalities for Israeli citizens of minority ethnicities and faiths. The following demonstrate how each of these articles are violated in some or all of the eight areas of discrimination covered by this overture.

1. Legal system. According to Adalah, “the definition of the State of Israel as a Jewish state makes inequality and discrimination against Palestinian citizens of Israel a reality ... and impedes the realization of full equality. Direct and indirect discrimination against Arab (Israel uses the term ‘Arab’ to denote those Christians and Muslims of Palestinian heritage) citizens of Israel is ingrained in the legal system and in governmental practice” and has existed since the creation of the State of Israel. This discrimination occurs “on the basis of both their national belonging as Arabs/Palestinians and their membership in one or more other distinct subgroups, such as women. ... More than 50 main laws discriminate, directly or indirectly, against Palestinian citizens of Israel, and the current government coalition has proposed a flood of new racist and discriminatory bills, which are at various stages in the legislative process.” This legal framework of inequality is in violation of the UDHR articles 1 and 7.

2. Citizenship privileges. The “Law of Return (1950) and the Citizenship Law (1952) privilege Jews and Jewish immigration.” These laws grant citizenship to any Jew living anywhere in the world who wishes to live in Israel. However, Palestinians who were born in Israel/Palestine, who trace their ancestry for millennia in Palestine, and were forced into exile by Israel and its Jewish predecessors in 1948 and after are not allowed to return to their stolen homes and lands in Palestine/Israel even though this is a personal right guaranteed under international law. Furthermore, “a new law makes it possible to strip Israeli citizenship for various reasons related to alleged ‘disloyalty’ to the state or ‘breach of trust’, indirectly targeting the citizenship rights of Palestinian citizens.” These citizenship laws are in violation of UDHR Articles 13 and 15.
3. Income and employment. “Gaps in income and poverty rates are directly related to institutional discrimination against Arab (Palestinian) citizens in Israel. ... Palestinian citizens of Israel often face discrimination in work opportunities, pay, and conditions, both because of the inadequate implementation of equal-opportunity legislation and because of entrenched structural barriers, which particularly affect women, and include poor or non-existent public transportation, a lack of industrial zones, and a shortage of state-run daycare centers. Palestinian citizens are also excluded from the labor force by the use of the (Israeli) military-service criterion (which excludes Christian and Muslim Palestinian citizens) as a condition for acceptance for employment, often when there is no connection between the nature of the work and military experience.”

4. Distribution of resources and social welfare. “Although the right to equality demands that states take positive steps to bridge the gaps between the various population groups, the State of Israel actively seeks to promote and direct resources to Jewish citizens as a privileged majority within the ‘Jewish State.’” Furthermore, through “the use of the military-service criterion to allocate resources, the state actively preserves and perpetuates inequalities between Arab (Palestinian) and Jewish citizens of Israel. Direct state policy measures to reduce poverty disproportionately target Jewish citizens.”

5. Accessibility to land. “Land is the most valuable economic asset in the State of Israel, and also one of the most significant indicators and sources of inequality. Jewish and Palestinian citizens of Israel have unequal access to land resources, land rights, and the ability to use the resource of land to develop their communities. Since 1948, the State of Israel has enacted a series of laws that have allowed it to systematically confiscate and transfer Palestinian-owned land to the state and Zionist institutions, including the World Zionist Organization (WZO), the Jewish Agency, and the Jewish National Fund (JNF).”

“A new land reform law, passed in August 2009, allows for the privatization of state-held land, including land in destroyed and evacuated Palestinian villages belonging to internally-displaced persons (IDPs) as well as to Palestinian refugees living abroad. The process of legalizing the confiscation of Palestinian land continues today.”

“Today Palestinian citizens of Israel are, in practice, blocked from purchasing or leasing land on around 80 percent of the land in Israel on the basis of their national belonging.” As a result, the vast majority of state land consists of segregated, Jewish-only areas. Two of the main mechanisms used to exclude Palestinian citizens from ownership and use of the land are admissions committees, and the discriminatory policies pursued by the JNF and state authorities.”

Admissions committees operate in around 700 agricultural and community towns and filter out Arab (Palestinian) applicants, on the basis of their ‘social unsuitability,’ from future residency in these towns. The operation of admissions committees contributes to the institutionalization of racially segregated towns and villages throughout the state and perpetuates unequal access to the land. Admissions committees are bodies that select applicants for housing units and plots of land in ‘agricultural and community towns’ in Israel. They are used in part to filter out Arab (Palestinian) applicants from future residency in these locations, as well as to exclude other marginalized groups in Israel, such as Mizrahi (Eastern) Jews and LGBT people.”

Case Study: The Zubeidat family—“socially unsuitable” to live in Rakefet

Ms. Fatina and Mr. Ahmed Zubeidat are a married Arab (Palestinian) couple. They graduated from the College of Architecture at the Bezalel Academy of Arts and Design in Jerusalem with distinction, and they are both pursuing careers as architects. After marrying in 2006, the couple applied to live in the community town of Rakefet, located in Misgav in northern Israel. The Zubeidats were looking for a small town with a high level of services in which to raise their future children. An admissions committee operates in Misgav, which required the couple to take an acceptance test. The committee included a representative from the Jewish Agency. Following an interview with the couple, the committee rejected their application on the humiliating grounds of their “social unsuitability.”

These are examples of unequal accessibility to land, which is in violation of UDHR Article 7.

6. Educational resources. “The Ministry of Education retains centralized control over the form and substance of the curriculum for Arab (Palestinian) schools, with few Arab (Palestinian) educators wielding decision-making authority. The State Education Law sets educational objectives for state schools that emphasize Jewish history and culture. ... State funding to Arab (Palestinian) schools in Israel falls far behind that provided to Jewish schools. According to official state data published in 2004, the state provides three times as much funding to Jewish students as to Arab pupils. This underfunding is reflected in many areas, including relatively large class sizes and poor infrastructure and facilities. The current under-investment in Arab schools in Israel threatens to sustain the gaps between the Jewish majority and the Arab minority in the future.”

“There are few elementary schools in the unrecognized Arab Bedouin villages in the Naqab, severely overcrowded and poorly-equipped, and not a single high school.” Inequity in educational access violates UDHR Article 21.

Discrimination against Palestinian Arab children colors every aspect of the two systems. Education Ministry authorities have acknowledged that the ministry spends less per student in the Arab system than in the Jewish school system. The majority's schools also receive additional state and state-sponsored private funding for school construction and special programs through other government agencies. The gap is enormous—on every criterion measured by Israeli authorities.\(^2^6\)

In an article appearing in Haaretz (an Israeli newspaper), titled, “For Jews and Arabs, Israel’s School System Remains Separate and Unequal,”\(^2^7\) Or Kashti states “from elementary school up, Jewish students receive more state funding than their Arab peers. In high school, per-student funding in 2013–14 was 35 percent to 68 percent higher for Jews than for Arabs at the same socioeconomic level. That statistic comes from the Education Ministry itself.”

8. Availability of health resources. “While Israeli law provides that equitable, high-quality health services should be provided to all residents of Israel, various barriers—including the lack of clinics and hospitals in Arab towns and villages and limitations on mobility—mean that Palestinian citizens are frequently unable to exercise their right to the highest sustainable standard of health.”

“The health situation is most critical in the unrecognized Arab Bedouin villages in the Naqab, where health services are either limited or nonexistent. The inadequate provision of health services in the unrecognized villages is a deliberate policy of neglect on the part of the state, which is seeing to evacuate them and relocate their residents.”\(^2^8\) Inequality in health resources is a violation of UDHR Article 21.

9. Blocks to equal political participation. The criminal justice system is frequently used to block equal political participation in violation of UDHR Articles 3, 5, 9, and 13. “The criminal justice system is regularly used as a means of delegitimizing political acts and expression by Palestinian citizens of Israel, including their elected political leadership. Several Arab Knesset Members (MKs) have been indicted or had parliamentary privileges revoked for legitimate political activities and speech that falls within the scope of their work as elected representatives.” (Violation of Article 13.)

“A series of Israeli laws institute a range of restrictions on freedom of movement, freedom of speech, and access to the political system, including ideological limitations on the platforms of political parties and severe restrictions on travel by MKs to Arab states classified as ‘enemy states.’ Such laws are used predominantly to curb the political freedoms of Palestinian citizens and their elected representatives and are steadily shrinking the space for political action available to them.’ (Violation of Article 13.)

“The police routinely use force and arrest against Arab demonstrators as a deterrent in order to silence voices of protest. Anti-war protesters against the Israeli military operation ‘Cast Lead’ in Gaza—mainly Arab citizens, including many minors—were subjected to serious police violence. They further encountered disproportionate and systematic mass arrests, primarily on the pretext of their mere presence at the scene. (Violation of Articles 5 and 9)

“No police officer, commander or political leader has been held accountable for the killings of 13 unarmed Palestinian citizens of Israel in October 2000 during demonstrations staged against Israel’s brutal policies in the Occupied Palestinian Territories.” (Violation of Articles 5, 7, and 9.)

“Years of deliberate discrimination, unequal citizenship and a limited voice in the political system have left Palestinian citizens of Israel with a sense of vulnerability, marginalization, insecurity, and distrust of and alienation from the state. (Violation of Article 3.)

Furthermore, under Article 27 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights\(^2^9\), Israel is bound to protect the “the rights of members of this minority (Palestinian), together with their fellow members, to culture, religion and language.” However, “In practice, the status of Arabic is vastly inferior to that of Hebrew in terms of the resources dedicated to its use, despite Israel’s duty ... to protect the language rights of the Arab national minority in Israel.”\(^3^0\)

Finally, we quote from the executive summary of the 2016 United States Department of State Human Rights report on Israel.\(^3^1\)

The most significant human rights problems were terrorist attacks targeting civilians and politically and religiously motivated societal violence; institutional and societal discrimination against Arab citizens of Israel, many of whom self-identify as Palestinian, in particular in access to equal education, housing, and employment opportunities; and institutional and societal discrimination against Ethiopian Israelis and women. Other human rights problems included administrative detention, often extraterritorial in Israel, of Palestinians from the occupied territories; stigmatizing of human rights nongovernmental organizations (NGOs); the treatment of asylum seekers and irregular migrants; institutional and societal discrimination against non-Orthodox Jews and intermarried families; and labor rights abuses against Arab and foreign workers.

ACSWP ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 12-02

Advice & Counsel on Item 12-02—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 12-02.

This overture is consistent with the most recent actions of the General Assembly regarding the human rights of all citizens of the nation of Israel. The ACSWP calls the attention of commissioners to the report approved with comment by the 222nd General Assembly (2016) Israel-Palestine: For Human Values in the Absence of a Just Peace. Grounded in both principles of the Reformed faith and in The Universal Declaration for Human Rights (UN, 1948), that report notes:

The God who has created all human beings, male and female, in the divine image (Gen 1:27) and commanded us to love them (Mark 12:28-21) is the same God who invites us into his great mission of reconciliation (Matt 28:18-20). We begin to participate in that mission as we recognize that all persons carry the peculiar, unquantifiable, and indelible dignity that comes in human existence before God. All categories that divide persons must dissolve in the face of recognition of this dignity—no matter how functional or useless they are to us; no matter how benign or malignant they become for us; no matter how taught or innate they are. Regardless of our tendencies to choose sides, submit to tribal loyalties, or resist complexities in dealing with seemingly entrenched and intransigent conflicts, our first obligation is to honor the dignity of all persons with whom we are engaged, especially where that dignity is threatened, demeaned, or denied. The Christian mission of reconciliation will take us to difficult places; it will not allow us, however, to simplify those contexts, our neighbors, or ourselves, lest in doing so we lose sight of their dignity or surrender our own. (Minutes, 2016, Part I, p. 477)

Equal protection under the law is the minimum standard for addressing this set of theological principles. As this overture amply documents, such equal protection is sadly lacking in the administration of Israeli law with regard to its Palestinian citizens.

ACREC ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 12-02

Advice & Counsel on Item 12-02—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns.

The Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 12-02.

The denial of human rights by the Government of Israel to citizens of the Palestinian territories, East Jerusalem, the West Bank, and the Gaza Strip, have been presented to this General Assembly in the past. Such past examples are:

This overture; however, brings to light the status of human rights of citizens of Israel who may be Christian, Muslim, Misrahi (Eastern) Jew, Ethiopian Israeli, woman, and LGBT person.

There are more than fifty laws—and more are being proposed—that discriminate against certain minorities. Discrimination in housing, employment, and education are just some of the areas that are highlighted by this overture where discrimination occurs.

On Creating a Task Force to Examine NCCOP’s Call to Ecumenical Solidarity for Justice for Palestinians—From the Presbytery of Grace.

The Presbytery of Grace overtures the 223rd General Assembly (2018) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to:

1. Formally receive and acknowledge the letter from the National Coalition of Christian Organizations in Palestine (NCCOP).

2. Create a task force of twelve representatives from all relevant, appropriate, official PC(USA) staff, committees, task forces, and mission networks to examine the NCCOP’s nine-part call to ecumenical solidarity for justice for Palestinians in the West Bank, Gaza, in Israel, throughout refugee camps and the diaspora. The task force will be informed by existing policy statements of previous General Assemblies.
3. Instruct the task force to make recommendations to the 224th General Assembly (2020) and to bring a full report of its meetings and activity.

4. Invite further ecumenical dialogue, most especially with the World Council of Churches, in that regard.

Rationale

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has been a leader among its ecumenical peers in responding to the many calls for justice that have come from the Palestinian community for over a decade.

The 218th General Assembly (2008) endorsed the “Amman Call” regarding Arab-Israeli peace, issued by the World Council of Churches’ conference, “Churches Together for Peace and Justice in the Middle East,” at Amman, Jordan, June 18–20, 2007, including its affirmation of the UN resolutions that are the basis of a projected “two-state” solution, a shared Jerusalem, and the human rights of refugees and occupied peoples, its call to resist extremism and push for reconciliation, and its commitment to imperatives of ecumenical solidarity in action for Just Peace, directing that the Amman Call be printed in the Minutes of the General Assembly and considered in any study processes of the church (Minutes, 2008, Part I, pp. 1137ff, electronic version).

The 219th General Assembly (2010) approved the report of the Middle East Study Committee entitled: “Breaking Down the Walls,” which to date was the most extensive examination of the injustices suffered as a result of the ongoing occupation of Palestine by the Israeli military (Minutes, 2010, Part I, pp. 1021ff). In addition, the report made numerous recommendations that the church believed would help lead to justice and peace for both Palestine and Israel.

The 220th General Assembly (2012) called for the boycott of all Israeli products coming from the occupied Palestinian territories and called upon individual PC(USA) congregations to consider how they will respond to the call issued by the 2009 ecumenical Palestine Christian call for economic solidarity towards a just peace in Israel and Palestine that came through the Kairos Palestine Document, which was unanimously accepted by the heads of the leaders of all Christian traditions in Palestine (Minutes, 2012, Part I, pp. 1366ff, electronic version).

The 221st General Assembly (2014) voted to divest from Caterpillar, Hewlett-Packard, and Motorola Solutions for profiting from non-peaceful pursuits in the Occupied Palestinian Territories. It also called for a full review of the longstanding and largely unexamined PC(USA) policy supporting a “two state solution” in Israel and Palestine (Minutes, 2014, Part I, pp. 260ff, electronic version).

The 222nd General Assembly (2016) acted in the following ways:

2. Called for the Prayerful Study of the Palestinian Civil Society Call for Boycott, Divestment and Sanctions (BDS).

3. Advocated for the safety and well-being of the children of Palestine and Israel.

4. Affirmed Nonviolent Means of Resistance Against Human Oppression—which is an affirmation of the economic strategies of Presbyterians for over a century seeking to effect justice for oppressed peoples in many different situations in the United States and throughout the world.

There can be no denying, historically speaking, that the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has established a consistent record of supporting the Palestinian people in their pursuit of a just peace in Palestine and Israel and throughout the world.

The National Coalition of Christian Organizations in Palestine call is the latest in a long tradition of Palestinian Christians calling for justice in their homeland. As the writers of this document make abundantly clear: “Things are beyond urgent.” We are on the verge of a catastrophic collapse. The current status-quo is unsustainable. This could be our last chance to achieve a just peace.”

We recognize that discussion of this document will engender much debate within our denomination and throughout the ecumenical Christian community. But once again, since 2008 we have received formal calls from our Palestinian Christian brothers and sisters to take their plight seriously. We have also taken seriously the burden shared by both Palestinian Christians and Muslims by responding to the 2005 Palestinian Civil Society Call for boycott, divestment and sanctions. What we are hearing from this latest call is that nothing is getting better, in fact it is getting worse, as occupation becomes entrenched and injustice persists.

At the very least, as a church that has partnered with Palestinian Christians and Muslims for the cause of nonviolent peacemaking for well over a decade, it is our obligation to take this latest call seriously and the way Presbyterians do that is to study and dialogue and respond. This overture calls for us to continue our solidarity in this way. This is especially critical in a time when our Palestinian Christian partners are open about sharing their struggles and questions about how long their witness as followers of Jesus Christ can last under a brutal occupation that does not respect the faiths of any of the occupied.

The following is the open letter from the National Coalition of Christian Organizations in Palestine:

Open letter from The National Coalition of Christian Organizations in Palestine (NCCOP) to the World Council of Churches and the ecumenical movement

Learn to do right; seek justice. Defend the oppressed. (Isaiah 1:17)

As we meet this month in Bethlehem in occupied Palestine, we are still suffering from 100 years of injustice and oppression that were inflicted on the Palestinian people beginning with the unjust and unlawful Balfour declaration, intensified through the Nakba and the influx of refugees, followed by the Israeli occupation of the West Bank including East Jerusalem and Gaza and the fragmentation of our people and our land through policies of isolation and confiscation of land, and the building of Jewish-only settlements and the Apartheid Wall.

We are still suffering because of one political declaration from a Western Empire, based on a twisted theological premise. Even some churches and few Christian leaders supported the establishment of the colonial state in our land, and totally ignored—even dehumanized—the nation, our people that had already existed here for centuries and paid the price for atrocities committed in Europe.

Hundred years later with thousands of lives lost, towns and villages razed from the face of the earth—though not our memory—millions of refugees, thousands of homes demolished and continued incarceration of prisoners, our Nakba goes on.

Hundred years later and there is still no justice in our land! Discrimination and inequality, military occupation and systematic oppression are the rule. Today, we stand in front of an impasse and we have reached a deadlock. Despite all the promises, endless summits, UN resolutions, religious and lay leader’s callings—Palestinians are still yearning for their freedom and independence, and seeking justice and equality. Humanly speaking—we have reached the “moment of impossible”, as Emeritus Latin Patriarch Sabbah said recently.

Could it be that we have reached this “impossible moment” because things were built from the very beginning—a hundred years ago—on an unjust premise? Should we expect that such an unjust declaration will create anything but strife and destruction?

Today is also an opportunity to remember the Amman Call which was proclaimed ten years ago. We are thankful to those who stood with us back then in costly solidarity; those who stood for truth and justice. We are also concerned that ten years later the situation has been worsening on the ground and still deteriorating. Like other initiatives advocating end of occupation, the Amman Call did not achieve its goals in building and achieving just peace and we must ask ourselves today—why?

We are also concerned by Israel’s systemic assault on Palestinian creative resistance, and on our partners worldwide who use this method to pressure Israel to end the occupation. Many new laws were issued in Israel and around the world to oppose this creative non-violent resistance unlawfully, and to stop all effort towards peace. Not only is this an attack on the freedom of conscience and speech but it is also an assault on our right and duty to resist evil with good. Israel is even now trying to prevent pilgrims from visiting Bethlehem—the city of Emmanuel!

While we are grateful for the ‘costly solidarity’ articulated in the Amman Call and exercised by many churches around the world, we are concerned that some churches have weakened their positions in the last ten years as a result of this manipulating pressure. Many still hide behind the cover of political neutrality, not wishing to offend their religious dialogue partners.

Finally, we meet in an environment of religious wars and persecution in our region. Religious extremism is on the rise, and religious minorities have paid a heavy and painful price. We thank you for your efforts towards the refugees and towards ending the conflicts in our region. We also thank you for your support of persecuted Christians in places like Iraq and Syria.

Our Call:

“God blesses those who hunger and thirst for justice, for they will be satisfied.” (Matthew 5:6)

“Blessed are those who are persecuted because of righteousness (Justice), for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. Blessed are you when people insult you, persecute you and falsely say all kinds of evil against you because of me”. (Matthew 5:10-11)

As we stand in front of this “impossible moment”, it gives us no pleasure to say that “we told you so” eight years ago when we declared the moment as a Kairos moment! We stand facing the impossible, but we have not lost hope, since as followers of the Risen One, we are the people of hope. However, we need you and we need you now more than ever. We need your costly solidarity. We need brave women and men who are willing to stand in the forefront. This is no time for shallow diplomacy Christians. We urge you to hear our call and adopt the following:

1. That you call things as they are: recognize Israel as an apartheid state in terms of international law and in agreement of what a person like Desmond Tutu said and as the UN ESCWA report said: “Israel is guilty of imposing an apartheid regime on the Palestinian people”. We are disturbed by the fact that States and churches are dealing with Israel as if the situation were normal, ignoring the reality of occupation, discrimination and daily death in the land. Just as churches united to end apartheid in South Africa and whereby the WCC played a courageous and pivotal prophetic and leadership role, we expect you to do the same!
2. That you unequivocally condemn the Balfour declaration as unjust, and that you demand from the UK that it asks forgiveness from the Palestinian people and compensates for the losses. We ask that churches and Christians to support the Palestinians in their request for justice. It was his infamous declaration, after all that laid the ground for the concept of an ethno-religious state—the very same thing our region is suffering today.

3. That you take a clear and the strongest theological stand against any theology or Christian group that justifies the occupation and privileges one nation over the other based on ethnicity or a covenant. We ask that you adopt and live the theology suggested by Kairos Palestine and that you organize conferences to bring awareness towards this end.

4. That you take a stand against religious extremism and against any attempt to create a religious state in our land or region. We ask that you support us in combating the foundations of extremism and that you seek our council when acting against religious extremism so that you do not jeopardize and harm our standing here.

5. That you revisit and challenge your religious dialogue partners, and that you are willing to even withdraw from the partnership if needed—if the occupation and injustices in Palestine and Israel are not challenged.

6. That you lead campaigns for church leaders and pilgrims to visit Bethlehem and other Palestinian cities on this side of the wall in cooperation with Palestinian tourist and pilgrimage agencies, in response to recent attempts by Israel. We ask that you publicly challenge any attempt by Israel or other Christians that discourage pilgrims from visiting Palestinian places.

7. That you defend our right and duty to resist the occupation creatively and nonviolently. We ask that you speak in support of economic measures that pressure Israel to stop the occupation and go further to support sport, cultural and academic measures against Israel until it complies with international law and UN resolutions urging the ending of its occupation, Apartheid and discriminations, and accepts refugees to return to their home land and properties.

This is our last peaceful resort. In response to Israel’s war on BDS, we ask that you intensify those measures.

8. That you create lobby groups in defense of Palestinian Christians. We ask that you publicly and legally challenge Christian organizations that discredit our work and legitimacy.

9. We therefore propose as a matter of the greatest urgency that you create a strategic program within WCC similar to the Program “To Combat Racism” to lead efforts to lobby, advocate and develop active programs towards justice and peace in Palestine and Israel and work on maintaining the presence of the Palestinian Christians through supporting their organizations, church work and peaceful efforts.

As faithful witnesses, we acknowledge, affirm and continue the long standing prophetic tradition, especially the one started by the Amman Call and articulated in the Kairos Palestine document. We fully grasp the pressure church leaders are facing here and abroad not to speak the truth, and it is because of this that we are raising this call.

Things are beyond urgent. We are on the verge of a catastrophic collapse. The current status-quo is unsustainable. This could be our last chance to achieve a just peace. As a Palestinian Christian community, this could be our last opportunity to save the Christian presence in this land. Our only hope as Christians comes from the fact that in Jerusalem, the city of God, and our city, there is an empty tomb, and Jesus Christ who triumphed over death and sin, brought to us and to all humanity, new life.

We are hard pressed on every side, but not crushed; perplexed, but not in despair; persecuted, but not abandoned; struck down, but not destroyed. (2 Cor. 4:8-9)

ACSWP ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 12-03

Advice & Counsel on Item 12-03—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

Item 12-03 requests that the General Assembly create a task force to respond to a nine-point letter from Christian organizations in Palestine and Israel.
The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 12-03, with amendment to Recommendations 2. and 3. as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through and with brackets; text to be added or inserted is shown with an underline and with brackets.]

2. [Create a task force of twelve representatives from all relevant, appropriate, official PC(USA) staff, committees, task forces, and mission networks [are directed to continue to respond affirmatively] to examine the NCCOP’s nine-part call to ecumenical solidarity for justice for Palestinians in the West Bank, Gaza, in Israel, throughout refugee camps and the diaspora. [The task force will be as informed by existing policy statements of previous General Assemblies.]

3. Instruct the [task force] bodies named above, coordinated by the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy, to make recommendations to the 224th General Assembly (2020) as necessary in continuing to act in solidarity with our partners in Palestine and Israel, and to bring a full report of its meetings and activity.

Congruent with our current missiology, this overture recognizes the primacy of faith actors in Israel/Palestine for determining their own needs and agenda. It calls on the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to listen to the words of Palestinian Christians, represented by the National Coalition of Christians Organizations in Palestine. It correctly assumes that the voices of the people of Palestine are the most important voices in assessing and understanding the crisis and the current needs.

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is already responding, however, to the heartfelt and incisive letter from the Palestinian Christians and does not want any of its already affirmative responses slowed by the task force proposed, given that current policy supports action on the nine points. The most controversial point, using the term apartheid, is being done now by Jewish as well as Arab Israelis and Palestinians. Commissioners may determine that it should be formally considered but, in light of the Gaza killings especially, apartheid seems an indisputable term for the separation wall and other enforcements of second-class status and lack of human rights.

To the extent that a study is required of new conditions, in consultation with World Mission we believe that our Palestinian partners can help guide the more focused study of Jerusalem that we believe is warranted. Thus, this item and Item 12-04 are partly answered by support for Item 12-08.

Advice & Counsel on Item 12-03—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns.

The Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 12-03. The National Coalition of Christian Organizations in Palestine’s (NCCOP) Call to Ecumenical Solidarity is a heartfelt and urgent call from the beleaguered Christian community in Palestine. Years of military occupation preceded by the dismantling of their country under a hostile United Nations mandate that basically handed over their country to immigrants who sought to create a country of their own devoid of as many Palestinians as possible has led to severe hardships for the Christian community in Palestine. These events have subjected the Christian community to dangers that, if not corrected, may lead to the extinction of the Christian presence in the land of Jesus.

In the words of the Amman Call, which was endorsed by the 218th General Assembly (2008), “Enough is enough. No more words without deeds. It is time for action” (Minutes, 2008, Part I, p. 1145). Creating a task force to examine the NCCOP’s nine-part call to ecumenical solidarity for justice for Palestinians in the West Bank, Gaza, in Israel, throughout refugee camps and the diaspora is a necessary first step to action in support of peace with justice for all who suffer injustice in Palestine.

PMA COMMENT ON ITEM 12-03

Comment on Item 12-03—From the Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA).

The Presbyterian Mission Agency feels that the recommendation to create a task force may be unnecessary to fulfill the intent of this overture because we have already responded to NCCOP’s call issued in June 2017. As part of a solidarity visit to Palestinian Christians in Advent 2017, a delegation from the PC(USA), led by the Stated Clerk, met with representatives of the NCCOP to discuss this June call, and in line with existing policy statements and actions of General Assembly reaffirmed our support for the Palestinian Christian community. By the same token, when events earlier in the year suggested that the WCC’s commitment to the Palestinian community was wavering (events that led to the NCCOP’s open letter), the Stated Clerk wrote to the WCC expressing our resolve to stand firm alongside our Palestinian sisters and brothers, and encouraged them to do the same, and we remain in partnership with them to that end.

Item 12-04

The assembly answered Item 12-04 by the action taken on Item 12-03. See pp. 13, 76.

On Responding to the Open Letter from the National Coalition of Christian Organizations in Palestine (NCCOP) to the World Council of Churches and the Ecumenical Movement—From the Presbytery of San Francisco.

The Presbytery of San Francisco overtures the 223rd General Assembly (2018) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to:

1. Formally receive and acknowledge the letter from the National Coalition of Christian Organizations in Palestine (NCCOP).
2. Create a task force with representatives from all relevant, appropriate, official PC(USA) staff, committees, task forces, and mission networks to examine the NCCOP’s nine-part call to ecumenical solidarity for justice for Palestinians in the West Bank, Gaza, in Israel, throughout refugee camps and the diaspora.

3. Following this recommendation, instruct the task force to determine the PC(USA) response and invite further ecumenical dialogue, most especially with the World Council of Churches, in that regard.

4. Instruct the Stated Clerk to invite and encourage further ecumenical dialogue with our partner denominations, most especially with the World Council of Churches, in that regard.

Rationale

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has been a leader among its ecumenical peers in responding to the many calls for justice that have come from the Palestinian community for over a decade.

The 218th General Assembly (2008) endorsed “the ‘Amman Call’ regarding Arab-Israeli peace, issued by the World Council of Churches’ conference, ‘Churches Together for Peace and Justice in the Middle East,’ at Amman, Jordan, June 18–20, 2007, including its affirmation of the UN resolutions that are the basis of a projected ‘two-state’ solution, a shared Jerusalem, and the human rights of refugees and occupied peoples, its call to resist extremism and push for reconciliation, and its commitment to imperatives of ecumenical solidarity in action for Just Peace, directing that the Amman Call be printed in the Minutes of the General Assembly and considered in any study processes of the church” (Minutes, 2008, Part I, p. 1137).

In addition, the report made numerous recommendations that the church believed would help lead to justice and peace for both Palestine and Israel.

The 220th General Assembly (2012) called for the boycott of all Israeli products coming from the occupied Palestinian territories and called upon individual PC(USA) congregations to consider how they would respond to the call issued by the 2009 ecumenical Palestine Christian call for economic solidarity towards a just peace in Israel and Palestine that came through the Kairos Palestine Document, which was unanimously accepted by the heads of the leaders of all Christian traditions in Palestine (Minutes, 2012, Part I p. 1366).

The 221st General Assembly (2014) voted to divest from Caterpillar, Hewlett-Packard, and Motorola Solutions for profiting from nonpeaceful pursuits in the Occupied Palestinian Territories (Minutes, 2014, Part I, p. 264). It also called for a full review of the longstanding and largely unexamined PC(USA) policy supporting a “two-state solution” in Israel and Palestine (Ibid).

The 222nd General Assembly (2016) acted in the following ways:

1. Approved the two-state study commissioned by the 221st General Assembly entitled: “Israel-Palestine: For Human Values in the Absence of a Just Peace” written by the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2016, Part I, pp. 469ff).

2. Called for the Prayerful Study of the Palestinian Civil Society Call for Boycott, Divestment and Sanctions (BDS).

3. Advocated for the safety and well-being of the children of Palestine and Israel.

4. Affirmed Nonviolent Means of Resistance Against Human Oppression—which is an affirmation of the economic strategies of Presbyterians for over a century seeking to effect justice for oppressed peoples in many different situations in the United States and throughout the world.

There can be no denying, historically speaking, that the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has established a consistent record of supporting the Palestinian people in their pursuit of a just peace in Palestine and Israel and throughout the world.

The National Coalition of Christian Organizations in Palestine call is the latest in a long tradition of Palestinian Christians calling for justice in their homeland. As the writers of this document make abundantly clear: “Things are beyond urgent. We are on the verge of a catastrophic collapse. The current status-quo is unsustainable. This could be our last chance to achieve a just peace.”

We recognize that discussion of this document will engender much debate within our denomination and throughout the ecumenical Christian community. At the very least, as a church that has partnered with Palestinian Christians and Muslims for the cause of nonviolent peacemaking for well over a decade, it is our obligation to take this latest call seriously and the way Presbyterians do that is to study and dialogue and respond. This overture calls for us to continue our solidarity in this way. This is especially critical in a time when our Palestinian Christian partners are open about sharing their struggles and questions about how long their witness as followers of Jesus Christ can last under a brutal occupation that does not respect the faiths of any of the occupied.

Learn to do right; seek justice. Defend the oppressed. (Isa. 1:17)

Background

As we meet this month in Bethlehem in occupied Palestine, we are still suffering from 100 years of injustice and oppression that were inflicted on the Palestinian people beginning with the unjust and unlawful Balfour declaration, intensified through the Nakba and the influx of refugees, followed by the Israeli occupation of the West Bank including East Jerusalem and Gaza and the fragmentation of our people and our land through policies of isolation and confiscation of land, and the building of Jewish-only settlements and the Apartheid Wall.

Could it be that we have reached this “impossible moment” because things were built from the very beginning—a hundred years ago—on an unjust premise? Should we expect that such an unjust declaration will create anything but strife and destruction?

Today is also an opportunity to remember the Amman Call which was proclaimed ten years ago. We are thankful to those who stood with us back then in costly solidarity; those who stood for truth and justice. We are also concerned that ten years later the situation has been worsening on the ground and still deteriorating. Like other initiatives advocating end of occupation, the Amman Call did not achieve its goals in building and achieving just peace and we must ask ourselves today—why?

We are also concerned by Israel’s systemic assault on Palestinian creative resistance, and on our partners worldwide who use this method to pressure Israel to end the occupation. “God blesses those who hunger and thirst for justice, for they will be satisfied.” (Matthew 5:6)

“Blessed are those who are persecuted because of righteousness (Justice), for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. Blessed are you when people insult you, persecute you and falsely say all kinds of evil against you because of me”. (Matthew 5:10–11)

As we stand in front of this “impossible moment”, it gives us no pleasure to say that “we told you so” eight years ago when we declared the moment as a Kairos moment! We stand facing the impossible, but we have not lost hope, since as followers of the Risen One, we are the people of hope. However, we need you and we need you now more than ever. We need your costly solidarity. We need brave women and men who are willing to stand in the forefront. This is no time for shallow diplomacy Christians. We urge you to hear our call and adopt the following:

1. That you call things as they are: recognize Israel as an apartheid state in terms of international law and in agreement of what a person like Desmond Tutu said and as the UN ESCWA report said: “Israel is guilty of imposing an apartheid regime on the Palestinian people”. We are disturbed by the fact that States and churches are dealing with Israel as if the situation were normal, ignoring the reality of occupation, discrimination and daily death in the land. Just as churches united to end apartheid in South Africa and whereby the WCC played a courageous and pivotal prophetic and leadership role, we expect you to do the same!

2. That you unequivocally condemn the Balfour declaration as unjust, and that you demand from the UK that it asks forgiveness from the Palestinian people and compensates for the losses. We ask that churches and Christians to support the Palestinians in their request for justice. It was his infamous declaration, after all that laid the ground for the concept of an ethno-religious state – the very same thing our region is suffering today.

3. That you take a clear and the strongest theological stand against any theology or Christian group that justifies the occupation and privileges one nation over the other based on ethnicity or a covenant. We ask that you adopt and live the theology suggested by Kairos Palestine and that you organize conferences to bring awareness towards this end.

4. That you take a stand against religious extremism and against any attempt to create a religious state in our land or region. We ask that you support us in combating the foundations of extremism and that you seek our council when acting against religious extremism so that you do not jeopardize and harm our standing here.

5. That you revisit and challenge your religious dialogue partners, and that you are willing to even withdraw from the partnership if needed – if the occupation and injustices in Palestine and Israel are not challenged.

6. That you lead campaigns for church leaders and pilgrims to visit Bethlehem and other Palestinian cities on this side of the wall in cooperation with Palestinian tourist and pilgrimage agencies, in response to recent attempts by Israel. We ask that you publicly challenge any attempt by Israel or other Christians that discourage pilgrims from visiting Palestinian places.

7. That you defend our right and duty to resist the occupation creatively and nonviolently. We ask that you speak in support of economic measures that pressure Israel to stop the occupation and go further to support sport, cultural and academic measures against Israel until it complies with international law and UN resolutions urging the ending of its occupation, Apartheid and discriminations, and accepts refugees to return to their home land and properties. This is our last peaceful resort. In response to Israel’s war on BDS, we ask that you intensify that measures.

8. That you create lobby groups in defense of Palestinian Christians. We ask that you publicly and legally challenge Christian organizations that discredit our work and legitimacy.

9. We therefore propose as a matter of the greatest urgency that you create a strategic program within WCC similar to the Program “To Combat Racism” to lead efforts to lobby, advocate and develop active programs towards justice and peace in Palestine and Israel and work on maintaining the presence of the Palestinian Christians through supporting their organizations, church work and peaceful efforts.

As faithful witnesses, we acknowledge, affirm and continue the long standing prophetic tradition, especially the one started by the Amman Call and articulated in the Kairos Palestine document. We fully grasp the pressure church leaders are facing here and abroad not to speak the truth, and it is because of this that we are raising this call.

Things are beyond urgent. We are on the verge of a catastrophic collapse. The current status-quo is unsustainable. This could be our last chance to achieve a just peace. As a Palestinian Christian community, this could be our last opportunity to save the Christian presence in this land. Our only hope as Christians comes from the fact that in Jerusalem, the city of God, and our city, there is an empty tomb, and Jesus Christ who triumphed over death and sin, brought to us and to all humanity, new life.

We are hard pressed on every side, but not crushed; perplexed, but not in despair; persecuted, but not abandoned; struck down, but not destroyed. (2 Cor. 4:8–9)

ACREC ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 12-04

Advice & Counsel on Item 12-04—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns.

The Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 12-04.

This is a well-written and reasoned overture that seeks to open an honest dialogue with Jewish colleagues regarding the behavior of the Government of Israel towards its Palestinian citizens whether in Israel or the occupied territories. For too long, the fear of being labeled “anti-Semitic” has muzzled true, open, and meaningful dialogue concerning the denial of justice for Palestinians. As this overture states, “our relationship with Jesus Christ, his call to justice and peace, surpasses all others, including our interfaith relationships.”

Courage to speak the truth can be costly, but it is liberating.

ACSWP ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 12-04

Advice & Counsel on Item 12-04—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

Item 12-04 requests that the General Assembly create a task force to respond to a nine-point letter from Christian organizations in Palestine and Israel.

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) answer Item 12-04 with our recommended action on Item 12-03, as amended.

PMA COMMENT ON ITEM 12-04

Comment on Item 12-04—From the Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA).

The Presbyterian Mission Agency feels that the recommendation to create a task force may be unnecessary to fulfill the intent of this overture because we have already responded to NCCOP’s call issued in June 2017. As part of a solidarity visit to Palestinian Christians in Advent 2017, a delegation from the PC(USA), led by the Stated Clerk, met with representatives of the NCCOP to discuss this June call, and in line with existing policy statements and actions of General Assembly reaffirmed our support for the Palestinian Christian community. By the same token, when events earlier in the year suggested that the WCC’s commitment to the Palestinian community was wavering (events that led to the NCCOP’s open letter), the Stated Clerk wrote to the WCC expressing our resolve to stand firm alongside our Palestinian sisters and brothers, and encouraged them to do the same, and we remain in partnership with them to that end.

Item 12-05

[In response to Item 12-05, the assembly approved an alternate resolution. See pp. 75, 76.]

Alternate Resolution:
The 223rd General Assembly (2018)

1. Urges its members, congregations, presbyteries, and national staff units, to reach out in open, truthful dialogue with our Jewish colleagues, engaging the issue of the Israeli occupation of Palestine.

2. Challenges dialogue partners to build on common values for justice and peace in Israel/Palestine.

3. Facilitates the above dialogue by directing the Presbyterian Mission Agency to consider preparing study resources and urge presbyteries to provide opportunities for study to further educate church members about truthful, open interfaith dialogue.

On Jewish-Christian Dialogue and the Israeli Occupation of Palestine—From the Presbytery of San Francisco.

The Presbytery of San Francisco directs the 223rd General Assembly (2018) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to:

1. Urge its members, congregations, presbyteries, and national staff units, to reach out in open, truthful dialogue with our Jewish colleagues, engaging the issue of the Israeli occupation of Palestine.

2. Encourage freedom and boldness to criticize practices and policies of Israel, as we do any other global political entity, without fear of being labelled anti-Semitic.

3. Insist that boundaries for acceptable discourse on Israel not be set unilaterally, but mutually agreed upon by all responsible partners in the discourse.

4. Listen to and acknowledge Christian voices suffering under occupation, which may counter the voices of those who live in comfort with full equal rights, thousands of miles from that same occupation.

5. Articulate our Reformed faith with confidence, humility, and integrity, and anticipate respect for our own faith convictions, as we also would respect others.

6. Assure confidentiality to Jewish colleagues who share perspectives that are critical of Israel, and which may compromise their congregational or organizational standing.

7. Challenge dialogue partners to build on common values for justice and peace in Israel/Palestine. If persistence dialogue fails to transform, withdrawing from that partnership may be necessary.

8. Facilitate the above dialogue by directing the Presbyterian Mission Agency to consider preparing study resources and urge presbyteries to provide opportunities for study to further educate church members about truthful, open interfaith dialogue.

Rationale

Collegiality of relations between Presbyterians and our Jewish colleagues in the decades following the Holocaust, has included healthy and necessary self-examination regarding Christian anti-Semitism in our scriptures and our theology, as well as partnership in a wide range of social justice issues. Yet the issue of Israel is uncharacteristically fraught with tension in recent years. This overture seeks to open a more honest, searching, and respectful season of dialogue that breaks new ground in these relationships.

Jews and Christians share the same Abrahamic tradition, the same God, values, holy text, and the Holy Land, where Abraham, Moses, and Jesus walked. Much of our interfaith conversations center on safe programs and issues, and while meaningful, we tend to avoid the single-most consequential issue of our day for Jews, Muslims, and Christians.

For too long the foundation of dialogue rests upon ongoing Christian repentance for anti-Jewishness, acceptance of Israel as central for Jewish identity, and unencumbered by any substantive criticism of Israel.
When there is resistance to dialogue from others, we relinquish our resolve and therefore are complicit to injustice by our silence.

Our relationship with Jesus Christ, his call to justice and peace, surpasses all others, including our interfaith relationships. We must “stand by people in any form of suffering and need, ... [to] stand where the Lord stands, ... against injustice and with the wronged; that in following Christ, the church must witness against ... the powerful and privileged who selfishly seek their own interests and thus control and harm others” (Book of Confessions, Belhar Confession, 10.7).

It may be that there is no other hope than through our united Jewish and Christian efforts that the occupation might end and peace be attainable.

Jewish leadership, in the U.S., Israel, and abroad, privately acknowledge that the occupation is apartheid, systematic ethnic cleansing, unsustainable as colonization, and that a Jewish state is incompatible with democracy. They acknowledge that Zionism is based on racism, is not equivalent to Judaism, and does not reflect basic Jewish values. Rabbis who avoid criticizing Israel for fear of dividing their congregations or losing donors, are in a difficult position. While stifling themselves, they desire this conversation.

While being sympathetic to the state of Israel as a response to the atrocities of the holocaust, it is not exempt from moral responsibility or accountability within the framework of international law and behavior demanded of any other nation. The United States Department of State has declared: “Criticism of Israel similar to that leveled against any other country cannot be regarded as anti-Semitic.”

Our U.S. special relationship with Israel provides it with more than one-third of all U.S. foreign aid. We have a special responsibility to make sure that aid is used to promote peace, not perpetuate social injustice. Our complicity with Israel obligates us to address this concern.

“As much as we can, we should meet friendship with friendship, hostility with kindness, generosity with gratitude, persecution with forbearance, truth with agreement, and error with truth” http://www.pcusa.org/site_media/media/uploads/oga/pdf/principles_interfaith_dialogue.pdf.

Responding to People Who Say Criticizing Israel’s Occupation of Palestine is “Anti-Israel”

Many Jews and Christians in Israel and the United States who strongly support the State of Israel are also deeply troubled by Israel’s occupation of the Palestinian territories in the West Bank and Gaza. It is with pain and sorrow that friends of Israel witness Israel’s oppressive policies and actions in the West Bank. It is with great sadness the promise of human rights for all peoples in the Holy Land for which we hoped, is unrealized, replaced instead by policies that promote the interests and rights of Israeli Jewish citizens, and that deny human rights and a nationality to Palestinians.

It is hard for many Americans and Christians to openly criticize Israeli actions. We may fear disturbing our relationships with some of our Jewish or Christian brothers and sisters. It is difficult for many Christians to publicly criticize the policies of Israel’s government for fear that legitimate criticism may be seen as anti-Israel or anti-Semitic. Some Christians believe they must silence their criticism of Israel’s polices because of the history of the Holocaust and the failure of many Christians to speak out at the time.

The Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza and the infrastructure of the illegal Israeli settlements, by-pass roads, checkpoints, and separation wall/barrier that constitute the oppression of the Palestinian people are in plain view for all to see. But when confronted with criticism, those who defend the military occupation often use the following tactics:

- Ignore irrefutable facts on the ground: illegal settlements, checkpoints, separation wall, bypass roads, and denial of Palestinian human rights.
- Deflect, confuse, and conflate issues to divert attention from the facts on the ground.
- Intimidate those who oppose Israel’s laws, practices, and policies that suppress Palestinian human rights with accusations that they are anti-Israel, anti-Semitic, and/or support terrorism.
- Never call the Palestinian people “Palestinians.” Call them “Arabs” and then cite anti-Israel actions by Iran, Syria, Hezbollah, and other Arab states to justify Israel’s occupation of Palestine.
- Claim Israel is the victim, not the oppressor.
- Ask why critics of Israel’s practices focus on Israel instead of other world problem areas.

Responses to false claims that critics of Israel’s occupation practices and policies in the West Bank and Gaza are “anti-Israel”:

Is criticism of Israel’s occupation of the West Bank and Gaza “anti-Israel”? No. Such criticism intentionally focuses on Israel’s laws, practices, and policies that promote the occupation of Palestinian territories and not Israel’s right to exist. Most critics of Israel’s occupation of Palestine also strongly support the right of Israel
Many Israeli and American Jews oppose settlement colonies on Palestinian land, all of which are illegal under international law. Within the Israeli and U.S. Jewish communities there is a growing, active, and passionate debate about whether Israel’s occupation of the West Bank and Gaza is in the best interest of Israel. Each side in this debate is pro-Israel, trying to discern how to assure a secure, viable, and sustainable state. Christians must support the pro-Israel positions that advocate for human rights and justice for the Palestinian people, and reject the positions that promote the systematic oppression of the Palestinian people. When patriotic Americans spoke out against slavery, racial segregation, or the Vietnam and Iraqi wars, some Americans falsely accused them of being anti-American. Critics of Israel’s occupation of Palestine may also be falsely accused of being anti-Israel, but they are not. They are pro-human rights.

Is criticism of Israel’s occupation of the West Bank and Gaza anti-Semitic?

No. Anti-Semitism is discrimination against or prejudice or hostility toward Jews. Criticism of Israeli government actions is not criticism of Jews as people or of Jewish religion or culture. Many Jewish individuals and human rights organizations oppose Israel’s continued occupation of Palestine. Christians must, with confidence, reject any politically motivated charges of anti-Semitism that are made to silence legitimate criticism of Israel’s apartheid practices. This kind of hyperbolic language is untrue, harms civil discourse and serves to hamper efforts to monitor and prevent Israeli human rights violations.

Why must Christians speak out against the Israeli occupation of Palestine?

After World War II when the horror of the Holocaust was revealed, Jews around the world said “never again.” Many Christians around the world were shamed by their silence during the 1930s as Jews in Germany were given special cards identifying their religion, had their businesses shut down, had their land expropriated, and were confined to live in separated enclaves or ghettos. Christians vowed that never again would they be silent if a government passed laws establishing and maintaining the domination by one ethnic group over another ethnic group through systematic separation, oppression, and denial of basic human rights. Silence in the face of evil was wrong then, and it is wrong now. Christians spoke out in the 1950s against segregation in the United States and in the 1970s against apartheid in South Africa. They must again raise their voices and speak out against Israel’s violation of human rights and international law in Palestine.

How may criticism of Israel’s occupation policies affect interfaith relations between Jews and Christians?

Building strong interfaith relationships with our Jewish brothers and sisters is important. They are built on mutual interest, honesty, and integrity. Interfaith conversations encompass social justice issues such as hunger, homelessness, discrimination, human rights, war, and peace. Israel’s policies in occupied Palestine are but one issue. The Jewish community itself is divided on it. Honest dialog ultimately builds stronger relationships, while silence erodes them. Through honest dialog we may find Jewish people who support the occupation and others who agree it must end. We must have confidence that our interfaith relationships, built on many social justice issues, are strong enough to sustain a disagreement on the wisdom of Israel’s continued occupation of the West Bank and Gaza.

Is Israel’s militarily occupation of Palestine needed for security reasons?

No. At any time since 1967 Israel could have allowed the United Nations to occupy the West Bank and provide security. U.N. peacekeeping missions have been successful in dozens of countries. However, if the U.N. had occupied Palestine to provide security in 1967 or anytime thereafter, it would have preserved the land for residents of a Palestinian state and not allowed Israel to expropriate Palestinian land to build Jewish settlement colonies. Israel does not need to occupy the West Bank for security reasons. It chooses to occupy the West Bank so it can expand its borders and dominate the Palestinian people.

Why single out Israel when social injustices occur in many middle eastern countries?

Since Israel receives more than one-third of all U.S. foreign aid, we are responsible and accountable for its use to prevent social injustice, not to perpetuate it. Israel is the world’s 16th richest country, has the 4th largest army, is the 3rd largest arms producer, the 6th largest arms dealer, the 4th largest nuclear power (refusing to sign the nuclear non-proliferation treaty), and has defied seventy United Nations Security Council resolutions seeking peaceful reconciliation between Israelis and Palestinian. U.S. complicity with Israel obligates us to address this.

Do Israel’s laws, policies, and practices towards Palestinians constitute apartheid?

Under the 1973 United Nations convention, “apartheid” means acts committed for the purpose of establishing and maintaining domination by one racial group over any other racial group and systematically oppressing them. Practices constituting apartheid include:

- Denying basic human freedoms, including the freedom of movement, residence, opinion, expression, peaceful assembly, and freedom from arbitrary arrest and imprisonment.

223rd General Assembly (2018)
Denying basic human rights, including the right to a nationality, to education, to leave and to return to one’s country, to work and to form recognized trade unions.

- Expropriating landed property belonging to a racial group or groups or to members thereof.
- Legislative measures, designed to divide the population along racial lines by the creation of separate reserves and ghettos for the members of a racial group or groups.

In May 1967, Palestinian residents of the West Bank, as Jordanian citizens, enjoyed most of the basic human rights and freedoms of a modern nation. But since June 1967, these residents have been stripped of most of these rights by an Israeli military occupation that systematically distinguishes, excludes, dominates, and oppresses Palestinians on grounds of ethnicity. The Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza and the infrastructure of the illegal Israeli settlements, bypass roads, checkpoints, and separation wall/barrier that constitute the oppression of the Palestinian people, constitutes apartheid as defined by the United Nations.

ACSWP ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 12-05

Advice & Counsel on Item 12-05—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 12-05.

This overture astutely identifies areas of particular contention in discussions about Israel/Palestine. Understanding that interfaith dialogue can too often eschew particularly difficult questions, for the sake of a surface collegiality, this overture seeks to find ways to converse both collegially and meaningfully about the human rights crisis in the occupied territories.

The ACSWP would suggest that along with seeking new ways to create dialogue, the overture might also consider ways to create shared worship. As both Jews and Christians ultimately draw their ethical convictions from faith perspectives, sharing worship space can often create the trust necessary to engage in hard discussion.

ACREC ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 12-05

Advice & Counsel on Item 12-05—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns.

The Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 12-05.

Seventy years after the destruction of the State of Palestine, an honest and truthful acknowledgement of the injustice inflicted upon all Palestinian citizens is much overdue—as is an honest and truthful discussion with our Jewish colleagues. It is also much overdue to hold the government of Israel accountable to international law and moral behavior as we do any other global entity.

This is an ambitious and courageous overture that deserves the full support of the PC(USA). True and honest dialogue with our Jewish colleagues while safeguarding confidentiality will surely be a positive step in fostering partnership for peace with justice for all in Israel and Palestine.

The rationale of the overture discusses the concept of the crime of apartheid as defined by the 2002 Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court. “Apartheid” is a label that many Presbyterians are loath to use even after acknowledging that the government of Israel is guilty of this crime. The term “apartheid” is immediately comprehensible and is useful in communicating the realities of the Israeli occupation of Palestine.

Item 12-06

[The assembly disapproved Item 12-06. See pp. 13, 76.]

For the Protection of the Children of Israel and Palestine—From the Presbytery of Philadelphia

The Presbytery of Philadelphia overtures the 223rd General Assembly (2018) to protect the children of Israel and Palestine by:

1. Continuing to urge the State of Israel to continue its work to implement changes in its military courts according to the report offered by UNICEF in March of 2013.
2. Condemning the militarization of children in Palestine who are forced to dig tunnels, indoctrinated into the military contrary to international law, used as messengers for terrorist organizations, and armed and encouraged to attack innocent civilians.

3. Condemning the production of educational literature and curriculum that dehumanizes either Israeli or Palestinian children or attempts to “cleanse” the historical narrative of the Palestinian and the Jewish people.

4. Ceasing support for those entities that continue to put children in harms way through such activities as listed above.

5. Supporting efforts to bridge divides through the creation and implementation of coexistence and engagement programs that bring Israeli and Palestinian children to study and grow together.

Rationale

The 222nd General Assembly (2016) approved Item 08-02. On Advocating for the Safety and Well-Being of Children of Palestine and Israel1—From the Synod of the Covenant.

That overture was originally written with a focus on the practices of the Israeli military forces in the Occupied Territories, as they pertained to the treatment of Palestinian children. It detailed many practices, which were detrimental to children, both physically and emotionally.

The 222nd General Assembly (2016) approved Item 08-02 with one added recommendation, which stated: “Call on the Palestinian Authority, Hamas, and the government of Israel to denounce and cease the incitement of violence against children or at the hands of children” (Minutes, 2016, Part I, p. 458).

The added recommendation was an attempt to recognize that there is responsibility on both sides for the ways children of both sides are treated. The majority of the 2016 Item 08-02 and the detail provided as the basis of that overture, however, were based on practices of the Israeli military.2

For the Protection of the Children of Israel and Palestine is a balancing effort, detailing some of the ways in which Hamas has used and is using children to prosecute its military goals.3 While the PC(USA) has condemned the State of Israel for their failings in these areas, the PC(USA) has not held Palestinians accountable for their own actions that place their children in harm’s way, with the same rigor.

We do not view this new overture as breaking any particular new ground. Rather, it intends to keep the fact of violence against children in the public discourse (a laudable goal), this time using the practices of Hamas as the example.4

For years, Hamas has sponsored summer camps to train children as young as thirteen years old in which they are shown how to use military weapons. Hamas has also used children to build tunnels under the border between Gaza and Israel, behavior that mirrors the use of children to dig in the mines of the Victorian era in the UK. Countless lives have been lost digging these tunnels of war.5

Books found in more than four hundred UNRWA schools in the West Bank and Gaza incite children between first and ninth grades to kill Israelis and sacrifice themselves as martyrs.6

It is illegal under international law to use children younger than eighteen as soldiers.7 The use of children for military purposes is outlawed by the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court, the UN, the Fourth Geneva Convention, and the Convention on the Rights of the Child.8

Endnotes

Concurrence to Item 12-06 from the Presbyteries of Beaver-Butler and de Cristo.

ACSWP ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 12-06

Advice & Counsel on Item 12-06—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) disapprove Item 12-06.

While the stated goal of this overture, to protect the children of Israel and Palestine, is laudable and indeed consistent with past General Assembly actions, and while the mistreatment of children by actors on both sides of the Israel/Palestine conflict merits our attention and our condemnation, this is not the overture to further such actions.

Besides a conflation of Hamas and the Palestinian authority, creating disjunction between some of the recommendations and the rationale, there are two significant problems with the overture as written.

The first problem concerns sourcing. This overture is overwhelmingly sourced by popular news articles. These articles have their place, but data from primary sources should be prioritized. Where primary data is noted in this article it is at times used misleadingly or inaccurately. For example, Footnote 4 suggests that the UNICEF report noted deals significantly with the practices of Hamas. It does not, detailing instead the treatment of children in Israeli military detention, as its title suggests.

The second problem concerns the issue of balance. This overture is identified as “a balancing effort” with the implication that such balance is a good of itself. However, one of the significant issues in the Israel / Palestine conflict is precisely the lack of balance, or to speak more precisely, the asymmetrical access to power. To present a narrative that suggests the welfare of children is equally threatened by both sides in this conflict is an inaccurate narrative, inconsistent with the findings of the UNICEF report cited in this overture, with the latest report on Israel / Palestine from Human Rights Watch, and with the conclusions of the report Israel/Palestine: For Human Values in the Absence of a Just Peace, approved by the 222nd General Assembly (2016).

ACREC ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 12-06

Advice & Counsel on Item 12-06—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns.

The Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) disapprove Item 12-06.

The protection of children—both Israeli and Palestinian—is moral and necessary. It is with some difficulty and hesitation, therefore, to disapprove the overture. This decision is based not upon the intent of the title of the overture, but rather on the overture’s basis upon questionable resources and upon the lack of a comprehensive discussion of issues.

The rationale of this overture states its intent to balance the presentation about detrimental practices against children. Experiences of children under occupation differ somewhat depending upon the geographic area. In the West Bank, Palestinian children are treated under an oppressive military law while Israeli children living in the illegal colonies/settlements are treated under Israeli civil law. These two laws differ greatly in their treatment of children. The condition of children in the West Bank was considered by the 222nd General Assembly (2016), which overwhelmingly passed an overture detailing the violation of the human rights of Palestinian children in the West Bank.

This overture opens up the question of conditions in the Gaza Strip and fails to detail in its entirety the condition of children there. As an example, the issue of children digging tunnels is considered. It is true that Israeli children need not dig tunnels for their sustenance; however Palestinian children in the Gaza Strip have done so in the past. These tunnels were necessitated by a more than ten-year blockade of the Gaza Strip by the government of Israel. Tunnels were dug so that food, medical supplies, and other necessities for life could be brought into the Gaza Strip. And there is no evidence that children were forced to dig other than by a need to earn money for life’s necessities for themselves and their families. Another issue considered is schoolbooks that incite violence. The overture claims that schoolbooks in United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA) schools incite violence against Israelis. UNRWA denies these claims. Sources for this assertion are questionable and almost an equal number of sources cite Israeli schoolbooks that incite racism and hatred of Palestinians. These practices are, when they exist, regrettable whether in Israeli or Palestinian schoolbooks.

Here are just a few issues within the Gaza Strip that are not considered by this overture:

- Malnutrition leading to high rates of stunting of children below the age of five. Malnutrition and stunting have many bad health sequelae in later life for these children. (Gordon, Nahida H, Halileh, Samia. An Analysis of Cross Sectional Survey Data of Stunting Among Palestinian Children Less Than Five Years of Age. Maternal and Child Health Journal, ISSN 1092-
In Khan Younis governorate, one of the worst affected areas, the consumption of water with high concentration of nitrates (due to lack of electricity to maintain the sanitation infrastructure—caused by the Israeli blockade) compromises the transmission of oxygen in the blood and could cause an increase of the potentially lethal “blue-baby syndrome” among infants in the Gaza Strip.” (See UNITED NATIONS Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs occupied Palestinian territory SPECIAL FOCUS August 2009. See also Abu Naser, A, et al., “Relation of nitrate contamination of groundwater with methemoglobin level among infants in Gaza,” Eastern Mediterranean Health Journal, Volume 13, No.5, [September–October 2007].) Blue-baby syndrome can lead to coma and death. And conditions have worsened further.

The United Nations Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs-Occupied Palestinian Territories posted on June 23, 2015, the following casualty statistics due to the 2014 Israeli bombardment of the Gaza Strip:

- 551 children were killed; and
- more than 1,500 Palestinian children were orphaned (https://www.ochaopt.org/content/key-figures-2014-hostilities).

In summary, even though this overture considers some important issues concerning the welfare of children, it is poorly researched and is not comprehensive.

PMA COMMENT ON ITEM 12-06

Comment on Item 12-06—From the Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA).

The Presbyterian Mission Agency finds this to be a problematic overture on two counts:

2. The intent of this overture as indicated in the rationale is to criticize the practices of Hamas, yet in its recommendation there is no mention of this. Rather it speaks of “the militarization of children in Palestine” as if this were the policy and practice of the Palestinian Authority, yet offers no evidence for this. This conflation of Hamas with Palestine is misleading, and wrong.

On Urging RE/MAX to Stop Facilitating the Sale of Property in Israeli Settlement Colonies—From the Presbytery of Redwoods.

The Presbytery of the Redwoods overtures the 223rd General Assembly (2018) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to:

1. Call for RE/MAX, LLC to
   a. Do everything within its legal and moral power to stop facilitating the sale and rental of property in Israeli settlement colonies in East Jerusalem and the West Bank.
   b. Exclude settlement property listings from its global database.
   c. Publicly urge that RE/MAX Europe stop its franchises from selling or renting property in Israeli settlement colonies in East Jerusalem and the West Bank.

2. Urge members of the RE/MAX network in the United States to not refer clients to agents and brokers who are involved in the sale or rental of settlement properties in the occupied West Bank.

3. Direct the Stated Clerk to communicate this action to all other PC(USA) councils and entities and to communicate this action to RE/MAX, LLC.
Rationale

RE/MAX Supports and Profits from Israel’s Military Occupation of Palestinian Territories

RE/MAX, LLC, is an American company headquartered in Denver, Colorado. It has grown into a global real estate network of franchisee-owned-and-operated offices with more than 100,000 sales associates. RE/MAX Holdings, Inc., is publicly traded on the New York Stock Exchange as RMAX.

RE/MAX, LLC, owns the right to the RE/MAX brand and sells franchise and franchising rights. Regional franchise owners have the right to sell brokerage franchises in a specified region. RE/MAX Europe is a regional franchise that has rights to sell brokerage franchises in European countries and Israel. RE/MAX Israel is a franchise under RE/MAX Europe.

RE/MAX has been active in the Israeli market since 1995. It sells and rents houses and apartments in colonies reserved exclusively for Jews in the occupied West Bank and East Jerusalem. This is facilitating the distribution of illegally seized property in occupied Palestinian territory and assisting the Israeli government in its strategy of building settlements. RE/MAX takes advantage of the many financial incentives provided by Israel to increase the population of settlement colonies. These incentives include income tax deductions for Israeli citizens working in or investing in the illegal settlement colonies. In this way RE/MAX is supporting the Israeli occupation of Palestine and the human rights injustices suffered by Palestinians. In addition, RE/MAX is participating in housing discrimination because Israeli Christians, Muslims, and other non-Jews are restricted from purchasing settlement property.

The U.N. and the World Court Say Israeli Settlements Are Illegal and a Major Roadblock to Peace

There have been many United Nations Security Council resolutions and World Court rulings stating that Israeli settlements in the West Bank and East Jerusalem are illegal under international law. On December 23, 2016, the U.N. passed Resolution 2334 that reaffirms ten resolutions passed between 1967 and 2008 stating that Israel must withdraw from the Occupied Palestinian Territories. This resolution further states that the Security Council:

- Expresses grave concern that continuing Israeli settlement activities are dangerously imperiling the viability of the two-state solution based on the 1967 boundary lines.

- Reaffirms that the establishment by Israel of settlements in the Palestinian territory occupied since 1967, including East Jerusalem, has no legal validity and constitutes a flagrant violation under international law and a major obstacle to the achievement of the two-state solution and a just, lasting, and comprehensive peace.

- Reiterates its demand that Israel immediately and completely cease all settlement activities in the occupied Palestinian territory, including East Jerusalem, and that it fully respect all of its legal obligations in this regard.

- Underlines that it will not recognize any changes to the June 4, 1967, lines, including changes with regard to Jerusalem, other than those agreed to by the parties through negotiations.

- Stresses that the cessation of all Israeli settlement activities is essential for salvaging the two-state solution, and calls for affirmative steps to be taken immediately to reverse the negative trends on the ground that are imperiling the two-state solution.

The International Court of Justice issued an advisory opinion in 2004 declaring these settlements to be illegal. In 2012, UN Secretary General Ban Ki-Moon, in response to moves by Israel to legalize Israeli outposts, reiterated that all settlement activity is illegal. Similar criticism was advanced by the European Union and the United States, the United Kingdom, France, Russia, Arab countries, and of course Palestinians themselves.

U.S. Presidents Have Declared Israeli Settlement Colonies Are Illegal and a Major Roadblock to Peace

President Barack Obama: “The United States does not accept the legitimacy of continued Israeli settlements. This construction violates previous agreements and undermines efforts to achieve peace. It is time for these settlements to stop.”

President George W. Bush: “Consistent with the Mitchell plan, Israeli settlement activity in occupied territories must stop, and the occupation must end through withdrawal to secure and recognize boundaries, consistent with United Nations Resolutions 242 and 338.”

President Bill Clinton: “The Israeli people also must understand that ... the settlement enterprise and building bypass roads in the heart of what they already know will one day be part of a Palestinian state is inconsistent with the Oslo commitment that both sides negotiate a compromise.”

President George H. W. Bush: “Secretary Baker was speaking for this administration, and I strongly support what he said. ... It would make a big contribution to peace if these settlements would stop. That’s what the secretary was trying to say ... and I’m 100 percent for him.” President Bush was referring to the following statement by Secretary of State James Baker:
Every time I have gone to Israel in connection with the peace process on each of my trips I have been met with the announcement of new settlement activity. This does violate United States policy. It is the first thing that Arabs—Arab governments—the first thing that Palestinians in the territories—whose situation is really quite desperate—the first thing they raise when we talk to them. I don’t think there is any greater obstacle to peace than settlement activity that continues not only unabated but at an advanced pace.

President Ronald Reagan: “The Reagan Plan states that ‘the United States will not support the use of any additional land for the purpose of settlements during the transition period (5 years after Palestinian election for a self-governing authority).’ Indeed, the immediate adoption of a settlements freeze by Israel, more than any other action, could create the confidence needed for wider participation in these talks. Further settlement activity is in no way necessary for the security of Israel and only diminishes the confidence of the Arabs that a final outcome can be freely and fairly negotiated.”

President Jimmy Carter: “Our position on the settlements is very clear. We do not think they [settlements] are legal.”

PC (USA) General Assemblies Have Declared Israeli Settlements Are Illegal and a Roadblock to Peace

The 219th General Assembly (2010) reaffirmed many of the historical positions of the PC(USA) regarding Israel and Palestine, including:

- A call for the end of the Israeli occupation of Palestinian territories;
- An immediate freeze on both the establishment and expansion of Israeli settlements in the West Bank; and
- An immediate end to Israeli expropriation of Palestinian land and buildings in East Jerusalem.

The 220th General Assembly (2012) called for the boycott of all Israeli products coming from Israeli settlements in the occupied Palestinian Territories.

The 221st General Assembly (2014) took action to divest from three American companies that profit from the Israeli occupation of the West Bank and East Jerusalem.

The 222nd General Assembly (2016) called for the RE/MAX Corporation to cease selling property in Israeli settlements in the West Bank, and in East Jerusalem. This action called encourage Presbyterians to continue to be in dialogue with RE/MAX, LLC, to explore ways that it can stop facilitating the sale and rental of settlement properties in the occupied West Bank.

RE/MAX LLC Has Ceased Its Dialog with Presbyterians on the Issue of Selling Settlement Property

At the 222nd General Assembly (2016), there was an overture asking that RE/MAX cease selling property in Israeli settlements in the West Bank and East Jerusalem. One week prior to the General Assembly, the overture advocates received a letter from David Liniger, CEO of RE/MAX LLC, stating that the company had taken action to ensure that RE/MAX, LLC, will no longer receive any income from the sale of Jewish settlement properties in the West Bank. The letter also encouraged the overture advocates to be in continued dialog with RE/MAX on how the company could respond to concerns about the sale and rental of settlement property. The General Assembly therefore called for this dialog to continue.

On September 28, 2016, the overture advocates wrote a letter to the RE/MAX General Council with questions regarding steps that could be taken to cease its involvement in the sale and rental of property in Israeli settlement colonies. Despite monthly calls or emails asking for a response to this letter, RE/MAX has failed to respond as of June 2017. It therefore does not appear that RE/MAX LLC is interested in continued dialog.

RE/MAX Is Selling and Renting Settlement Properties to Which There Is No Clear Title

The most significant question posed to RE/MAX in the September 28, 2016, letter was “Has RE/MAX, LLC considered the problem that the title to a settlement property may be legally questionable because an occupying power does not have the right to create, modify, or destroy property rights in a territory that they occupy?”

This question is important because occupying powers, including the State of Israel, do not possess the sovereign power to create, modify or destroy property rights in territories they have occupied in the course of an international armed conflict. The purported property rights in Israeli settlements that are currently being marketed for sale or lease to consumers by RE/MAX affiliates have been created by acts of Israeli authorities—the ministry of finance for East Jerusalem properties, or the military commander for West Bank properties—who lack the authority to create them and who transfer possession over properties in the occupied territories to Israeli civilian nationals in flagrant violation of international law.

Background on Illegal Israeli Settlement Colonies in Palestine

There are 125 government-sanctioned Israeli settlements in the occupied West Bank of Palestine. In addition, there were approximately 100 “settlement outposts” located throughout the West Bank. There is a massive infrastructure of “Israeli-only” roads that connect the settlements and allow unrestricted settler movement but limited or no access for Palestinians. These roads and the walls and fences that border them, combined with Israeli land use restrictions, confines Palestinians to within sixty-four isolated enclaves. Palestinians must go through Israeli checkpoints to get from one enclave to another.

The construction of Israeli settlements colonies in the occupied West Bank and the Israeli only roads connecting settlements confine Palestinians to live within isolated and ever shrinking enclaves. To visualize the impact of the settlements and roads that connect them please refer to the reference map below.

ACSWP ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 12-07

Advice & Counsel on Item 12-07—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 12-07.

Item 12-07 calls for RE/MAX, LLC, an American company headquartered in Denver, Colorado, to cut its ties with real estate franchises that sell and rent Jewish-only housing in Israeli settlement colonies in the occupied West Bank of Palestine. This is in violation of the Fourth Geneva Convention, Article 49, which prohibits an occupying power from transferring its citizens to the occupied territories. It also violates RE/MAX’s International’s code of ethics, which states that its affiliates “shall undertake to eliminate any practice by real estate professionals in their community which could be damaging to the
The item urges members of the RE/MAX network in the United States to not refer clients to agents and brokers who are involved in the sale or rental of settlement properties in the occupied West Bank. The ACSWP recognizes that Presbyterians may be among the realty franchises within the RE/MAX network, yet notes the twofold nature of the concern. RE/MAX, LLC profits from franchises that support the Israeli colonization of Palestinian territories—illegal under international law and opposed by PC(USA), and participates in housing discrimination, because non-Jews are restricted from purchasing housing in Israeli settlements in the occupied West Bank.

The ACSWP also notes that since the passing of a similar overture in 2016 (Item 08-04), and despite attempts to further dialogue with RE/MAX about ceasing to profit from illegal settlement activity, RE/MAX has remained silent, necessitating a continued focus on the practice, in line with the actions passed by the 222nd General Assembly (2016).

The PC(USA) affiliated investment funds—the Pension Fund and Presbyterian Foundation—do not currently hold stock in RE/MAX, so MRTI is not in a position to advocate with them as a shareholder.

Advice & Counsel on Item 12-07—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns.

The Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 12-07.

Clearly the Israeli colonies in the occupied Palestinian territories are exclusively for Israeli citizens and are illegal under international law. Moreover, the United States government, along with many other countries including the United Kingdom, France, and the European Union, has long held that these colonies/settlements are an impediment to peace. These colonies are built on land belonging to Palestinians and therefore when RE/MAX is involved in the sale of what is essentially stolen properties, it violates a basic moral code.

Comment on Item 12-07—From the Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA).

Because the Board of Pensions and Foundation of the Presbyterian Church U.S.A. do not hold stock in RE/MAX, LLC; the committee on Mission Responsibility Through Investment (MRTI) has not engaged with representatives from RE/MAX, LLC. In mid-2017, the Office of Faith-Based and Corporate Engagement drafted and sent the official response from the 222nd General Assembly (2016) to the CEO of RE/MAX, LLC, commending the company’s commitment in 2016, ahead of the 222nd General Assembly (2016), to take action to ensure RE/MAX, LLC, will no longer receive income from the sale of Jewish-settlement properties in the West Bank or East Jerusalem. The correspondence from the Office of Faith-Based Investing and Corporate Engagement also reiterated the request of the 222nd General Assembly (2016) for RE/MAX, LLC, and its franchisees to continue to do everything in its legal and moral power to stop facilitating the sale or rental of properties in Israeli settlement colonies in East Jerusalem and the West Bank, and to continue to be in conversation with the proponent of the overture from the Presbytery of the Redwoods.

The Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC) recommends that the 223rd General Assembly (2018):

1. Direct the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC) and the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP), in consultation with the Office of the Presbyterian Ministry at the United Nations, to prepare a report to the 224th General Assembly (2020) that reviews and describes comprehensively:

   a. The United Nations’ (UN) intentions for the status of Jerusalem and its hinterland (including the City of Bethlehem) to be established as a corpus separatum under a special international regime as described in detail in the United Nations General Assembly Resolution 181 (II), Future Government of Palestine, A/RES/181(II), 29 November 1947.

on the situation of human rights in Palestine; the World Council of Churches; and human rights organizations that document aspects of:

1. The illegal annexation of Jerusalem by Israel and the building of Israeli settlements in Palestinian areas of East Jerusalem exclusively for Jews;
2. The continued destruction of Palestinian housing in the greater Jerusalem area;
3. The denial of human rights and equal treatment under the present Israeli law for Palestinian citizens of Jerusalem, both Christian and Muslim;
4. The impediments to housing, employment, taxation, and representation.
5. The denial of equal, adequate municipal infrastructure and services to Christian and Muslim sections of the city;
6. The denial of equal resources for education to Christian and Muslim citizens; and
7. The right of freedom of movement including the right to leave and return to Jerusalem.

2. Direct the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC) and the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP), in consultation with the Office of the Presbyterian Ministry at the United Nations, to make policy recommendations—being mindful of the unique spiritual and religious significance of Jerusalem to Christians, Jews, and Muslims and of the need for free unfettered access to Jerusalem’s holy sites—for the creation (using UN guidelines for the Status of Jerusalem as described in the UN General Assembly resolution 181) of administration of the Cities of Jerusalem and Bethlehem independent from Israeli or Palestinian control so that these cities have:

a. Free and open access to all religious pilgrims, including Palestinians irrespective of their ethnicity, age, citizenship, or place of residence;
b. Equal treatment under the law of the city for citizens of Jerusalem and Bethlehem;
c. Equal exercise of their human rights;
d. Equal responsibilities for taxation and participation in municipal governance;
e. Equal privileges for health care and education;
f. The right to leave and return to Jerusalem or Bethlehem;
g. The right for family reunification; and
h. Unrestricted trade/commerce.

Brief History of Jerusalem Area

The site on which Jerusalem exists today has a long history, beginning, according to archeological evidence, at about 4,500 BCE. Over the span of years to today, Jerusalem has been attacked, destroyed, rebuilt, and renamed many times. Since recorded time, beginning at about 2,000 BCE, approximately half the time it was controlled by groups not affiliated with any of the three monotheistic religions. Up to the Byzantine era (Christian), it was under the control of groups associated with biblical Israel or Judah for a relatively brief period, probably less than 300 years. Jerusalem was under Muslim control beginning at the time of its conquest by the Muslims in the seventh century ACE until the end of its control by the Ottomans in 1917. This span of almost 1,300 years was interrupted by brief control by Christian groups such as the Crusaders and the British Mandate period that began in 1917 and ended in 1948. Between 1948 and 1967, Jerusalem was divided into East and West Jerusalem and controlled by Jordan and Israel, respectively. From 1967 to today, Jerusalem is under Israeli control.

This brief history of the City of Jerusalem is presented not to justify the claim of any of the groups associated with Christianity, Judaism, or Islam. Rather, it is to show that it perhaps belongs to all, irrespective of religious affiliation.

Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Policy Regarding Jerusalem

According to policy passed by the 219th General Assembly (2010) on the status of Jerusalem, “Jerusalem must be an open, accessible, inclusive, and shared city for the two peoples and three religions.”

United Nations Partition Resolution 181 (II) (1947)

In order “to protect and to preserve the unique spiritual and religious interests located in the city of the three great monotheistic faiths throughout the world, Christian, Jewish and Moslem,” and “to ensure that order and peace, and especially religious peace, reign in Jerusalem,” the UN Resolution 181 proposed several requisites for the creation and organization of Jerusalem among which it was to be a separate entity from the proposed Israeli and Palestinian states. “The City of Jerusalem shall be established as a corpus separatum under a special international regime and shall be administered by the United Nations.” The City of Jerusalem shall include the present municipality of Jerusalem plus the surrounding villages and towns, the most eastern of which shall be Abu Dis; the most southern, Bethlehem; the most western, Ein Karin (including also the built-up area of Motsa); and the most northern Shu‘fat.

Today’s Realities on the Ground

Jerusalem remains a contentious issue for maintaining peace between Palestinians and Israelis. Grievances and desires from both sides complicate issues. The Israeli government is in control and governs the lives of Christian and Muslim citizens of Jerusalem.

B’Tselem, the Israeli information Center for Human Rights (http://www.btselem.org) published a brief report on a few aspects of the status of East Jerusalem. Included here are brief excerpts from this report:

Israel unlawfully annexed East Jerusalem to its territory. Since then it has treated the Palestinian residents of the city as unwanted immigrants and worked systematically to drive them out of the area.

Israel’s attempts to shape the demographic reality of East Jerusalem are concentrated in several spheres:

- Land expropriation and building restrictions;
- Cutting East Jerusalem off from the rest of the West Bank; and
- Discrimination in budget allocation and municipal services.

According to the UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA) for the occupied Palestinian Territories, many Palestinians in East Jerusalem are subject to a coercive environment with the risk of forcible transfer due to Israeli policies such as home demolitions, forced evictions and revocation of residency status. Restrictive and discriminatory planning regime makes it virtually impossible for Palestinians to obtain the requisite Israeli building permits: only 13 per cent of East Jerusalem is zoned for Palestinian construction and much of this is already built-up.

The Church of the Holy Sepulcher and the Al-Aqsa mosque are revered holy sites to Christians and Muslims, respectively. Palestinians frequently experience restrictions to entry to Jerusalem making it very difficult for Christians from the West Bank to pray at the Church of the Holy Sepulcher and Muslims to pray at the Al-Aqsa mosque. These restrictions are particularly strict for men aged fifty or less.

It is sad to see the daily reality of the occupation in Jerusalem. For Palestinians, both Christians and Muslims, life contains uncertainties and fear—the fear of having one’s house demolished; fear of deportation; fear of the inability to have sufficient food to feed one’s family; fear of not being able to reach a hospital in case of an emergency; fear of arrest; and fear of sudden death due to violence. The people of Israel, understandably, have their own fears, partly from tragic and sad memories of their past and partly from the inflated fear of retaliatory actions from Palestinians in response to the daily trials, humiliations, and repressions of living under occupation.

Let us try and stop these tragic cycles of fear and violence in the holiest of cities!

ACSWP ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 12-08

Advice & Counsel on Item 12-08—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 12-08.
The PC(USA), like many churches around the world, has made a major commitment to assist in the achievement of a just peace in Palestine and Israel, with the goal of ensuring the continuing witness of Christianity as well as Judaism and Islam in Jerusalem. This is a long-term challenge, given the one-sidedness of U.S. financial and military support for increasingly conservative and discriminatory Israeli governments. ACSWP advises support for this focused study based on the steady deterioration of the legal status of Palestinians in general in Jerusalem, and the extreme pressure put on Christians and Christian institutions by changes in tax law and other aspects of annexation.

This is not to ignore the violent Israeli military response to primarily nonviolent Palestinian protests in Gaza, where the United Nations has documented collective punishment of the population for years. Yet there are substantial reasons to focus attention on Jerusalem and the boundary changes that have brought that city to the edges of Bethlehem.

The status of Jerusalem has become a flashpoint of active conflict due particularly to the expressed plans of the current administration to relocate the American embassy to Jerusalem. Current United Nations and European Union policy has advised against member states acknowledging Jerusalem as the capital of Israel in this manner, as a barrier to any conceivable peace process. The announcement of the embassy move, after a set of inconsequential talks between the Palestinian Authority and the Trump Administration in early 2017, has in fact led to a Palestinian withdrawal from further negotiations involving the United States.

In Breaking Down the Walls, approved by the 219th General Assembly (2012), the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) declared its commitment “to the concept that Jerusalem, like ‘the land’ as a whole, does not belong to any one people alone, but is rather to be shared by two peoples (Israelis and Palestinians) and three religions (Judaism, Christianity, and Islam).”

The most recent report approved by the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) on the state of the conflict in Israel/Palestine, Israel/Palestine: For Human Values in the Absence of a Just Peace, [222nd General Assembly (2016)], notes that in recent years, the situation in Jerusalem has moved decidedly away from the vision of the United Nations. That report notes “Compared with 1993, Jerusalem is farther than ever from being a shared capital of two states, as envisioned at Oslo.”

Given that the rights of Palestinians in East Jerusalem was significantly deteriorating before the recent change in the policy of the United States government, and given that many observers believe that the decision of the United States to relocate its embassy will further destabilize the city and dispossess the residents of East Jerusalem, the need for the church to undertake a serious examination of the status of Jerusalem is timely and crucial to our witness in Israel/Palestine.

The primary costs of such a focused study are the travel of two to three persons to Jerusalem, as current staff and mission personnel would be tapped as primary contributors. Ecumenical and official diplomatic contacts will also be made in developing recommendations for next steps.

On Responding to the Current Syrian Crisis—From the Presbytery of the Cascades.

The Presbytery of the Cascades overtures the 223rd General Assembly (2018) of the PC(USA) to respond to the crisis in Syria focused on four principal goals: stop the killing; work for reconciliation; alleviate the suffering; and deepen PC(USA) partnership with Syrian Christians.

1. Stop the Killing

Direct the Stated Clerk of the PC(USA) to send a message to the President of the United States, Secretary of State, Secretary of Defense, and to each United States Senator and Representative to use all diplomatic means, in cooperation with [the United Nations’ Security Council and] other major parties in the Syrian crisis, to bring about a durable ceasefire, in tandem with a cessation of military support to any participant in the conflict [to bear witness to the world to the call for peace as a way of encouraging world-wide pressure for peace in Syria].

2. Work for Reconciliation

As a part of the necessary work of Syrian reconciliation, direct the Stated Clerk of the PC(USA) to communicate to the United States government and other parties involved the need to contribute fully to the humanitarian, human rights, and peace-building work of the United Nations. Encourage the United Nations to cooperate fully with these efforts, to involve civil society wherever possible, and to advocate measures to stabilize a more just world order in this region, encouraging nonviolent coexistence among religious and ethnic groups. Direct the Office of Public Witness in Washington, D.C., and the Presbyterian Ministry at the United Nations to support this witness in their work.
3. Alleviate the Suffering

   a. Direct the Stated Clerk of the PC(USA), Presbyterian World Mission, and Presbyterian Disaster Assistance to call on congregations and presbyteries, nonprofit organizations, the United States government, and agencies of the United Nations, to provide robust financial support for organizations engaged in alleviating the suffering of Syrians, especially those displaced inside Syria and those now living as refugees in neighboring countries.

   b. Direct the Stated Clerk of the PC(USA) to call on the United States government to reopen Syrian refugees’ entry into the United States and substantially expand the number of refugees admitted. Encourage the United States to maintain a more generous policy toward refugees based on our identity as a pluralistic nation.

   c. Direct the Stated Clerk of the PC(USA) to call on the United States Department of Treasury, Office of Foreign Assets Control, to review and revise the current program of economic sanctions on Syria so as to reduce their painful impact on ordinary Syrian families and on [religious,] civic, educational, and medical bodies [involved in peaceful pursuits for reconstruction and humanitarian relief] unassociated with any form of terrorism.

4. Deepen our Partnership with Syrian Christians

   a. Direct Presbyterian World Mission to provide an annotated list of media sources about events in Syria and the situation of PC(USA)’s Christian partners.

   b. Encourage PC(USA) pastors and congregations to build personal contacts and partnerships with Syrians: covenant to pray regularly for congregations in Syria, make visits to Syria, and develop relationships with Syrians in the United States. Encourage congregations to work with Syrian refugees now in the United States, to help and encourage them in ways that express Christian love.

   [Financial Implications: PMA $15,000]

   [Financial Implications: PMA $15,000]

Rationale

The situation in Syria continues to be one of the worst humanitarian crises of the present time. Since the conflict erupted in 2011, more than 470,000 Syrians have been killed, many more than 5.1 million documented refugees have fled the country in addition to thousands of undocumented refugees, and 6.3 million have been displaced internally [2016 data]. More than half the population of Syria have been killed or displaced from their homes and 13.5 million are in need of humanitarian assistance.

The Christian community in Syria has roots stretching back to the first century. With the second largest number of Christians in the Middle East, this vibrant community, widely dispersed across the country, can play a significant role in the future of the country and the region. Over the past forty years, Christians, along with other religious minorities, have been protected from persecution by the secular policies of the Syrian government. In areas where the Syrian government is not in control, moderate Muslims, Christians from various traditions, and other minorities have often had their places of worship damaged or destroyed and their followers persecuted and forced to flee.

Today, that Christian community is significantly threatened by possible outcomes of the conflict in which control of the country could pass to Islamists intent on establishing a government that imposes a highly restrictive interpretation of Islam. The 222nd General Assembly (2016) of PC(USA) affirmed the need to support Christians in the Middle East. Similar concerns for an end to violence and work for community reconciliation underlie the Good Friday Agreement (Northern Ireland) and the Ta’if Accords (Lebanon).

Recognizing the real dangers of an Islamist state and the scale of violence and suffering already experienced by the Syrian people does not excuse the widely reported human rights abuses of the Syrian government. While the violent reaction of the Syrian government to peaceful protestors during the 2011 Arab Spring shocked the world, the swift militarization and escalation of the conflict thereafter has spawned a conflict where all sides have committed or condoned crimes against humanity. Restorative justice, rather than retributive justice, may be possible in post-conflict Syria. Faith in God’s justice remains unshakable.

Stop the Killing

The first steps in the long process of reconciliation on all levels must involve shifting the focus away from efforts to gain an overwhelming military victory, dividing the country into separate states or other governmental outcomes that result in a weakened Syrian state. Concentrating on achieving a durable ceasefire would enable diplomatic discussions and negotiations, without pre-conditions, in which Syrians from all sides can play the central role in shaping their future and achieving their human rights as outlined in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, to which Syria is a signatory nation. The examples of Libya, Yemen, and Iraq show the dangers of losing a functional central government.
needs of Syrian civilians so they can rebuild their economic livelihood. The current system of sanctions must be reviewed to make it more supportive of the difficulties in operating businesses. Syria’s economic destruction has aided the recruitment of young men to fight for extremist groups in order to support their families. The licencing framework and export control requirements are complex, often requiring costly legal analysis, and acting as an impediment to international financing and trade.

The U.S. has an important role in bringing about a ceasefire and the demilitarization of the Syrian conflict. Christian understanding of the roles of faith and forgiveness has much to contribute to the process of reconciliation. In binding up the social and psychological wounds of war, reconciliation will have to address the long-standing grievances and aspirations of the Syrian people, in addition to the alienating consequences of war borne by individuals and communities.

“… in Christ God was reconciling the world to himself, not counting their trespasses against them, and entrusting the message of reconciliation to us” (2 Cor. 5:19).

Alleviate the Suffering

With an estimated 11.5 million people displaced from their homes and with economic systems and social networks disrupted, the need for immediate assistance is immense. Refugees in neighboring countries, those farther afield, and those internally displaced within Syria, require urgent assistance. The World Bank estimates that more than a quarter of the housing and over half of the country’s medical and educational facilities have been damaged or destroyed. It also observes that the breakdown of social and economic systems, and the destruction of trust among citizens, continues to have a greater economic impact than the destruction of physical infrastructure. Long-term help is needed for the reconstruction and rebuilding of the country’s infrastructure. The National Evangelical Synod of Syria and Lebanon, PC(USA)’s partner denomination in the area, and Presbyterian Disaster Assistance, require financial support for their effective programs, which respond to needs of people of all faiths impacted by this crisis.

The requirements for the tasks of rebuilding are so immense that a major international effort will be required. The U.S. government must increase its level of humanitarian and economic support for Syria and encourage international organizations such as the United Nations to do the same. All nations—including the United States—need to meet their financial obligations to the UN. Due to unmet pledges and obligations, the UN has been forced to cut back on its support of refugees and internally displaced persons. The continuing fighting makes immediate assistance more difficult, and sometimes renders it impossible. The longer-term task of rebuilding can begin in earnest only when some form of negotiated settlement is in place.

The United States has a moral obligation to participate in the worldwide response to the desperate flight of people seeking to escape the brutal situation in Syria. In response to such desperation, the U.S. government should reopen its doors to a significant increase in the number of Syrian refugees. All refugees admitted currently face rigorous screening and exhaustive vetting by five of the nation’s top security organizations, following years of screening and vetting by the office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees. The number of Syrian refugees admitted to the United States to date—only 18,007, between October 2011 and December 2016—is far too low in terms of the numbers in need; the current freeze is unacceptable. The U.S. should accept its fair share of refugees looking for permanent resettlement. It is essential to continue to support the efforts of Presbyterian Disaster Assistance and others engaged in working with congregations to facilitate resettling Syrian refugees in the U.S., as noted by the 222nd General Assembly (2016).

For those Syrians who have remained in their own country, internally displaced or living in their own homes, the sharp downward spiral of the economy has had an immense impact on their standard of living. A key factor contributing to this downturn has been the sanctions imposed by the United States. Those sanctions, enacted in order to punish the Syrian government for its support of terrorism, violence, and human rights abuses, have had a major impact on the welfare of all Syrian citizens. PC(USA) Syrian partners have reported that, as a result of the sanctions, it has been very difficult for them to get permission to undertake international financial transactions or to import materials and supplies needed to establish or operate businesses, or for foreigners to provide assistance to support such activities. The licensing framework and export control requirements are complex, often requiring costly legal analysis, and acting as an impediment to international financing and trade.

The downward economic spiral has led to scarcities and price increases of everyday commodities while exacerbating difficulties in operating businesses. Syria’s economic destruction has aided the recruitment of young men to fight for extremist groups in order to support their families. The current system of sanctions must be reviewed to make it more supportive of the needs of Syrian civilians so they can rebuild their economic livelihood.

“The crisis has been made immensely more lethal and complicated as the numerous combatants have each found outside supporters ready to send in fighters, weapons, and money to bolster partisan efforts. The arrival of Islamic extremists with foreign backing has further complicated the violence that is taking place throughout Syria. As long as the supply of military resources continues to flow into Syria, the prospects for diplomatic progress remain severely limited. A diplomatic approach to achieve a durable ceasefire must be accompanied by an end to the flow of military support from all outside sources. “Blessed are the peacemakers …” (Mt. 5:9).
Deepen PC(USA) Partnership with Syrian Christians

PC(USA)’s Syrian Christian partners caution that U.S. perceptions of reality are misinformed by the fragmented, inaccurate, and often subjective reporting of Western media. Relying on more diverse information sources is crucial to a clearer understanding of the Syrian crisis.

Beyond accessing more balanced news sources about Syria, American Presbyterians can deepen their personal spiritual formation as they build contacts and partnerships with Syrian Christians, who are Christianity’s elder sisters and brothers in the faith. Such opportunities are made possible through visits to Syria sponsored by Presbyterian World Mission’s Syria Lebanon Partnership Network, and other denominational and ecumenical agencies such as the Outreach Foundation. PC(USA) partners on the ground can assist those seeking to understand the complexity of the conflict. Presbyterian Disaster Assistance materials offered to PC(USA) congregations working with Syrian refugees now in the United States greatly enhance community building. These relationships enable U.S. citizens to learn from Syrian refugees and also help ease the difficult transition that many of them face.

Prayer must undergird personal engagement with the Syrian conflict: prayer for Syrian people who suffer from the crisis, prayer for decision makers responsible for crafting and implementing just and compassionate policies, and personal prayer by each person as they seek the continual guidance of the Holy Spirit in search of ways forward in this complex situation.

... ‘You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your strength, and with all your mind; and your neighbor as yourself’” (Lk. 10:27b).

... Pray without ceasing ... for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus for you” (1 Thess. 5:17–18).

Advice & Counsel on Item 12-09—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns.

The Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 12-09. This overture seeks to actively involve our church—through its Stated Clerk, its various programs of our Presbyterian Mission Agency, pastors, and congregants—in working for a consistent program to stop the killing, to work for reconciliation, to alleviate the suffering, and to deepen the PC(USA) partnership with Syrian Christians.

The United States has had a major role in the war in Syria and thus has a moral obligation to participate in the worldwide response to the suffering of Syrians and their desperate flight to escape the brutal situation in Syria. The Christian community is particularly under increasing risk from violence. In 2016, the General Assembly of the PC(USA) affirmed the need to support Christians in the Middle East. To this end, this overture encourages the deepening of PC(USA) partnerships with Syrian Christians.

PMA COMMENT ON ITEM 12-09

Comment on Item 12-09—From the Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA).

The Presbyterian Mission Agency, recognizing that there are many internal and external players in the Syrian Crisis and that the United Nations is the only one seeking to act impartially, suggests following the United Nations lead on the Syrian peace process, as the UN Special Envoy for Syria is engaged in multilateral peace talks with all sides.

Our partner, the National Evangelical Synod of Syria (NESSL) and Lebanon, welcomes this overture that speaks very succinctly and helpfully to this complex and rapidly changing situation.

In the overture’s call to deepen partnership with Syrian Christians, it invites us to deepen our understanding, and asks the Presbyterian Mission Agency to provide “an annotated list of media sources about events in Syria.” This is a highly contested subject, with much debate over the various narratives and sources. Any annotated list can only at best capture these disagreements and leave it to the reader to draw their own conclusions.
The overture also encourages people to visit Syria, which, with the right preparation working with our partner, NESSL, and with our Regional Liaison Elmarie Parker, has proved possible, safe, and secure. However, at the time of writing, recent attempts by U.S. Presbyterians to secure visas to visit Syria have failed. This does not mean that we should stop trying, for these visits are an important source of encouragement to our Syrian sisters and brothers, including even making the effort by applying for the visa, when making the trip may not ultimately be possible. Our understanding is that this situation has arisen in direct response to the U.S. Administration’s ban on visas for Syrians visiting the U.S.A.

Compassion Peace and Justice’s office of Presbyterian Disaster Assistance supports PC(USA) congregations and faith-based organizations in the U.S. who are actively engaged in the resettlement of refugees. We are deeply saddened by the profound impact that the U.S. government restrictions have had on the number of refugees admitted to the U.S., particularly for refugees from countries such as Syria. A series of Executive Orders, new operational requirements, delayed travel by U.S. personnel to conduct interviews, and the expiration of clearances all add up to slowing down the U.S. resettlement processes. As a result, less than 20,000 refugees of all nationalities combined are expected to be resettled during this federal fiscal year. World Refugee Day on June 20th offers PC(USA) congregations an opportunity to both recognize the wonderful blessing that refugees are to the U.S. and to challenge our U.S. elected officials to reinvest in resettlement as a viable response to refugees in need.

Presbyterian Disaster Assistance has been strongly supporting humanitarian response to the conflict in Syria since the war’s inception in 2012, working through our partners in the National Evangelical Synod of Syria and Lebanon, the ACT Alliance, and the Middle East Council of Churches, and will continue this work.

Item 12-10

[The assembly approved Item 12-10 as amended. See pp. 75, 77.]

Commissioners’ Resolution. On Gaza Violence.

Acting out of historic PC(USA) positions for human rights in the world, and presently out of concern for the human rights of all inhabitants of Gaza, the 223rd General Assembly (2018):

1. Expresses its profound grief and sorrow for the families of all Palestinians killed in the Great March of Return protests at the Gaza border. According to the U.N. Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA), from March 30–June 7, 2018, that number has reached 131 Palestinians (see OCHA Humanitarian Snapshot link), which includes fourteen children. [The names of those who were killed shall be included in the minutes of this proceeding, as available.] [See 12-10 Attachment for Item 12-10 List of those killed.pdf, p. 1160.]

2. Prays for the well-being and recovery of all who have been wounded and injured in violent confrontation. According to OCHA (see above) those numbers include 13,900 Palestinians and 4 Israelis.

3. Deplores the [targeting] [killing] of more than twenty clearly marked Palestinian medics serving the wounded, which includes Razan al-Najjar, a twenty-one-year old woman, and supports specific inquiry into the violation of international humanitarian law regarding this practice by the Israeli military. [As well, the 223rd General Assembly (2018) does not condone inciteful discourse [by Hamas] that inserts acts of violence into a massive peaceful demonstration.]

4. Renews the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)’s call for an end to the blockade of Gaza by Israel, which is assisted by Egypt in keeping its borders closed to those seeking safety and refuge.

5. Urges both U.S. and international support for basic human values for all Palestinians and Israelis despite the lack of a peace process or viable “two-state” solution, as was strongly affirmed by the 222nd General Assembly (2016) in “Israel-Palestine: For Human Values in the Absence of a Just Peace” (https://www.presbyterianmission.org/resource/israel-palestine-human-values-absence-just-peace/).

Rationale

The Great March of Return on March 30th was conceived with a positive spirit and framing, despite its purpose to underline the dire situation of Palestinian refugees, deprived for seventy years from any form of “right of return,” which is a right enshrined in the Declaration of Human Rights. Israeli author Amira Hass notes that Hamas was not the organizer of the Great March of Return, and the participants were unarmed civilians of all ages, https://www.haaretz.com/israel-news.premium-gaza-s-march-of-return-reflects-a-desire-for-new-palestinian-politics-1.5963725.

The beginning date of the Great March of Return marked what Palestinians call Land Day, which began as a 1976 protest of Israel’s taking of Palestinian lands. On that day, six Palestinian citizens of Israel, who were protesting the land grab, were shot and killed by Israeli border patrol. Since then, March 30th is commemorated by Palestinians as Land Day annually as a continuing effort to keep hope alive for their land.

The 2018 planned six-week nonviolent protest began on Land Day and took place every Friday until the week of May 14th when Israel cracked down on the protestors in the week that Israel celebrated seventy years as a state and Palestinians commemorated seventy years of The Nakba, their “catastrophe” in Arabic.

This year’s Great March of Return coincided with the dedication of the new U.S. embassy in Jerusalem, which sparked outrage across the Arab World and beyond. The embassy move was a unilateral action of the U.S. government emulated by no major power or ally, given international agreements that Jerusalem’s “unique status should be negotiated by the affected parties.
The violent Israeli response to the protests reinforced the perception that the Israeli government has no plans for serious negotiation with the Palestinians over rights or land, much less a functional state.

Conditions in Gaza are summarized briefly on pages 6, 9, and 27–31 of the 222nd General Assembly (2016) report:
https://www.presbyterianmission.org/resource/israel-palestine-human-values-absence-just-peace/. Living conditions have only worsened with aggressive measures by Israel to reinforce the blockade by restricting access to aquifer water, destroying tunnels (used primarily for sustenance, given above-ground surveillance), restricting fishing areas, limiting electricity and internet capacity, limiting and restricting medical aid and supplies, and enforcing isolation in what the Norwegian Refugee Council has called, “the world’s largest open-air prison.” See their full description of the dire situation here:

At the same time as the increasingly right-wing Israeli government squeezes human rights in Gaza, it appears to have no constructive plan to deal with the humanitarian crisis it is creating. Thus, the possibility of a further tragedy for Palestinians on an even larger scale cannot be ruled out.

The situation in Gaza today for 1.9 million people is a terrible example of collective punishment, which is a violation of Geneva Conventions. In short, even before the events that have occurred as a result of the Great March of Return, the humanitarian crisis in Gaza has been devastating and will only get worse. The fact that unarmed civilians are willing to brave Israeli snipers in peaceful protest is a clear indication of their desperation. The violence by the Israeli military towards Gaza’s citizens has been condemned by Israeli human rights group B’Tselem, as well as Amnesty International and Human Rights Watch. Ten nations on the United Nations Security Council (nine votes are needed) voted for a halt to the use of “excessive, disproportionate, and indiscriminate force” by the Israeli military on the Gaza border, and for the “consideration of measures to guarantee the safety and protection of Palestinian civilians in Gaza.” The resolution did not go forward because the United States chose to exercise its veto on the Security Council.

ACSWP ADVICE AND COUNSEL ON ITEM 12-10

Advice and Council on Item 12-10—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve
Item 12-10

This resolution is a timely call to prayer and action regarding the ongoing violence in the border area between Israel and the Gaza strip. The outbreak of violence around the Great March of Return, well documented by this resolution and falling almost exclusively upon Palestinians, is a further grim reminder of the consequences of unequal access to power. While certain narratives about the recent violence have attempted to create a false equivalency, or in more extreme cases to blame the violence directed at Palestinians upon Palestinians themselves, the PC(USA) in Israel/Palestine: For Human Values in the Absence of a Just Peace (2016) explicitly rebuked any such spurious notions of implied balance of blame, noting: “We reject any false equivalence between the capacity of a prosperous nuclear-armed state and that of a poor, divided, and occupied set of cantons”

That same document reminded the church of its mission to those who suffer, stating:

Following the commandments and example of its Lord, the church is called to attend to, care, and stand in solidarity with those who suffer. God’s great self-revelations—at Sinai, to the prophets, in the incarnation—begin with “I have observed the misery of my people. ...
Indeed, I know their sufferings, and I have come down to deliver them ...” (Ex. 3:7–8). And God has enabled and commanded the church to participate in that divine work as a central part of its ministry of reconciliation. So the church is called to both stand with and offer its resources to those who suffer. It stands with those who suffer in order to understand the conditions in which they find themselves, to recognize its own location in those conditions, and to see God at work there, transforming the world. It offers its resources to those who suffer as a demonstration of its commitment to the mission to which it has been charged and as a sign of its belief in the abundance of a God who is the giver of all

Item 12-11

[In response to Item 12-11, the assembly approved an alternate resolution. See pp. 75, 77–78.]

Alternate Resolution:

Recognizing that hope and love in the Israel and Palestine crisis must come from within, the 223rd General Assembly (2018) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)

1. Celebrates whenever and wherever Palestinian and Israelis come together in building honest understanding and peace, working together to address inequality to pave the way to reconciliation.

2. Directs the Presbyterian Mission Agency to identify grassroots organizations and ministries (especially for youth) in Palestine or Israel working for radical, systemic change.

3. Directs the Presbyterian Mission Agency to make these ministries and organizations known to Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) congregations for support and encouragement.

4. Where there are obstacles to this grassroots engagement in Israel/Palestine, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) will advocate for freedom of engagement.

Commissioners’ Resolution. Resolution on Reconciliation Ministries in Israel and Palestine.

That the 223rd General Assembly (2018) of the PC(USA)

1. Call on more PC(USA) congregations to support grassroots organizations who are having success bringing together Israelis and Palestinians to build understanding and peace.

2. Instruct the staff and agencies of the denomination to develop resources to help congregations find and work with these grassroots organizations.

3. Encourage all to avoid describing grassroots peacemaking efforts as “normalization of an unjust situation.”

Rationale

The Gospel of Jesus Christ calls on us to be forces of reconciliation, not division; in forgiveness, not vengeance; affirmation, not harsh judgement. There is no more consistent theme in the New Testament than that of reconciliation. We learn of God’s reconciling act with humanity through Jesus Christ. We also learn of God’s command that we be agents of reconciliation in the world. The Confession of 1967 of the PC(USA) is explicitly committed to the notion of the church being a reconciling force in the world. Reconciliation isn’t “normalization of oppression;” it is the work of God and God’s people.

Gratefully, there are numerous congregations who have chosen to ignore polarizing strategies and sought their own way, a way they find more consistent with the Way of Jesus Christ. These congregations support God’s work of reconciliation through organizations in Israel and Palestine that do everything from bringing together Israeli and Palestinian youth to discuss and work for peace to people making sure that Palestinians with serious health issues can get the more advanced medical care available in many Israeli hospitals.

Why not turn our resources to support them? There are thousands of grassroots groups consisting of Israelis and Palestinians who are seeking to build understanding and, ultimately, peace from the bottom up through ancient strategies known to create reconciliations between bitter foes. Numerous PC(USA) congregations support some of these grassroots groups. Incredibly, at the General Assembly level, the staff and agencies have not been interested in supporting grassroots reconciliation efforts, labeling it as “normalization” of an unjust situation.

This overture recommends a major change in strategy by the PC(USA), moving from a policy-oriented to a grassroots peacemaking strategy. Let us work every month of every year supporting and nurturing grassroots organizations in Israel and Palestine to build peace from the from the bottom-up at the grassroots.

Edwin G. Hurley, Presbytery of Sheppards & Lapsley
The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) disapprove Item 12-11.

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is committed to actions that lead to reconciliation between Israelis and Palestinians. However, such actions must be consistent with the demands of justice and human rights.

This resolution makes numerous assertions without any documentary support, including some that are demonstrably false. The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) supports numerous grassroots organizations that work for reconciliation between Israelis and Palestinians. The most current Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) policy statement, Israel/Palestine: For Human Values in the Absence of a Just Peace, makes these priorities explicit, stating:

Presbyterians support ecumenical and interfaith educational programs that bring Israeli and Palestinian children into contact with each other, such as Hand-in-Hand and Face-to-Face/Faith-to-Faith. Congregations need to educate themselves about all sides of the history of the conflict and about the structures of the occupation that prevent free movement within the West Bank, East Jerusalem, and into and out of Gaza. During mission trips they should witness and experience the restrictions on movement faced by Palestinians. (https://www.presbyterianmission.org/resource/israel-palestine-human-values-absence-just-peace/, p. 9)

This resolution had the opportunity to be helpful, by naming further organizations working for reconciliation that may deserve the support of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). Instead, it sets up a false dichotomy between policy and grassroots action (which can, and indeed should, reinforce each other) and casts unmerited aspersions upon the staff and agencies of the General Assembly.

It should also be noted that, by encouraging prescriptive limitations of speech, this resolution could have a chilling effect on the free exchange of ideas, including legitimate critique of strategies and tactics that may lead to violations of the values the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) affirmed in the actions of the 222nd General Assembly (2016), especially the approval of Israel/Palestine: For Human Values in the Absence of a Just Peace.

PMA COMMENT ON ITEM 12-11

Comment on Item 12-11—From the Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA).

It is not clear from the Rationale who these grassroots organizations that we are supposed to be supporting are, as no examples are given. The resolution is also misleading in suggesting that “at the General Assembly level, the staff and agencies have not been interested in supporting grassroots reconciliation efforts” as that is very much at the heart of our work. This is demonstrated by our partnership with such bodies as the Tantur Ecumenical Institute, Mar Elias Educational Institutions, the Wi’am Conflict Transformation Center, the Jerusalem Center for Jewish-Christian Relations, and The Inter-Religious Coordinating Council, all of which are involved in facilitating grassroots encounters, better understanding, and reconciliation. Unfortunately, there are other organizations at work that purport to be promoting “reconciliation,” but in fact they are actually seeking to normalize or provide a gloss on what is a very unjust situation, and for that reason we would not work with them.

Item 12-12

[The assembly disapproved Item 12-12. See pp. 14, 78.]

Commissioners’ Resolution. On Ending the Classification of Israel as a Colonial Project.

That the 223rd General Assembly (2018) of the PC(USA)

1. Reject the notion that Israel is “a colonial project.”

2. Instruct the appropriate agencies and staff within the PC(USA) to stop distributing and instruct all staff and official agencies of the PC(USA) to avoid language that can be interpreted as advocacy for the idea that Israel is “a colonial project.” Specifically, the PC(USA) should stop distributing Why Palestine Matters: The Struggle to End Colonialism because it describes Israel as a “colonial project.”

Rationale

The PC(USA) is committed to being a reconciling force for peace in the Middle East. The 221st General Assembly (2014) explicitly divorced itself from the Boycott, Divest, and Sanctions (BDS) movement with the following language: “This action on divestment is not to be construed or represented by any organization of the PC(USA) as divestment from the State of Israel, or an alignment with or endorsement of the global BDS (Boycott, Divest and Sanctions) movement” (Minutes, 2014, Part I, p. 261).

The 221st General Assembly (2014) also explicitly stated that Zionism Unsettled, a document created and distributed by the Israel Palestine Mission Network (IPMN) should not be viewed as representing the opinions of the PC(USA) in any way with the following language: “The 221st General Assembly (2014) declares that Zionism Unsettled does not represent the views of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and directs all Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) entities to express this statement in all future catalogs, print or online resources” (Minutes, 2014, Part I, p. 296). (The GA vote was a consensus vote without dissent.)

Two years later, the 222nd General Assembly (2016) explicitly divorced itself from the BDS movement’s desire to end Israel’s existence as a Jewish state by modifying an Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) paper that would have changed the PC(USA)’s long-standing support of and implied that the PC(USA) no longer favored a two-state solution by favoring no particular peace plan. The General Assembly’s clear reaffirmation of the two-state solution reads: “As disciples of Jesus Christ, the Prince of Peace, of the people of Abraham and the lineage of David, we stand with the people of Israel, affirming their right to exist as a sovereign nation, and we stand with the Palestinian people, affirming their right to exist as a sovereign nation. Therefore, the 222nd General Assembly (2016) affirms Footnote 8, which emphasizes a preference for a two-state solution. The assembly also affirms our desire to stay in conversation with our partners in Israel who work for peace. Finally, the assembly expresses its opposition to any efforts to deny or undermine the rights of the Palestinian people or the Jewish people to self-determination” (Minutes, 2016, Part I, pp. 61–62, 469).

The IPMN recently published a paper entitled Why Palestine Matters: The Struggle to End Colonialism that continues the themes in Zionism Unsettled that were rejected by the 221st General Assembly (2014) and advocates the one-state solution advocated by the BDS movement (and rejected by the 2014 and 2016 General Assemblies). Why Palestine Matters: The Struggle to End Colonialism goes beyond the rejected themes of Zionism Unsettled to argue that Israel is a colonial project in which European Jews, supposedly with no relation to the land historically known as Israel, created a colonialist state, ignoring the historical fact that Israel is a state recognized by the United Nations and the United States. Distributing Why Palestine Matters: The Struggle to End Colonialism not only creates the impression that the PC(USA) supports the extreme BDS positions advocated in the document, it makes the PC(USA) party to the advocacy of these secular BDS positions, even though the General Assembly has disassociated itself from such BDS positions.

While General Assemblies of the PC(USA) have been highly critical of some of Israel’s actions in the recent past and took a divestment action to protest the actions of three multinational corporations, General Assemblies have repeatedly reaffirmed the right of Israel to exist. They did so as recently as 2016 when the General Assembly added to an ASWSP report not once, but twice, language explicitly stating that the PC(USA) opposes any effort to deny the right of the Jewish people to self-determination just as it opposes efforts to deny that right for Palestinians. The General Assemblies have also repeatedly distanced themselves from the most radical opponents of Israel, especially the BDS movement that seeks to replace a Jewish state of Israel with a single, non-Jewish state of Palestine.

Given the PC(USA)’s support of Israel’s right to exist as a Jewish state as well as the right of Palestinians to live in a sovereign nation of their own, the inflammatory language of Why Palestine Matters: The Struggle to End Colonialism needs to be rejected explicitly by the 223rd General Assembly (2018). The document was created by a PC(USA) sanctioned mission network. An example of the inflammatory rhetoric can be found on page 68, “Indeed, the ongoing Zionist colonization of Palestine, combined with Israel’s influence over US policy toward Arab states, reminds most Arabs that the colonial period of the late-nineteenth century never truly ended. Israeli settlements in occupied Arab lands continue a tradition of foreign colonization of our countries that has been unbroken since nineteenth-century Palestine.”

Does the PC(USA) really want to be associated with an attempt to smear the state of Israel with the label of “a colonial project?” There is only one way to avoid that happening. The 223rd General Assembly (2018) must explicitly say that the IPMN produced paper in no way speaks for the PC(USA). The paper speaks for its authors. The General Assembly must also say that it rejects the assertion that Israel is “a colonial project.”

The action proposed by this overture should in no way be construed as censorship. It is not censorship to promote the positions of the PC(USA), which support both the Palestinian and Israeli peoples. The PC(USA) has repeatedly affirmed the right of both Israelis and Palestinians to have autonomous nations (the two-state solution). Why would the PC(USA) circulate literature that directly attacks its own position? Anyone who wants to read about the one-state solution can simply Google it or visit the IPMN website. Indeed, it seems totally counterproductive to go through a divisive, expensive process, as the PC(USA) did in 2016 regarding two states or one state, and then publicize the positions that were soundly defeated by a General Assembly vote. This overture isn’t promoting censorship. It promotes supporting the positions agreed upon by duly elected commissioners to General Assemblies.

ACSWP ADVICE AND COUNSEL ON ITEM 12-12

Advice and Council Item 12-12—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) disapprove Item 12-12.

While this paper asserts that the use of the adjective “colonial” is an inaccurate description of the creation of the modern state of Israel, it gives no support for a counter interpretation. The rhetorical question “Does the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) really want to be associated with an attempt to smear the state of Israel with the label of ‘a colonial project?’” in no way constitutes an argument against that interpretation.

In contrast, Why Palestine Matters: The Struggle to End Colonialism gives a detailed interpretation of the colonial narrative and presents a valid, if contested, argument. In the absence of any attempt to rebut the colonial argument factually and historically, this commissioners’ resolution reads like a narrow attempt to stifle discussion and academic inquiry.

Further, as the rationale for Item 12-12 states, during the debate over a previous publication, Zionism Unsettled, the 221st General Assembly (2014) instructed that a statement be affixed to all future copies of the document declaring that it does not represent the views of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). The current document in question has the same language: “IPMN speaks TO the church, not FOR the church. This book does not represent the views of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).”

The Presbyterian bookstore currently sells numerous documents that do not represent Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) policy with no such disclaimers affixed. The authors of this text clearly presented this study in a way that should cause no confusion about its status. This being the case, Item 12-12 is asking for unnecessary restrictions on the free exchange of ideas among Presbyterians of good conscience, and should be rejected.

ACREC ADVICE AND COUNSEL ON ITEM 12-12

Advice and Council on Item 12-12—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC).

The Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) disapprove Item 12-12.

ACREC urges the 223rd General Assembly (2018) to vote against this commissioners’ resolution because censoring or censuring a mission network of World Mission faithfully carrying out their General Assembly mandate is counterproductive.

The denomination’s Israel/Palestine Mission Network, IPMN, is one of 40+ mission networks within World Mission of the Presbyterian Mission Agency. It is unique because it is the only such network with a General Assembly mandate (2004), which empowers the network to advocate for Palestinian human rights.

The book in question, Why Palestine Matters, the Struggle to End Colonialism, includes a disclaimer on its back cover stating that the network speaks TO the Church, not FOR the Church” and that “This book does not represent the policies of the Presbyterian Church U.S.A.”

The Presbyterian bookstore is not in the business of discriminating what is sold based on political positions and sells many items along the entire spectrum of opinions without concern for what a contentious book might reflect on church policy.

Finally, our committee agrees with the 216th General Assembly (2004) that Presbyterians need to educate themselves about the facts on the ground in Israel/Palestine and arm themselves with as much information as possible in order to help advocate for equal rights for all those affected by the decades-long hostilities in the region. In academia, it is widely regarded that Israel meets the description of a settler-colonial state.

For examples, see:

Settler colonialism and the elimination of the native, by Patrick Wolfe [Patrick Wolfe is an Australian writer and historian. He has held appointments at various universities, including La Trobe University, Harvard University, Stanford University, and the Universities of Melbourne and New Orleans. PMA COMMENT ON ITEM 12-12

Comment on Item 12-12—From the Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA).

The lengthy rationale for this commissioners’ resolution fails to speak to the statement that we “Reject the notion that Israel is ‘a colonial project.’” This would be a new position for the PC(USA) and so needs to be substantiated. For example, how is the continued expansion of settlements on Palestinian land not a form of colonialism? Or, how is shooting at thousands... of unarmed civilians trying to return to their homes and lands that were taken from them seventy years ago not a form of colonialism. Or, returning to modern day Israel’s origins in the Balfour Declaration of 1917, a statement made by the British Foreign Secretary, Lord Balfour, at the height of the British Empire, expressing how Britain would exercise its mandate in Palestine not “a colonial project”? These are the questions we will be asked if we approve this position.

Despite the commissioners’ protestations, the second part of the resolution looks very much like censorship. Besides the publication contains a very clear statement on its cover that it does not represent the views of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), so this proposal looks very much like an attempt to stifle debate on this issue.

Item 12-13

Commissioners’ Resolution. On Opposing and Disengagement from Iran.

To support the hard work required for peacemaking and nuclear disarmament, the 223rd General Assembly (2018):

1. Encourages all parties to the “Iran Nuclear Deal,” the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA), to continue to comply with the terms of that agreement.

2. Urges the government of the United States to reconsider its unilateral withdrawal from the agreement, particularly in light of the International Atomic Energy Agency’s reporting that Iran was in full compliance with its provisions and the way the “Deal” was seen to be helping open that society to further positive change.

3. Affirms the value of respectful understanding and reducing tensions with the government and 82 million people of Iran of whom two-thirds are Persian and one-third a variety of ethnicities and non-Shiite Muslim religious traditions, including Christians—some of whom will suffer from association with unwise actions by Western nations.

4. Opposes punitive sanctions on U.S. and European-based non-military companies and nongovernmental organizations as ultimately ineffective, if not counterproductive.

5. Opposes efforts to increase hostilities with Iran, which do not seem to serve U.S. interests.

6. Urges the U.S. Congress to fulfill its responsibility to hold hearings and otherwise hold the Administration accountable for faithful execution of the laws related to nuclear disarmament and nonproliferation, and to effective diplomacy and statecraft in general, so that the U.S. may be a reliable partner to its allies and an upholder of international law.

7. Directs the Presbyterian Mission Agency (through its Office of Public Witness and the Presbyterian Ministry at the United Nations), the Office of the General Assembly, and other Presbyterian agencies to include this resolution in their witness, and urges members, congregations, and presbyteries to continue to support peace and reconciliation efforts, and to include the people of Iran, as well as our mission partners, in their prayer, study, and witness.

Rationale

Without claiming perfection for any multiparty agreement, the Iran Nuclear Deal provides a strong inspection program to verify that Iran would not enrich uranium sufficient for a single weapon before 2030, and promises no nuclear weapons development after, in exchange for an end to economic sanctions and increased trade and free movement. The Stated Clerk, the Reverend J. Herbert Nelson, II, spoke promptly to the issues at stake: http://www.pcusa.org/news/2018/5/9/stated-clerk-issues-statement-response-iran/.

An article in Unbound also assesses the matter: http://justiceunbound.org/carousel/standing-up-for-the-iran-nuclear-agreement/.

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), as part of the worldwide communion of Reformed Churches, shares a commitment to seek peace and reconciliation among peoples and to support the work of governments to these ends. In order to be effective servants and prophets when called upon, we draw upon and respect the expertise of diplomats and others who build positive relationships and nurture human rights. There is enough distrust, hostility, and genuine environmental danger in the world without adding to it; better to rejoin and, if possible, improve the Iran nuclear deal rather than observe a further deterioration of relations and weakening of U.S. interests.
ACSWP ADVICE AND COUNSEL ON ITEM 12-13

Advice and Council on Item 12-13—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

The Advisory Committee for Social Witness Policy recommends that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 12-13 with this editorial change for clarification: [Text to be deleted is shown with brackets and with a strike-through.]

“1. Encourage the United States government to continue to comply with the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA)[, to continue to comply with the terms of that agreement].”

Christian Obedience in a Nuclear Age (1988) calls for multilateral engagement to stop nuclear proliferation with the clear goal of nuclear disarmament on a comprehensive basis. One could wish that the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA) had a longer timeline and might address concerns about Iran’s role within the region; however, these could be addressed alongside the JCPOA agreement or “deal.” The United States’ withdrawal, without any viable alternative plan, alienates allies and may open the door for Iran to restart its nuclear program, making the world less safe. The withdrawal also undercuts the credibility and hence capacity of future administrations to negotiate treaties, making it more difficult for the United States to play a constructive role in preventing nuclear proliferation and supporting disarmament initiatives.

ACREC ADVICE AND COUNSEL ON ITEM 12-13

Advice and Council on Item 12-13—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC).

This resolution is aligned with both the core values of our Christian and Reformed faith and commitment to peace and bridge building, not bridge burning among the nations. We are called to “gather all nations and tongues so that they may come and see God’s glory” (Is. 66:18). ACREC is also committed to a policy of openness and collaboration, not close mindedness and separation.

This resolution will certainly bring people together, creating peace, and as such empowering the Christian witness in the Middle East.

By withdrawing from the Iran deal, we will be hurting and weakening U.S. allies and friends, discouraging moderation and without knowing encouraging Islamic extremist ideologies.

By withdrawing from any peace negotiation in the Middle East, we are negatively impacting the life of Christian minorities who usually become the scapegoat (easy target) for such unwise actions taken by western nations.

Item 13-01

[The assembly approved an alternate resolution. See pp. 14, 21.]

In regard to the Jarvie Commonweal Endowment, the Co-Moderators of the 223rd General Assembly (2018) are directed to form a Reconciliation Team to identify and engage those concerned in a peacemaking and reconciliation process, and report out to the 224th General Assembly (2020).

[Financial Implications: Per Capita Annual—$75,600. Total—$151,200]

_On Creating an Administrative Commission to Work with the Synod of the Northeast Regarding the Jarvie Commonweal Endowment Fund—from the Presbytery of Huntingdon._

The Presbytery of Huntingdon overtures the 223rd General Assembly (2018) to direct the Moderator of the 223rd General Assembly (2018) to create an Administrative Commission to work with the Synod of the Northeast to

1. Assess the current placement, management, and location of the Jarvie Commonweal Endowment Fund (now valued at $90 million).
2. Assess the current placement of responsibility for supervising the provision of services to the recipients of the prescribed generous Jarvie Service assistance.
3. Assess the current PC(USA) Presbyterian Mission Agency and Foundation organizational responsibilities for both the services and the endowment of the Jarvie Fund.
4. Affirm the Foundation and PC(USA) Presbyterian Mission Agency for engaging a chaplain and social worker to assist in administrating the Jarvie services.

Rationale

The Jarvie Commonweal Service (the “Jarvie Service”) is an old age and relief service for people in the Greater New York City area (fifty-mile circle of Columbus Circle, Manhattan) that was created by James N. Jarvie in the 1920s and subsequently transferred to the Board of National Missions (“BNM”) pursuant to a 1934 Trust Agreement.

The 1934 Trust Agreement created the Jarvie Commonweal Service Committee and charged it with the responsibility of conducting the Jarvie Service, requiring that the BNM “shall charge said committee with the duty of administering the commitments above assumed and of adding thereto and continuing as outlined herein, in fact and in spirit, the Jarvie concept of Old Age Relief and Service.”

Until mid-2005, the Jarvie Service and its staff were administered directly by the Jarvie Commonweal Service Committee created by the 1934 Trust Agreement, and Presbyterian Mission Agency (“PMA”) served as the employer of record for the Jarvie staff.

In mid-2015, the Jarvie Service was outsourced to a for-profit home care agency.

It is unknown whether the control of the trust and the corpus supporting it still resides in New York, as the trust explicitly requires.

A commissioners’ resolution, Item 13-08, was submitted to the 222nd General Assembly (2016) out of which the assembly strongly recommended “that both parties (commissioners and Foundation) avail themselves of the Foundation’s offer to mediate all issues [between Friends of Jarvie and the Presbyterian Foundation] in this resolution” (Minutes, 2016, Part I, p. 957).

Representatives of the Presbyterian Foundation and representatives of the Presbyteries of Elizabeth, Newark, Palisades, Hudson River, Southern New England, and New York City (all having communities lying within the fifty-mile circle) met in person on November 15, 2017, pursuant to the action of the 223rd General Assembly (2016).

The 222nd General Assembly (2016) created the Way Forward Commission (Minutes, 2016, Part I, pp. 38–40, 226) and approved the appointment of a new All Agency Review Committee (Minutes, 2016, Part I, p. 88) and tasked them with evaluating the current structures, mission, and ministry of the current General Assembly structures.

Despite being made aware of the situation described in the first five paragraphs of this rationale, neither the Way Forward Commission, nor the All Agency Review Commission have yet made any recommendations regarding the handling of the Jarvie fiduciary responsibilities.
The actions of the 222nd General Assembly (2016) on Item 13-08, the creation of the Way Forward Commission, and the creation of the All Agency Review Committee have not resolved the underlying issues and concerns in the management and care of the Jarvie Fund.

Concurrence to Item 13-01 from the Presbytery of Hudson River.

Concurrence to Item 13-01 from the Presbytery of Long Island with Additional Rationale.

The Jarvie Commonweal Service (the “Jarvie Service”) is an old age and relief service for people in the Greater New York City area (fifty-mile circle of Columbus Circle, Manhattan) that was created by James N. Jarvie in the 1920s and subsequently transferred to the Board of National Missions (“BNM”) pursuant to a 1934 Trust Agreement.

The 1934 Trust Agreement created the Jarvie Commonweal Service Committee and charged it with the responsibility of conducting the Jarvie Service, requiring that the BNM “shall charge said committee with the duty of administering the commitments above assumed and of adding thereto and continuing as outlined herein, in fact and in spirit, the Jarvie concept of Old Age Relief and Service.”

Until mid-2015, the Jarvie Service and its staff were administered directly by the Jarvie Commonweal Service Committee created by the 1934 Trust Agreement, and Presbyterian Mission Agency (“PMA”) served as the employer of record for the Jarvie staff.

In mid-2015, the Jarvie Service was dramatically restructured when the staff of the Foundation, in secret collaboration with a few of the members of the Jarvie Commonweal Service Committee, and when Foundation staff, in concert with PMA, orchestrated the sudden outsourcing of the Jarvie Service to a for-profit home care agency.

It is unknown whether the control of the trust and the corpus supporting it still resides in New York, as the trust explicitly requires.

A commissioners’ resolution, Item 13-8, was filed with the 221st General Assembly (2014) out of which the assembly directed the Friends of Jarvie (created by the General Assembly in 1994) to manage the funds and services and the Presbyterian Foundation to “Mediate their differences and report to the 223rd General Assembly (2018).”

Representatives of the Presbyterian Foundation and representatives of the Presbyteries of Elizabeth, Newark, Palisades, Hudson River, Southern New England, and New York City (all having communities lying within the fifty-mile circle) met in person on November 15, 2017, pursuant to the action of the 222nd General Assembly (2016).

The 222nd General Assembly (2016) created the Way Forward Commission and the All Agency Review Committee and tasked them with evaluating the current structures, mission, and ministry of the current General Assembly structures.

Despite being made aware of the situation described in the above paragraphs 1–5, neither the Way Forward Commission, nor the All Agency Review Commission, have made any recommendations regarding the handling of the Jarvie fiduciary responsibilities.

The actions of the 221st General Assembly (2014) on Item 13-8 and the creation of the Way Forward Commission and the All Agency Review Committee have not resolved the underlying delinquency in the management and care of the Jarvie Fund.

ACSWP ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 13-01

Advice & Counsel on Item 13-01—from the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

Item 13-01 requests the General Assembly to direct the Moderator(s) to create an administrative commission to assess aspects of the operation of the Jarvie Commonweal Service, a social service program for older persons in the NYC metro area, whose management was replaced in 2015.

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy advises that Item 13-01 be approved.

The Jarvie Commonweal Service has long been known in the New York City metropolitan area as a unique social service agency dedicated to helping Presbyterians and others, often older widows, stay in their homes and congregations, among other activities. Mr. James N. Jarvie was a dedicated Presbyterian and made other generous donations to the church. The provisions of the trust were adjusted previously, without controversy, to devote a percentage of funds to broader housing needs. From the 1970s forward, greater diversity was achieved in management and profile of persons served, within the donor restrictions of the trust agreement. Over the years, dedicated Presbyterians served on a committee required by the trust, supervising the program that has been directed by Presbyterians and providers explicitly linked to the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).
Since 2015, operation of the Jarvie program has been provided by a large-scale, for-profit social service agency. In the wake of this considerable change, there have been talks between the Presbyterian Foundation and proponents of Items 13-01 and 13-08, who come primarily from presbyteries affected by the action, which they term, “outsourcing.” Clearly, the presbyteries do not believe the letter and the spirit of the program are being maintained, while the Presbyterian Foundation disputes the wording of the proponents and claims greater efficiency in operation. Secular legal authorities (such as the Attorney General of New York) have so far declined to enter the disagreement, and the presbyteries have chosen the Presbyterian process of an administrative commission rather than legal action.

Although the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy is tasked to help the church speak to systemic justice questions, such as the rights of peoples subjected to war or deprivation, we do not ignore community and even personal impacts of church decisions, in this case touching 70–125 individuals at any given time. These are members and not simply clients. Jarvie’s model of care has certainly required updating, but he sought to extend the ministry of the church in some uniquely personal ways. And he entrusted his church with his hopes for a particular kind of ministry, which was conveyed in the word, “commonweal.” (A somewhat analogous trust was set up by Mr. Vartan H. Jinishian to care for Armenians and Armenian-Americans. The Jininishian Memorial Program is currently administered within World Mission ministries).

The Foundation indicates that the Presbyterian Mission Agency leadership in 2015 did not see the mission of the Jarvie Commonweal Service to fit within its mission objectives. There also may have been management questions for which a disruption in relationships may have been considered justified. The change of approach, however, appears to have been a decision by managers of the Foundation and the Presbyterian Mission Agency, and at least some of the local presbyteries and supporters were not consulted.

The formation of an administrative commission should not threaten the administration of the Jarvie Service, but might helpfully consider such questions as:

1. What is the appropriate level of regional governance and accountability in a relatively limited scale program intended to be anchored in a particular area?

2. What are the appropriate mission considerations to be considered along with the management of a considerable endowment? For example, do the capacities required for social service or home healthcare complement or divert from parish nursing on the congregational side, and concern for better health insurance, housing, and tax policy on the public witness side?

3. How consistent is a for-profit secular service provider with the concept of “commonweal” and its historic church relationships? In this case, how bound should the church’s mission be to the terms of a trust and intentions of a donor? Could Presbyterian or other church-related, nonprofit services that employ social workers and/or home healthcare aides in the region meet Jarvie’s intent?

4. What are the roles of the Foundation, as asset manager, and the Presbyterian Mission Agency, as doer of mission and ministry, and were these roles and responsibilities discussed publicly when the changes were made in 2015?

If such a commission were formed, as we find reasonable, it would be important to include persons aware of the interests and history of the Jarvie Committee, the Presbyterian Mission Agency, and the Presbyterian Foundation, with a majority from the regional presbyteries. The role of the Synod of the Northeast seems appropriate to help the relationships of the presbyteries involved. And while the work of assessment does not require full transparency (which may be ill-advised), a public report would be expected and an agreement among participants hoped for.

BOARD OF NATIONAL MISSIONS AND PRESBYTERIAN FOUNDATION

COMMENT ON ITEM 13-01

Comment on Item 13-01—From the Board of National Missions and the Presbyterian Foundation.

The Board of National Missions and the Presbyterian Foundation recommends that this overture be defeated and provides the following information to help the assembly more fully understand the content and context of this overture.

The General Assembly’s Guidelines for Presbyterians During Times of Disagreement states, “In a spirit of trust and love, we promise we will ... [t]reat each other respectfully so as to build trust, believing that we all desire to be faithful to Jesus Christ” (Manual of the General Assembly, 2018, p. 63). The Board of National Missions and Presbyterian Foundation are eager to resolve disagreements over the Jarvie Program in this spirit and belief.

One element of building trust and respect is to provide full and accurate detail regarding those areas of disagreement. The information provided below seeks to do that, and can be summarized in four points: This overture is another in a lengthy series of unsuccessful efforts to overturn an administrative decision made three years ago by the Board of National Missions; the assessments in the recommendation section are not necessary and carrying them out would not be a good use of the church’s time and money; the rationale includes false and/or misleading statements; and the Jarvie Program is being operated responsibly and successfully in all respects.
1. This is another in a lengthy series of unsuccessful efforts to overturn an administrative decision made three years ago by the Board of National Missions.

After the Presbyterian Mission Agency withdrew from being the service provider for the Jarvie Commonweal Service Program, the Board of National Missions undertook a careful, eighteen-month search and assessment process to find another service provider, ultimately selecting VIP Health Care Services of Queens, New York. The proponents of this overture and others have attempted to overturn this decision through the following actions:

- Three complaints to the New York State Attorney General, all of which were unsuccessful,
- A complaint to the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission, which was rejected, and an appeal of that rejection, which was denied, and
- A commissioners’ resolution presented to the 222nd General Assembly (2016), which was rejected by committee and subsequently voted down on the floor of the General Assembly.

2. The assessments in the Recommendation section are not necessary and carrying them out would not be a good use of the church’s time and money.

   a. In answer to the overture’s Recommendation 1:

      The Jarvie Commonweal Endowment Fund has been managed for the past eighty-four years by the Board of National Missions pursuant to the 1934 Trust Agreement. The fund has been responsibly invested, and its results are audited annually. There is no need to assess “the placement, management, and location” of the fund.

   b. With regards to the overture’s Recommendations 2 & 3:

      There is no need to revisit the governance and operational structure of the Jarvie Program, which have always been as follows:

      - Under the 1934 Trust Agreement, the Board of National Missions (BNM) has custody of and manages the endowment funds and has the overall responsibility for all aspects of the program, including the delivery of service to beneficiaries.
      - Under the Trust Agreement, BNM organizes a committee called the Jarvie Commonweal Service Committee. BNM appoints and removes the members of this committee and delegates to the committee, the administration, and oversight of the program.
      - A service provider operates the program, employing and supervising the social workers who provide service directly to beneficiaries.

3. The overture’s rationale includes false and/or misleading statements.

   The following information corrects misstatements made in the overture’s rationale:

   a. Responding to the Second Paragraph:

      - Except in a technical sense, the Trust Agreement did not actually “create” the Jarvie Committee. Instead, it directed the Board of National Missions to “organize” a committee. Thus, rather than having independent existence directly from the trust, the committee is a creature of the board, which “organizes” it, decides its size and structure, and appoints and removes its members.

      - Similarly, the Trust Agreement did not directly “charge” the Jarvie Committee with responsibilities for the service. Instead, the trust directed the board to provide a charge to the committee. Thus, the committee’s mandate with respect to the Jarvie Service is delegated to it by the board, and the board determines the breadth and scope of that mandate.

      - The charge the board is to provide to the committee does not include “conducting” the Jarvie Service. Instead, the trust says the board shall charge the committee with “administering” the service. The trust is silent on whether this “administration” function includes actually providing the service directly to beneficiaries, or whether the board can simply charge the committee with providing administrative oversight over another entity that is the service provider. Either approach would be consistent with the trust language.

      - What is missing from this Rationale is that the trust gives exclusive control over the Jarvie Service—“both of money and service”—to the Board of National Missions. By way of the Trust Agreement, the board assumed “all obligations” for the service. Thus, the board has ultimate accountability, and ultimate control, for all aspects of the Jarvie Service.
b. Responding to the Third Paragraph:

- It is unclear what is meant by the words “administered directly.” Both prior to and after mid-2015, the Jarvie Committee has provided close oversight of the Jarvie staff, meeting on a regular basis, and requiring detailed reporting. However, at no time, either before or after mid-2015, were Jarvie staff members employed by the Jarvie Committee.

- It is unclear what is meant by the words “employer of record.” Prior to mid-2015, Jarvie staff were employees of the Presbyterian Mission Agency in every sense of the word, receiving salary payment from PMA, being trained by PMA, being subject to PMA’s human resources policies, having reporting relationships to managers at PMA, and potentially being terminated by PMA.

c. Responding to the Fourth Paragraph:

- The ultimate accountability of the BNM to operate the Jarvie Service was not “outsourced.” The responsibility of the Jarvie Committee to “administer” the service was not “outsourced.” The service provider that employs the Jarvie staff and operates the program day-to-day was changed as a result of PMA’s decision to withdraw from that function. The agency selected to replace PMA is a private, family-owned agency chosen after an eighteen-month search process from among twelve agencies considered.

d. Responding to the Fifth Paragraph:

- It is not “unknown” where control of the trust resides. The 1934 Trust Agreement provides that control of the trust lies with the Board of National Missions. The board is a New York Corporation whose headquarters have been in Jeffersonville, Indiana, since 1988.

- The 1934 Trust Agreement does not “require”—explicitly or implicitly—that control must reside in New York. The Trust Agreement is silent on this issue.

e. Responding to the Tenth Paragraph:

- This paragraph refers to “the underlying issues and concerns in the management and care of the Jarvie Fund…” However, nowhere in the recommendation or the rationale are there any allegations of misconduct or poor judgment in the management and care of the fund.

The concurrence from the Presbytery of Long Island includes many of the same false or misleading statements. Additionally, in its last paragraph, the concurrence refers to “the underlying delinquency in the management and care of the Jarvie Fund.” The preceding paragraphs do not itemize any such “delinquencies,” and in fact there have been none.

4. The Jarvie Program is being operated responsibly and successfully in all respects.

The Jarvie funds are maintained in segregated accounts and are accounted for separately from other Foundation funds. Income from the Jarvie funds is dedicated exclusively for the support of the Jarvie Program, less a modest (0.99 percent) management fee that is charged on all endowments or other assets managed by the Foundation or BNM. The finances of the Jarvie Program are audited annually, and the Jarvie Endowment funds are audited as part of the Presbyterian Foundation annual audits, providing transparency into the income earned on Jarvie funds, as well as the costs of operating the Jarvie Program.

Since Jarvie Program LLC, a subsidiary of VIP Health Care Services, was engaged as service provider, Jarvie beneficiaries have been surveyed twice, with excellent results. Not a single one of the beneficiaries has expressed dissatisfaction in any way. There have been numerous effusively positive comments about the social workers employed by VIP.

Moreover, the Jarvie Program has achieved these outstanding results while reducing administrative costs and ending a multiyear pattern of deficits. The program has not reduced grants or services to beneficiaries and has also resumed adding new beneficiaries as others leave the program. Twenty-three new beneficiaries have been accepted since the transition, at least nine of whom were referrals from Presbyterian pastors. Prior to the change, deficit budgets were planned through 2020, and no new beneficiaries were scheduled to be added for at least three years.

Improved financial management also made possible a major new commitment to the Jarvie Program with the hiring in June 2017 of the Reverend Marjory Roth, a Presbyterian minister, as full-time chaplain. Rev. Roth provides spiritual care, prayer, and pastoral counselling to Jarvie beneficiaries, in partnership with their congregations.

The Jarvie Commonweal Service Program has a ninety-year track record of success in caring for its beneficiaries. This is due in some measure to the integrity and diligence with which the Board of National Missions has managed the Jarvie funds and to its careful oversight of all aspects of the Jarvie Program. The ongoing stability and vitality of the Jarvie Program is a tribute to the extraordinary vision of James N. Jarvie and his compassion for fellow human beings, his commitment to service, and his faith in God.

The Jarvie Program is an extraordinary success story of which all Presbyterians should be proud.
Item 13-02

[The assembly approved Item 13-02. See pp. 14, 21.]

The Presbyterian Mission Agency Board recommends that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) confirm the following named individuals to the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Investment and Loan Program, Inc., Board of Directors:

1. Margaret Cyrus, black female, ruling elder, 66–75, Presbytery of the Pacific, Synod of Southern California and Hawaii, at-large position.

2. Sharon Core, white female, teaching elder 46–55, Presbytery of Western Reserve, Synod of the Covenant, presbytery position.

The following positions are currently vacant. The General Assembly Nominating Committee will transmit nominees for positions 3 and 4, the Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program, Inc., nominees for positions 5 and 6, and the Presbyterian Foundation Board nominee for position 7.

3 Pending, At-large position
4. Pending, At-large position
5. Pending, PILP At-large position
6. Pending, PILP At-large position
7. Pending, Presbyterian Foundation Board position

Item 13-03

[The assembly approved Item 13-03. See pp. 14, 21.]

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation recommends that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) confirm the following director of its subsidiary, New Covenant Trust Company, N.A., who, as of the submission of this report, has been elected for the year 2017–2018, consistent with the Deliverance for New Covenant Trust Company, N.A., as approved by the 211th General Assembly (1999) and amended by the 212th and 214th General Assemblies (2000) and (2002), and subject to applicable law:

Karen L. Garrett, Attorney, White, Female, Married, Lay, Over 50, Synod of Mid-America.

Rationale

Karen L. Garrett was elected November 9, 2017, to fill a vacancy.

Item 13-04

[The assembly approved Item 13-04. See pp. 20, 21.]

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation Board asks the 223rd General Assembly (2018) to confirm the election of the Reverend Dr. Thomas F. Taylor for another term as president and chief executive officer of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation.

Rationale

During his two terms of service, Tom Taylor has led the Foundation through a significant period of growth and development by following specified goals and establishing a strategic plan.

Under Tom’s leadership, the Foundation has reversed a downward trend in giving, and has steadily increased the number and dollar amount of new gifts, achieving a record of $72 million in 2017, and a cumulative amount of new gifts of $337 million during his tenure.

Under his leadership, the Foundation partnered with a new organization to manage the Foundation’s investments. This move, in 2017, has allowed us to lower the fees on our funds and improve investment performance, while maintaining the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)’s commitment to faith-based, socially responsible investing.
Under Tom’s leadership, the Foundation has improved and broadened relationships with other Presbyterian agencies and with other denominations around the world, resulting in improved operating processes and growth in new assets, especially in 2017.

Under Tom’s leadership, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation has devised online giving services now in use by more than 500 congregations, and Project Regeneration, repurposing church assets for new ministries in amounts of more than $60 million.

Under his leadership, the Foundation has accepted responsibility for and worked to improve operations of various large missions and ministries of the PC(USA), such as the Theological Education Fund and the Ghost Ranch Conference Center in New Mexico.

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation Board of Trustees believes that Tom’s background as a pastor, an attorney, and a professor holding a Ph.D., and having national and international mission experience, uniquely qualify Tom to lead the Foundation in the combination of missional and business complexities that the Foundation’s leadership requires.

Under Tom’s leadership, the Foundation has distributed more than $493 million for mission and ministry.

The trustees, at their stated meeting on February 22, 2018, have unanimously elected Tom for a third term as president and chief executive officer of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation.

Item 13-06

[The assembly approved Item 13-06. See pp. 14, 21.]

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation recommends that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) direct the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation to do the following:

1. Continue its churchwide gifts program, as well as utilize the Foundation’s subsidiary, New Covenant Trust Company, N.A., for the benefit of churches, church organizations, and individuals who wish to use the foregoing to make gifts as an expression of Christian faith and stewardship.

2. Explore and initiate ways to enhance its expertise and capacity in support of planned and deferred giving (including wills emphasis) and to explore the services of New Covenant Trust Company, N.A., that will allow these programs and entities to be ever more effective contributors toward the fulfillment of the Great Commission for the Glory of God.

3. Continue to explore and cultivate the growing number of national and worldwide ecumenical and business relationships consistent with the mission and witness of the PC(USA) to further advance the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation’s & New Covenant Trust Company’s (NCTC’s) work to serve the church in ministry and mission.

4. As donors increasingly ask for more transparency from the mission and ministry organizations they support, continue the Foundation’s commitment to focus on its fiduciary obligation to ensure funds are used in accordance with donor intent.

Rationale

Each General Assembly, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation trustees ask the General Assembly to endorse the Foundation’s work in support of mission and ministry throughout the church. This unbroken series of affirmations allows the Foundation to confidently pursue its ministry among congregations, presbyteries, synods, related organizations, and individual Presbyterians. General Assembly validation of our vital work on behalf of mission and ministry is essential to our effectiveness throughout the church.

An amount of $122 million was made available through the Foundation for mission and ministry in congregations, mid councils, national agencies, and related entities in 2016 and 2017. Additionally, as a ministry of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), the Foundation’s efforts to nurture the accumulated resources of Presbyterians to further the mission of the church, call us to grow the resources that support mission giving for the future. New gifts and accounts amounting to more than $115 million were received over the course of the two-year period.
These striking results are a testament to the power of giving witnessed by the Foundation as it lives its goal of bringing people and mission together. Because of the generosity of faithful Presbyterians, over the past five years the Foundation has made available nearly $300 million for the work and mission of the church.

[The assembly approved Item 13-07 as amended. See pp. 14, 21.]

The [Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation, through the Board of National Missions (a constituent corporation of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation),] Assembly Committee on BOP, PILP, PPC, & Foundation recommends that the 223rd General Assembly (2018):

1. Commemorate the 90th anniversary of the launch of the Jarvie Commonweal Service (also known as the Jarvie Program) and the acceptance of its first beneficiary in 1927.

2. Affirm the successful transition and ongoing work of the Jarvie Program in support of elderly beneficiaries, and the ongoing oversight of said program by the Jarvie Commonweal Service Committee (JCSC) pursuant to the donative documents.

3. Commend [the commissioners to the 222nd General Assembly (2016) and others who have collaborated and] [all those who have] worked in good faith and good will [with members of the JCSC and staff of the Presbyterian Foundation] to continue the healthy and strong ministry to the Jarvie family of clients.

Rationale

The 222nd General Assembly (2016) debated a commissioners’ resolution that sought an administrative review of the Jarvie Program by a special committee. The assembly voted overwhelmingly to reject the resolution, and added this comment: “In the interest of Christ’s reconciliation and the hope for closure, the 222nd General Assembly (2016) would strongly recommend that both parties (commissioners and Foundation) avail themselves of the Foundation’s offer to mediate all issues in this resolution” (Minutes, 2016, Part I, p. 957). Following six constructive meetings (in person and by telephone conference) of Foundation and Jarvie leaders with the commissioners who brought the resolution and other interested parties, the Board of National Missions offers this resolution in response to the assembly’s request.

About the Jarvie Program

The Jarvie Program, formally known as the “James N. Jarvie Commonweal Service,” is an elder-care program that provides social work services and, in many cases, financial support to elderly individuals who meet certain qualifications that were defined by James N. Jarvie, a wealthy lifelong Presbyterian who endowed the program ninety years ago.

The 1934 Trust Agreement that conveyed the funds, fiduciary responsibility, administration, and operation of the Jarvie Program to the Board of National Missions (BNM) expressly stated that the board was to continue the “Jarvie concept of Old Age Relief and Service.” That concept reflected Mr. Jarvie’s “understanding and deep sympathy for the unfortunate, particularly for those who, born and reared and living the active years of their lives in comfortable circumstances, found themselves in their old age in poverty and distress.”

A network of Jarvie Program staff, including social workers and a Presbyterian chaplain, provide care for members of the Jarvie Program family and help sustain them through their lifetime. The social workers are employed by the Jarvie Program LLC, a subsidiary of VIP Health Care Services.

In addition, the Jarvie Program includes a separate fund that provides grants to organizations in the Jarvie catchment area to provide services to older adults. The program provided $100,000 of these grants in 2016 and an additional $100,000 in 2017. This is consistent with the level of grants paid in prior years.

The Board of National Missions of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), a constituent corporation of the Presbyterian Foundation, has custody of and manages the Jarvie endowment funds and has the overall responsibility for all aspects of the Jarvie Program.

Jarvie Program Governance

Several years after the death of James N. Jarvie in 1929, the trustees who had been operating the Jarvie Program decided to turn that responsibility over to the Board of National Missions, reasoning that this would provide greater stability than continued administration by an independent board that had no institutional affiliation and whose members were growing older.

According to a trust agreement executed in 1934, the Board of National Missions assumed “all obligations” for the Jarvie Program. The board has custody of and manages the endowment funds, and it has the overall responsibility for all aspects of the Jarvie Program, including the delivery of service. It is ultimately accountable for ensuring that beneficiaries are being served appropriately by the Jarvie Program.
Under the trust agreement, the board organizes a committee called the Jarvie Commonweal Service Committee (Jarvie Committee). The board appoints and removes the members of the Jarvie Committee and delegates to the committee the administration and oversight of the program. The Jarvie Committee is not a corporation and has no authority to enter into contracts. That authority lies solely with the board. The Jarvie Committee meets regularly in New York City.

Transition of Program Oversight

Separate from the Board of National Missions and the Jarvie Committee, a third group hires and employs the Jarvie social workers and other staff who provide service directly to beneficiaries. In November 2013, the Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA), which had performed this operational function since 1986, informed the BNM that it had decided to terminate its management agreement with the BNM. The PMA had concluded that the program was not consistent with its mission work plan, and its leaders recommended that the program be operated by a larger, New York City-based agency. The board appointed an eight-person ad hoc committee to explore potential providers. A request for information was prepared that identified five different criteria:

- An excellent track record of service to beneficiaries;
- Existing, in-house capability and expertise to operate Jarvie Program;
- A demonstrated ability to operate efficiently and within budget;
- Financial soundness and full regulatory compliance;
- Mission and values alignment.

A total of twelve agencies were contacted, and five finalists were selected. The strengths and weaknesses of the five were carefully considered. Their regulatory compliance history was examined. Questions were asked. Sites were visited. And ultimately VIP Health Care Services of Richmond Hill (Queens), New York, scored highest on all five of the criteria. VIP is a family-owned, licensed home care services agency that has provided social work and health care in the New York City area for more than forty years. VIP has extensive experience in elder-care and is relied upon by state and local agencies to operate numerous funded social work programs. Based on that, and with the concurrence of the PMA, VIP was selected and a contract was negotiated. In July 2015, the PMA terminated its Jarvie employees and its oversight of the program. At that point, the Jarvie Program was transitioned to VIP, operating as Jarvie Program LLC.

Current Operation of the Jarvie Program

The board and the Jarvie Commonweal Service Committee have closely monitored the performance of VIP’s Jarvie Program LLC over the two-and-a-half years since the transition, and have been exceptionally pleased. Since the transition, there have been two surveys of Jarvie beneficiaries, and the results have been uniformly positive. There have been numerous effusively positive comments about the social workers employed by Jarvie Program LLC to provide the Jarvie service.

Moreover, the Jarvie Program has achieved these outstanding results while achieving program overhead and administrative cost savings and ending a pattern of deficits the program had been experiencing without any reductions in grants or services to beneficiaries. Additionally, the program has been able to resume adding new beneficiaries as others leave the program. A total of nineteen new beneficiaries have been accepted to the program since the transition, and four to five others are awaiting approval at the time of this writing. At least nine of the new beneficiaries came as referrals from Presbyterian pastors in the New York area. Prior to the change, deficit budgets were planned through 2020 and no new beneficiaries were scheduled to be added from 2015 to 2017.

The Presbyterian Chaplain

In the summer of 2017, the board made a major new commitment to the Jarvie Program by hiring the Reverend Marjory Roth, a Presbyterian minister, as full-time chaplain to the Jarvie Program. Rev. Roth is providing spiritual care, prayer, and pastoral counselling to Jarvie beneficiaries, in partnership with their congregations. The budget to hire the chaplain became available because of the Jarvie Program’s more efficient business model that has achieved significant costs savings without compromising benefits and stipends for beneficiaries.

Conclusion

Questions raised by two commissioners to the 222nd General Assembly (2016) regarding details of the transition and continuing operation of the program have been substantively addressed through a series of constructive meetings with leaders of the Jarvie Committee and Foundation staff. The good faith contributions of these commissioners and other interested parties to the ongoing care for Jarvie beneficiaries are commendable, and are much appreciated by the Board of National Missions.

The Board of National Mission firmly believes that the services provided to Jarvie beneficiaries have improved since the transition, and have been accomplished at a lower administrative and overhead cost than previously and without running a deficit, thereby enabling the addition of new beneficiaries and the hiring a full-time chaplain to provide spiritual care that has been a missing element.

ACSWP ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 13-07

Advice & Counsel on Item 13-07—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) answer Item 13-07 with the action taken on Item 13-01.

See Item 13-01 for more information.

Item 13-08

[Item 13-08 was answered by the action taken on Item 13-01. See pp. 14, 21.]

On Creating a Special Committee to Assure Compliance with Donor Restrictions on the Administration of the Jarvie Commonweal Service—From the Presbytery of New York City.

The 223rd General Assembly (2018) expresses concern that the recent restructuring of the Jarvie Commonweal Service raises ecclesial issues; and recognizing its responsibility and duty to oversee the work of its bodies, and to ensure that those bodies honor express promises made to donors, and to promote openness and accountability in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), directs the Moderator/Co-Moderators of the 223rd General Assembly (2018) to appoint, within sixty days from the close of the 223rd General Assembly (2018), a special committee with the following responsibilities:

1. The special committee is to conduct an administrative review, which shall have the power and responsibility to investigate the recent changes to the governance and accounting treatment of the Jarvie Commonweal Service (“Jarvie Service”) and compliance thereof with the terms of the 1934 Trust Agreement and the General Assembly’s instructions to its constituent bodies, and to take what action it finds necessary to assure that the Jarvie Service thenceforth continues to be in compliance with the Trust Agreement and those instructions, including the power to speak with appropriate witnesses and obtain relevant documents under the control of any Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) body or agency; and including the authority to obtain staff support (as funded below) through the Office of the General Assembly.

2. The special committee shall complete the first phase of its work and prepare an interim report and set of recommendations no later than one year from its date of appointment, bearing in mind the needs of the Jarvie Service recipients, which shall be presented to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly; and a final report that shall be made to the 224th General Assembly (2020).

3. The expenses incurred by the special committee shall be budgeted and advanced by the Board of National Missions (“BNM”) or its fiduciary, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation (“Foundation”), out of the Jarvie endowment or the earnings thereon, as administrative expenses incurred under the Trust Agreement.

[The Presbyterian Foundation finds several untrue and unproven legal conclusory statements in the Rationale which they address in their comments following the overture.]

Rationale

The new Form of Government, in G-4.0101, requires that a corporation formed by the General Assembly to hold property (such as money), shall “receive, hold, encumber, manage, and transfer property, real or personal, for and at the direction of the council” [i.e., the General Assembly].

The General Assembly has placed express restrictions on the management of “property” by its subordinate entities, which include the Foundation and the Board of National Missions (BNM), which are designed to preserve this property and ensure that the national Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) honors the express terms of any gift accepted by the Foundation or its constituent corporations, including the express terms of the Trust Agreement signed by BNM in 1934 when it accepted the Jarvie endowment.

The 198th General Assembly (1986) included such restrictions in the “Deliverance Implementing a Design for the Corporation Structure of Certain Agencies of the General Assembly,” issued in 1986, which states in Section 3(d)(3) that “in every case where a donor has specified the purposes for which principal or income may be expended, refrain from making any expenditure inconsistent with the terms of the gift.”

The Jarvie Service is an old age and relief service for people in the Greater New York City area (defined by a fifty-mile radius of Columbus Circle, Manhattan) that was created and operated by Mr. James N. Jarvie in the 1920s and subsequently transferred by the Jarvie Fund to BNM with a significant. self-sustaining endowment pursuant to a 1934 Trust Agreement.
The 1934 Trust Agreement required the BNM to create, continue, and support the Jarvie Commonweal Service Committee ("JCSC") with the responsibility of conducting the Jarvie Service. It required the BNM to “charge said committee with the duty of administering the commitments above assumed and of adding thereto and continuing as outlined herein, in fact and in spirit, the Jarvie Concept of Old Age Relief and Service.”

The Jarvie Concept of Old Age Relief and Service is not merely care for elderly people; rather, as stated in the 1934 Trust Agreement, the aged needy must be helped to live, not merely to exist. This also includes a Trust requirement for making outside grants to NYC-area senior organizations.

The Jarvie Service is entirely financially supported by the earnings on the Jarvie endowment, now worth approximately $90 million and held and invested as agent for the BNM by the Foundation.

Until mid-2015, the Jarvie Service and its staff were administered solely and directly by the Jarvie Commonweal Service Committee, a group independent of the BNM board as required by the 1934 Trust Agreement.

In mid-2015, after secret preparations, the Jarvie Service was dramatically restructured and its regular professional and other staff summarily fired by the Foundation, without the prior approval and knowledge of the entire Jarvie Commonweal Service Committee. The Foundation then hired a private for-profit home care agency to provide all services to Jarvie Service beneficiaries, dismissed some or all of the JCSC members mid-term, and replaced the JCSC itself and its Trust-mandated authority with a Foundation “Jarvie Advisory Committee” which operates in a cloud of secrecy.

In 2016, the Foundation abruptly changed its accounting treatment of the $90 million Jarvie Commonweal Endowment Fund that had been a liability “funds held for benefit of others” for eighty years, commingled it with the Net Assets equity owned by the Foundation, and named the Board of National Missions as its new “beneficiary” without required court approval. A large group of New York City area ministers and elders asked the Foundation to reconsider this new accounting treatment, and provided substantial supporting documents and information. The Foundation refused to make any changes and refused to explain why it would not do so.

The organizational and accounting changes made by the Foundation to the Jarvie Service and Fund will prevent any other Presbyterian stakeholders from verifying compliance with the promises BNM made to the Jarvie donor under the Trust Agreement. All of the earnings on the Jarvie Funds is required to be available in priority to provide benefits to Jarvie beneficiaries, not to the Foundation or its designees.

The 222nd General Assembly (2016) received a commissioners’ resolution (Item 13-08) raising concerns with the Foundation’s restructuring of the Jarvie Service, and approved a comment suggesting that the Foundation and the commissioners seek reconciliation of those issues (Minutes, 2016, Part I, p. 957, https://www.pc-biz.org/#/search). Some inconclusive meetings were held, but the Foundation from the outset refused to consider restoring the Jarvie Service to independent control by the Jarvie Service Committee and other measures required by the 1934 Trust Agreement. The important fundamental issues of governance raised in the commissioners’ resolution thus remain unresolved along with numerous other incidental and derivative matters.

The General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission declined to take jurisdiction over this dispute with the Foundation, saying that any failure by the Foundation in 2015 to comply with BNM’s fiduciary and other promises to the Jarvie Fund donor raise only civil, state law issues; neither donor nor beneficiaries have any ecclesial compliance recourse within the church. (The Session of the Rutgers Presbyterian Church v. The Presbyterian Foundation, the Board of National Missions, and the Presbyterian Mission Agency, Remedial Case 222-08).

Despite the prior direction of the General Assembly to meet and resolve these issues, the staff of the Foundation and the BNM and their Boards have so far failed to provide requested relevant information and documents relating to their unlawful decision to restructure the Jarvie Service, and satisfactorily explain how the restructuring and almost total lack of transparency and professional oversight in its subsequent operation meets the plain requirements of the 1934 Trust Agreement and the limitations on use of property entrusted to the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) imposed by the General Assembly and the needs of Jarvie beneficiaries.

Response to Request on Item 13-08—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution received a request for clarification from the leadership team of 13 Assembly Committee on BOP, PILP, PPC, & Foundation.

Request for clarification on Item 13-08 presents the following questions upon which it seeks constitutional interpretation:

1. Assembly Committee 13 asks the Advisory Committee on the Constitution to advise Assembly Committee 13 whether or not Item 13-08 is out of order in light of the Book of Order citations dealing with administrative reviews stating that the review of a lower council is done by a higher council (Book of Order, G-3.0108). Item 13-08 asks for an administrative review of the Foundation, which is not a council of the church.

2. Assembly Committee 13 asks the Advisory Committee on the Constitution to advise Assembly Committee 13 whether or not Item 13-08, as written, is constitutional. Item 13-08 would grant the authority to a committee to take action vs. recommending action. In addition, since no action by a council has been taken, there is no action to review.

Findings

Pursuant to G-3.0501c and G-6.02, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution makes the following findings with respect to the questions presented:

1. With respect to the first question presented, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution finds that Item 13-08 is not out of order. A special committee to conduct an administrative review is not limited only to the provisions described in G-3.0108b, c. While the Book of Order citation referenced does speak directly of the oversight of a higher council over a lower council, that does not negate the responsibility of any council to review the actions of its own agencies. Book of Order, F-3.0209, states that “Councils possess whatever administrative authority is necessary to give effect to duties and powers assigned by the Constitution of the church.” For the General Assembly, this includes “providing those services, resources, and programs performed most effectively at a national level” (Book of Order, G-3.0501c), which includes the administration of the Jarvie Commonweal Service. This authority can be executed in many ways. In this particular instance, administrative review could be carried out by an individual, a task force, a special committee, or an administrative commission.

2. With respect to the second question presented, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution finds that Item 13-08, as it is written, asks the General Assembly to appoint a committee with responsibilities beyond the purview of a committee. If the assembly intends that administrative review of the work of the Jarvie Commonweal Service be carried out, the reviewing body can be established in accord with the desired parameters of its work. If the assembly desires that the review body be empowered to investigate and to take action on behalf of the assembly, then it needs to appoint an administrative commission. If the assembly desires that the review body be empowered to inquire and recommend subsequent action to the next General Assembly, then a task force, special committee, or other body could be appointed.

Item 13-09

Moved to Item 13-Info. [See p. 1180.]

Item 13-10

[The assembly approved Item 13-10 as amended. See pp. 14, 22.]

The Board of Pensions recommends that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) accept the document, Living by the Gospel: A guide to structuring ministers’ terms of call, and request the Board of Pensions to annually update and distribute, at the Board of Pensions’ expense, the document to all mid councils, committees on ministry, committees on preparation for ministry, committees on preparation for ministry, and pastor nominating committees.

[In an effort to promote awareness of gender disparity in clergy benefit and salary packages, the 223rd General Assembly (2018) urges COMs, within twelve months of the close of the assembly, to]

- study and adopt the theology of benefits in the document Living by the Gospel;
- conduct a review of the last five years of salary and benefit statistics by gender in their own context and share the findings with clerks of session, CPMs and candidates for ministry;
- share these statistics annually at presbytery; provide a copy of Living the Gospel to PNCs and incoming committee members; and, in situations where a pastor is not receiving benefits, or when his or her salary is below minimum, require the session to provide a full written explanation to the COM.

[Replace “sisters and brothers in Christ” with “siblings in Christ,” in good stewardship, as reprinted.]

Rationale

This guide to structuring ministers’ terms of call promotes employment practices that are a witness to Jesus Christ, the head of the Church. Appendices include salary studies and data on plan benefits provided to newly ordained ministers. Living by the Gospel outlines significant new programs designed to help small employers, innovative new ministries, and recently ordained ministers who are burdened with educational debt. It is intended to be a resource to serve mid councils, committees on ministry, committees on preparation for ministry, churches, and search committees.

The Board of Pensions develops and administers The Benefits Plan of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). The Benefits Plan includes pension and retirement savings plan; medical, death, and disability coverage; and optional programs. In addition, the Board of Pensions administers The Assistance Program and provides educational and wholeness programs for members of the Plan.

The church’s provision of benefits for its employees is holy work because it allows them to bring their best gifts to ministry. Living by the Gospel begins with the Board of Pensions’ Theology of Benefits, which is grounded in Scripture, the Book of Confessions, the Book of Order, and reports and papers approved by previous General Assemblies. The church has stated a commitment to compensation that includes salary, benefits, vacation, and opportunity for spiritual growth and renewal.

The Benefits Plan of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is based on values. The plan demonstrates the connectional church with community nature and generational equity. The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) regards benefits as a matter of justice, mission, compassion, and stewardship.

The Book of Order requires that all ministers installed as pastors be provided with the package the Benefits Plan defines as “Pastor’s Participation.” These dues are calculated as a percentage of effective salary, reflecting community nature. Ministers’ well-being is supported by Sabbath Sabbatical Support Grants, CREDO, and the Minister Educational Debt Assistance Grants (need-based grants of up to $25,000 over a five-year period).

Living by the Gospel introduces “Pathways to Renewal”—an employer dues incentive that reduces dues for congregations who select Pastors’ Participation for new plan members under the age of forty. This incentive is designed for congregations with less than 150 members where there has not been an installed pastor for at least three years or any church with an installed pastor that expands ministerial headcount. The discount is available to the employer for the lesser of five years or the termination of the employment relationship.

Living by the Gospel exposes and will track gender inequity in the hiring practices of the PC(USA) and its congregations. Over the last ten years, more women than men have been ordained, yet men have obtained benefits at a greater rate and the salary study appendices show an ongoing gender gap in compensation. Continuing to track this important data annually is critical in assessing progress toward true gender equity.

Living by the Gospel concludes with a demonstration of the Board of Pensions’ stewardship in managing the Pension Plan, Retirement Savings Plans, Death and Disability Plan, and Medical Plan. The Board of Pensions is the means through which the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) cares for those who answer God’s call to ministry. Living by the Gospel is a resource for mid councils, committees on ministry, committees on preparation for ministry, churches, and search committees. When congregations and other employers provide just compensation for their employees, they provide witness to the Lord and are living by the Gospel.

ACWC ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 13-10

Advice & Counsel on Item 13-10—From the Advocacy Committee for Women’s Concerns.

The Advocacy Committee for Women’s Concerns advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 13-10 with comment.

ACWC is grateful to the Board of Pensions for explicitly naming the realities of gender disparity in this document:

Over the last ten years, there has been a distinct gender disparity as to the provision of benefits in PC(USA). Women outnumber men ordained, 1,597 to 1,503, but men have obtained benefits at a far greater rate—77 percent to 62 percent. Although there are areas of progress, the gender distinction in compensation is clear, as the salary study in the appendices of this document shows. While the Board cannot know the individual circumstances and choices of those seeking a call, the overall pattern cannot be ignored. It is therefore incumbent on COMs to embrace a goal of gender equity in reviewing and approving terms of call for all ministers (Living By the Gospel 10).

ACWC encourages this assembly to not simply receive this information, but to consider an action plan for addressing this systemic gender injustice beyond hoping COMs will embrace a goal of gender equity.
[In response to Item 13-11, the assembly approved an alternate resolution. See pp. 14, 22.]

Alternate Resolution:

1. Encourages the Presbyterian Mission Agency and the Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program, Inc., to consider forgiveness of mortgage grants established in 1968 or earlier only to congregations closing and turning over their assets to their presbyteries, potentially including the total amount of the grant as well as any accumulated interest.

2. Request the Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program, Inc., to inform all affected congregations and their presbyteries as this decision effectively provides debt relief to presbyteries closing congregations and thus may affect presbytery mission strategy as well as the decisions of congregations.

[Financial Implications: PMA Restricted Annual Loss of Revenue $106,485; PMA Restricted Total Loss of Revenue $212,970]

Commissioners’ Resolution. On Issuing a Jubilee Declaration for Church Mortgage Grants Pre 1968.

That the 223rd General Assembly (2018)

1. Direct the Presbyterian Mission Agency and the Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program, Inc., to declare a “Jubilee” for all PC(USA) congregations holding church mortgage grants established in 1968 or earlier, forgiving the total amount of the grant and any accumulated interest.

2. Direct the Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program, Inc., to inform all affected congregations directly of the Jubilee Declaration, notifying them of the note forgiveness and thanking them for their faithful service to the PC(USA).

3. Direct the Presbyterian Mission Agency and the Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program, Inc., to devise ways to publicize and celebrate the Jubilee Declaration.

Rationale

The Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program, Inc. (PILP), provides a wonderful service to the denomination, making low-interest loans (below market) available to congregations and providing professional financial advice to congregations considering building campaigns. This resolution is unrelated to the work initiated since the inception of PILP. Instead, it seeks to forgive the “Church Mortgage Grants” that predate the formation of our denomination. It seeks to provide a “Jubilee” for all PC(USA) congregations (mostly small churches) holding these grants/loans that are more than fifty years old.

Before the formation of the Presbyterian Church (USA) in 1983, the former “northern” UPCUSA issued funds to small congregations to help sustain them. These funds were known as “Church Mortgage Grants.” Though the term “Grants” was used in the name, it was understood that these funds were considered grants only so long as congregations continued in ministry. If they closed their doors, or if they left the denomination to join other denominations, the amount was immediately considered a “loan” and was due and payable, with interest, at the time of the church closing or departure.

Just over 800 of these old loans still exist, totaling approximately $8.7 million without including interest. In today’s numbers, they are comparatively small amounts of money. Most of the grants were issued for as little as $1,000, to as much as $25,000–30,000. Some of the loans were made as early as the 1920s and 1930s, with some as late as the early 1960s.

After the creation of the Presbyterian Church (USA) [PC(USA)] in 1983, and after the creation of the Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program, Inc. (PILP), in the late 1980s, a predecessor to the Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA) assigned the responsibility for monitoring and collecting these loans to PILP. They have done so in the form of quarterly statements issued to presbyteries along with quarterly statements on the status of the presbyteries’ other PILP loans.

Reasons to declare a “Jubilee” and grant release from the “Church Mortgage Grants”:

1. It has been fifty to ninety years since these “grants” were made. The role of the church is not to hold indebtedness indefinitely. The time has come, and is overdue, to grant release.

2. As interest is only calculated at the time of closing, a congregation already grieving may discover that a very old grant has been converted to a loan, adding significantly to the indebtedness, with repayment in full required. This can leave the remaining members with a very negative impression of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

3. The repayment requirement removes funds from the church’s presbytery where funds at closing could help initiate new ministries or revitalize existing ones.
ACSWP ADVICE AND COUNSEL ON ITEM 13-11

Advice and Council on Item 13-11—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve an alternate resolution for Item 13-11.

Item 13-11 proposes ending the potential indebtedness of congregations leaving the denomination or simply closing, whose long-ago mortgage loans convert to debt in either event. The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises the following substitute motion:

“In response to Item 13-11, the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approves the following:

“1. Encourages the Presbyterian Mission Agency and the Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program, Inc., to consider forgiveness of mortgage grants established in 1968 or earlier only to congregations closing and turning over their assets to their presbyteries, potentially including the total amount of the grant as well as any accumulated interest.

“2. Request the Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program, Inc., to inform all affected congregations and their presbyteries as this decision effectively provides debt relief to presbyteries closing congregations and thus may affect presbytery mission strategy as well as the decisions of congregations.”

The pre-1968 mortgage grants were structured to provide an incentive for growing congregations. Without distinguishing between congregations closing and congregations leaving the denomination, the commissioners’ resolution provides an incentive for the departure of congregations and weakens our presbyteries. This substitute respects the Presbyterian ecclesial principle that all property is held in trust of our whole church, and should be used in service to the Gospel of Jesus Christ. The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy responds to this resolution not to oppose generosity but to affirm that congregations and presbyteries have a moral accountability for any shared or gifted assets of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

Minutes, Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program, Inc.
The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Investment and Loan Program, Inc. ("ILP" or the "program") offers low-cost loans for capital purposes to churches, mid councils, and other organizations within the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) (the "PC(USA)" or the "church"). As one of the six agencies of the PC(USA), we are the national lender for the denomination. We fund these loans from two sources: investor funds and endowment funds. The investor funds are raised through the sale of investments called Term Notes and Denominational Account Receipts. These investments provide a competitive financial return plus the opportunity to participate in the development of the church through the loans ILP issues. Investor-funded loans and the investments themselves are assets and liabilities of ILP.

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Investment and Loan Program, Inc. promotes the growth of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) bringing together the visions of church developers and the resources of Presbyterian investors and financial partners.

The endowment funds are the result of donations from generous Presbyterians over many years dating back to 1843—donations given specifically to support the growth and development of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). The ILP manages the entire loan process for both the investor-funded loan portfolio and the endowment-funded loan portfolio from beginning to end. However, the endowment funds—both the loan portfolios and the uncommitted funds for each endowment fund—are held in trust by the PC(USA) Foundation or the Presbyterian Mission Agency and sit on their respective balance sheets.

Guided by the best practices of the financial industry, ILP is committed to faithful stewardship of the resources entrusted to us for the support and growth of the mission of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

When we refer to our lending for “capital purposes,” our deliverance issued at the 207th General Assembly (1995) directed us to lend to Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) organizations “to enable them to acquire or improve real property” (Minutes, 1995, Part I, p. 366). We can help fund the purchase, construction, expansion, or renovation of worship and mission space. We can also fund the purchase of unimproved land for the purposes of future construction of church buildings or for parking areas. Responding to the 1001 Worshipping Communities initiative and the increased use of rental space by congregations for worship and mission, we now offer loans for leasehold improvements.

Donor restrictions received with the endowment funds have similar restrictions allowing for only capital purpose loans. We cannot extend loans to churches for operating expenses or program or mission purposes; nor can we lend to individuals for any purpose.

The endowment-funded loan portfolio did not experience this jump in loan numbers. Although still quite active, the small projects, the smaller loans. So, although we still had many loans using endowment funds, the total dollar amounts were significantly less and insufficient to replace the loans being paid down or paid off. Therefore, the portfolio actually

Continuing to emphasize these areas, 2016 and 2017 delivered positive results. We have seen increased interest in our program across the denomination as our pipeline of loans (loans approved but not yet closed and closed loans not yet fully disbursed) set historical highs in both years. This now stands at $23.6 million ("M") as was our disbursed loan portfolio. Much of this growth came from (1) our increased emphasis on face-to-face meetings with mid council leadership in order to increase our exposure and their understanding of what we can offer their congregations, and (2) our increased number of face-to-face meetings with congregations seeking to borrow funds. Our expanded consulting services (more thoroughly discussed below) were clearly an important part of stimulating this growth as well.

Having this larger disbursed loan portfolio reflects both the need that exists from the various PC(USA) organizations (primarily churches) and our ability to fulfill our mission in providing low-cost funding to these organizations. Equally important is that this larger portfolio enables ILP to move forward in one of our long-term goals: decreasing our net interest margin. For many years we have strived to decrease our net interest margin that, in turn, would allow us to lower the loan interest rates we charge borrowers. When our loan portfolio increases this allows us to spread our operating costs over a larger base of loans thereby reducing the pressure on the net interest margin needed. As market rates have climbed over the past two years, including five increases in the prime rate, we have not had to increase our rate. This is a direct result of the larger loan portfolio.

The endowment-funded loan portfolio did not experience this jump in loan numbers. Although still quite active, restrictions on endowments limit the type and size of projects/loans the endowments can fund. The endowments fund the smaller projects, the smaller loans. So, although we still had many loans using endowment funds, the total dollar amounts were significantly less and insufficient to replace the loans being paid down or paid off. Therefore, the portfolio actually... declined, as it has for the past eight years. First hit by the financial crisis of 2008/2009, then by the loss of churches to declining membership and denominational issues, the restrictions on the endowments have not allowed the recovery that the investor-funded portfolio has experienced.

The good news on the endowment-funded lending portfolio? Over the past two years we have been able to increase the loan pipeline by 50 percent as we have grown the overall interest in our program at a time when the economy is strong and congregations can better afford building projects. As a result, we cut the annual decline in half this past year. More importantly, we are still meeting the borrowing needs of the church—just more of the funds are coming from investor funds than endowment funds. We continue to work on ways to put more of these endowment dollars to work as the donors intended.

Behind all these numbers are many loans for renovation purposes (major maintenance projects, updating their buildings, and changing their space to fit their mission as it has changed), some loans for expansion, and some refinancing loans as well. The refinancing loans have been a mix of those seeking better rates and those seeking a loan structure and terms that better fit their church’s cash flow. The purchase or construction of a brand new building or “first unit” building these days is uncommon; however, we funded five of these projects over the past two years. These included a large business condominium with full build out for a congregation that had been renting for many years, a large building purchase for a presbytery that is now using this to house two young congregations as well as their presbytery offices, construction of a first church home for a new church development, and one purchase and one new build for two separate mission projects. Behind these numbers are a countless number of Presbyterians finding ways to do mission in new ways—with the space they need to accomplish it.

Throughout both 2016 and 2017, ILP was able to generate a surplus, something achieved for the past seventeen consecutive years. This is very important to our regulators. As we are not a commercial bank, we are not subject to oversight from federal regulators. However, for the protection of those that purchase our investments we are reviewed on an annual basis by security administrative regulators in every state, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico. These regulators generally use the North American Securities Administrators Association Statement of Policy as guidelines for their oversight. Generating a surplus is one of the primary guidelines. In addition to meeting the regulatory requirement, surpluses help assure investors of the strength of our program, help provide capital for future expansion of the program, and help raise our capital adequacy ratio (another regulatory item). The combined surpluses from 2016 and 2017 have helped us toward our goal of building our capital adequacy beyond the 5 percent required by regulators to the 10 percent level. According to preliminary yearend figures, at the end of 2017, ILP had $11.9M in unrestricted net assets that supported a capital adequacy of 11.4 percent—up from 9.3 percent two years ago.

The ILP’s investment products are securities regulated under The Uniform Securities Act, which is administered state-by-state. The North American Securities Administrators Association (mentioned above) establishes program guidelines for denominational investment and loan programs. At the end of 2017, ILP exceeded all of the guidelines. In addition to the capital adequacy previously discussed, ILP is expected to maintain a liquidity ratio of liquid assets to Term Notes and Denominational Account Receipts (“DARs”) of at least 8 percent. At the end of 2017, our liquidity ratio was 19.4 percent. Another primary guideline is the limitation of senior secured debt to no more than 10 percent of total assets. At the end of 2017, ILP had no senior secured debt.

Our low-cost loans have low interest rates, no application fees or points, and no prepayment penalties. We also offer an opportunity that no other lender we know has, the opportunity to get back some of the interest paid. Through the “Get the Point” program, borrowing congregations earn rebates based on supporting investments. This, in essence, lowers the effective interest rate on their loans. For 2017, ILP returned $270,873 to borrowing congregations, bringing the total returned to congregations since the inception of the rebate program to more than $4 million. This is $4 million that went right back into the mission and ministry of those congregations.

Equally important to the loans we offer is the consulting services we provide. We have issued more than two thousand loans to Presbyterian organizations over the years—the vast majority to churches. We have gained a wealth of knowledge over this time. Working with congregations and presbyteries to help them determine the appropriate size project and loan amount, cash flow requirements, and debt service capabilities, can help avoid severe pitfalls. We work with the congregation to determine the best loan package for their project.

Many lenders only look at the first five or seven years of the church’s cash flow to determine debt service capability. We review the cash flow and debt service requirements through the life of the loan, until the debt is retired. We want the congregation to understand the short- and long-term financial commitments and the leadership to set the appropriate financial expectations in front their congregation. Our goal is to help the congregation avoid a future situation where the debt service for a loan has any negative impact on their ability to fulfill the mission and ministry of their church.

Upon the request of their board and synod, in late 2012 we began the process of transferring the ministry of the Church Development Corporation (“CDC”), an investment and loan program of the Synod of Mid-America, to ILP. They felt that services were being duplicated and if ILP could service the borrowing needs of the synod, they would be able to use their resources for other programs. All but three of their loans have been refinanced and the vast majority of the investments they issued have been reinvested with ILP or redeemed. We anticipate finishing the winding down of CDC late this year.
The 221st General Assembly (2014) had a tremendous amount of interest surrounding the fossil fuel issue. As a positive step in responding to the General Assembly’s fossil fuel concerns, the program and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation met in 2014 to explore the possibility of encouraging proactive steps within congregations to advance green initiatives. A new loan product was developed in 2015 named the “Restoring Creation Loan” that is available to churches and other PC(USA) organizations for the funding of sustainable energy systems, highly efficient heating/cooling systems, or other improvements aimed at reducing their carbon footprint. This loan can be up to $600,000 and offers very low rates, easier equity terms, and utilizes the cost savings into the debt repayment plan. Rather than just responding to borrowing needs from churches and other PC(USA) organizations, our goal is to proactively initiate renovation/construction projects that intentionally reduce our denomination’s carbon footprint while moving energy savings into mission opportunities. At 2017 yearend, we had funded $6.1M of Restoring Creation Loans to date.

Toward the end of 2016, we introduced another loan, the Accessibility Loan. This loan not only incentivizes building projects that improve physical accessibility to PC(USA) churches and other buildings but also visual and aural accessibility. This, too, has a discounted interest rate to promote such projects. As of 2017 yearend, we had issued $1.4M in Accessibility Loans.

The ILP has maintained careful underwriting standards. Although sensitive to the nature of church finances within our underwriting process, we believe that relaxed standards do not benefit the lender or the borrower. We maintain a review process for all lending relationships and work intentionally with presbyteries, who guarantee our loans. This process has resulted in a loan portfolio that continues to have low delinquency rates and a very high collection history. At the end of 2017, ILP had no thirty-day or longer delinquencies in the investor-funded portfolio and only eight delinquencies for the endowment-funded portfolio.

The ILP continues to be in sound financial shape. The balance sheet is strong with total assets of $105 million. As mentioned above, our financial ratios are at healthy levels. We have received an unqualified audit every year. We have been approved for the sale of our Term Notes in every state and jurisdiction for every year since we began our general offering of Term Notes. Although the size of our loan portfolio had fluctuated over the past seven years, we generated surpluses every year (including during the financial crisis) through close management of assets and liabilities, operating expenses, pricing, and margins.

Our hope is that ILP will be the premier provider of financing for capital projects within the PC(USA). We want Presbyterians to think about ILP first when it comes to financing a capital project. We will not compromise our underwriting standards to grow the business, but will build the kind of relationships that help congregations determine what they can afford and what they cannot. We are building an investment base of individuals that has a vision of investing for financial and mission return. We are making it possible for Presbyterians to lend to Presbyterians.

We remain committed to promoting awareness of ILP throughout the church. We continually work to maintain strong and healthy ties with General Assembly agencies and mid councils. We continue to build a competent and diverse staff to serve the church. The program will focus energy on the following areas of activity in 2018:

1. We will continue to develop new avenues to inform congregations and presbyteries of our services. We have encountered many congregations that could have used our consulting services and/or our loan services to improve the management of their capital projects. With the transitional nature of both presbytery and congregational leadership, the challenge is keeping our name in front of church leadership.

2. We anticipate that interest rates will continue to increase throughout 2018. We anticipate that our cost of funds will increase more rapidly than our income from interest on loans. We will manage our costs, interest rates, and margins to help keep loan interest rates as low as possible for our borrowing congregations.

3. We will market the Accessibility Loan and the Restoring Creation Loan actively to help initiate capital projects that will improve the accessibility to our churches and the energy efficiency of our church buildings to lower the carbon footprint of our denomination.

4. Although significantly fewer than in the past, we anticipate that additional congregations with loans and mortgage grants will ask to be dismissed from the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). We will work with presbyteries to reinforce the language of the loan documentation, including the acceleration clause making the loan due and payable before the congregation can be released. We will work with presbyteries seeking to provide “gracious separation” for congregations wanting to leave the denomination to understand that the mortgage and guaranty remain in place until the loan is paid in full. This will require working with the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), A Corp., the presbyteries, and the congregations to ensure the repayment of existing loans and to provide the documentation and recovery of the funds provided many years ago through mortgage grants.

5. The program will work toward completing the transfer of ministry from the Church Development Corporation to the Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program. The vast majority of loans and investments have been transferred or redeemed as of 2017 yearend. We are currently administering the remaining $883 thousand loan portfolio of three loans and $427 thousand of investments they have sold to individuals, congregations, and mid councils. We will continue to perform all financial functions and reporting to their board of directors. Work toward refinancing their loans into the ILP portfolio will continue, and we will use the proceeds of this refinancing activity to redeem the Savings Certificates and Stewardship Accounts. Promotional offers to their investors to invest the funds from these redemptions in ILP Term Notes and Denominational Account Receipts will continue to be extended.

6. The staff and the board will use the 223rd General Assembly (2018) as an opportunity to promote the program, to further strengthen existing relationships, and to establish new relationships among PC(USA) entities, mid council leaders, and congregational leaders.

7. The staff will seek out ways to expand our consulting role in advising and guiding churches and presbyteries on financial implications of debt financing.

8. The staff will work to strengthen connections between the marketing team and the underwriting team to create a seamless organization for our customers and prospects; reviewing current processes to uncover opportunities to simplify the loan process for our customers and shorten response times.

9. The staff will continue to explore strategic initiatives to fulfill our desire for continued growth in the loan portfolio. The marketing staff will use leads from the Annual Statistical Reports and conversations with mid council leadership.

10. Senior leadership will work with the board of directors to determine the best structure for board effectiveness. The board and staff will work collaboratively to explore new markets and products to meet changing needs within the church and the program.

B. Presbyterian Publishing Corporation Agency Summary—2018

Mission Statement

“Building on the Reformed tradition, the Presbyterian Publishing Corporation seeks to glorify God by contributing to the spiritual vitality of Christ’s church. To that end, PPC publishes resources that advance religious scholarship, stimulate conversation about moral values, and inspire faithful living.”

Introducing the Presbyterian Publishing Corporation (PPC)

The Presbyterian Publishing Corporation, one of the six entities of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), exists to serve and support the church’s mission. To do so, PPC combines an emphasis on the mission and ministry of the PC(USA) with a strategic focus on customer service and the employment of sound business practices. PPC, which has a religious publishing heritage of more than 175 years, was formally incorporated in 1994 as a nonprofit corporation and is financially self-sustaining.
Presbyterian Publishing Corporation carries out its work by building on the Reformed theological tradition and its commitment to the ministry of the Word, the life of the mind, and engagement with the needs of the world. Accordingly, PPC’s publications are intended to address the needs of the denomination, to make original contributions to religious and theological thinking, and to clarify ethical and moral issues that confront church leaders and the wider society. These publications include, but are not limited to:

- educational and worship resources for Presbyterian congregations and members;
- practical and thought-provoking material for pastors and other church professionals;
- theological and religious books and other materials for use in religious higher education;
- children’s books for use in churches, homes, public schools, libraries, and the general trade;
- books on spirituality, Bible study, Christian living, life challenges, and social issues for mainline Christians and the religiously unaffiliated.

With worldwide distribution of more than 2,000 titles, PPC continues to build one of the most successful and respected publishing programs in the fields of church, academic, and general religious publishing—a program recognized around the world for challenging works by leading authors of diverse viewpoints.

Organizational Overview

Presbyterian Publishing Corporation is comprised of:

- Westminster John Knox Press (WJK)—the corporation’s prestigious academic and trade book imprint;
- Flyaway Books—The corporation’s newest imprint, publishing award-winning books for churches, schools, and general readers;
- Geneva Press—the corporation’s imprint that prints titles that are specific to the needs of the PC(USA) community;
- PCUSAStore.com—a comprehensive selection of Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) resources that provide the information and materials necessary to support new and existing congregations, leaders, study groups, and individuals;
- TheThoughtfulChristian.com—an ecumenical marketplace dedicated to helping Christians and seekers find resources to help them understand, share, practice, and be challenged in their faith;
- These Days—a quarterly devotional magazine that has been a source of comfort and hope throughout the world for decades.

PPC Highlights in 2017

- Served the church through a new retail marketplace, PCUSAStore.com, adding the sales of Presbyterian Mission Agency, Office of the General Assembly, and Presbyterian Women resources through the site.
- Published more than fifty new books and resources.
- Provided retail marketplaces at the PC(USA) Big Tent and Association of Presbyterian Church Educator conferences.
- Continued to promote Glory to God: The Presbyterian Hymnal, while developing additional hymnal-related resources for congregations, worship leaders, and families.
- Continued development of the revised Book of Common Worship, to be published in 2018 on its 25th anniversary, along with the Office of Theology and Worship and the Presbyterian Association of Musicians.

PPC Benevolence Programs

Presbyterian Publishing Corporation supports the work of ministry within the PC(USA) through various benevolence programs created for the express purposes of assisting those in need and contributing to the overall mission of the PC(USA). It is a sign of PPC’s commitment to this mission that the benevolence programs are maintained as well as possible even in years of financial difficulty.

Included in PPC’s benevolence programs are the following:

BENEVOLENCE

Books Without Borders & The Theological Book Network—PPC provides current publications to international seminaries in need of books through a partnership with Presbyterian World Mission and with the Theological Book Network.

Disaster Assistance—Churches that have experienced lost and damaged property and are recovering from disaster receive a package of replacement resources, including copies of the Presbyterian hymnal Glory to God and the Book of Common Worship (BCW). In collaboration with Presbyterian Disaster Assistance.

Resources for New Worshiping Communities, Church Developments, and Fellowships—Newly formed worshiping communities, church developments, and fellowships receive complimentary resources of their choosing, as they begin their ministries and build a community of faith. In collaboration with the Office of the General Assembly (OGA).

Resources for Newly Ordained Teaching Elders—Newly ordained teaching elders in the PC(USA) receive complimentary resources of their choosing as they begin a new phase of ministry to the church. In collaboration with the Office of the General Assembly.

LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT

Robert W. Bohl Racial/Ethnic Internship Program—PPC provides a ten-week internship in its offices to a racial ethnic seminary student [PC(USA) preferred] who is interested in considering religious publishing as ministry.

ADDITIONAL COLLABORATION

Book of Common Worship (BCW)—PPC is collaborating with the Office of Theology and Worship to revise the BCW for 2018.

Interpretation—began a collaboration with Union Presbyterian Seminary, under the direction of Brian Blount, to revise the venerated Interpretation Commentary Series.

Glory to God Hymnal—PPC collaborated with the Office of Theology and Worship and the Presbyterian Association of Musicians to develop and produce the new Presbyterian hymnal.

PCUSAStore.com—PPC is collaborating with Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA), Office of the General Assembly (OGA), Presbyterian Women, and other agency partners to provide this central online store for PC(USA)-produced books, curriculum, and downloadable resources.

Continued a partnership with Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary on a new lectionary commentary series, Connections.

Partnered with the Presbyterian Foundation to provide a copy of 50 Ways to Help Save the Earth, by Rebecca Barnes, to all commissioners of the 222nd General Assembly (2016).

Partnered with the Presbyterian Board of Pensions to provide a copy of Our Connectional Church, by Gradye Parsons, to all commissioners of the 223rd General Assembly (2018).

Glory to God: The Presbyterian Hymnal

The Glory to God hymnal was developed by the fifteen-person Presbyterian Committee on Congregational Song (PCOCS), a volunteer committee composed of musicians, scholars, pastors, and theologians. The project was a collaborative effort between Presbyterian Publishing Corporation (PPC), the Office of Theology and Worship (TAW) of the PC(USA), and the Presbyterian Association of Musicians (PAM). In 2012, the hymnal was commended for use in the PC(USA) by the General Assembly, and it was published in September 2013. PPC has assumed all the costs associated with the development and production of the hymnal, including the expenses of the PCOCS. No PC(USA) mission funding was used.

FACTS ABOUT GLORY TO GOD

- There are 853 hymns, psalms, and spiritual songs in the new hymnal.

  Glory to God contains music covering all major historical and contemporary sacred genres, including African American/gospel hymns, contemporary praise songs, global music, hymns that have never been published in a Presbyterian hymnal, and more.
- Glory to God has several indexes, allowing congregations to use the hymnal for worship preparation and a study/devotional resource.

- Glory to God contains liturgical resources, including the Service for the Lord’s Day, Baptism, and Reaffirmation of Baptism.

- This excellent church resource is available in red or purple. There are also two cover editions to choose from: the Presbyterian version (which features the PC(USA) seal and the words “The Presbyterian Hymnal”) and the Ecumenical version (which features the words “Hymnals, Psalms, and Spiritual Songs”).

- There are several accompanying resources, in addition to the pew hymnal, including: accompaniment editions, large-print and large-print text only editions, projection editions, a CD for families and children, a hymnal companion, Advent caroling edition, and more.

WJK

Westminster John Knox Press (WJK) is one of the most respected academic religious publishers in the world. For more than 175 years, WJK and its predecessors have served scholars, students, clergy, church members, and general readers. The result has been an award-winning depth and breadth of publications for the training of seminarians, the dissemination of religion scholarship, and the spiritual and ethical formation of clergy and laity.

Books and resources published under the WJK imprint cover the spectrum of religious thought and represent the work of scholarly and popular authors of many different religions and theological affiliations. WJK publishes approximately sixty new books and other resources each year and manages a backlist of more than 2,000 titles that are sold throughout the world.

A few of the top books published by WJK and its predecessors include:

- 1838—The Way of Salvation Familiarly Explained in a Conversation between a Father and His Children by Presbyterian Board of Publication;

- 1841—Institutes of the Christian Religion by John Calvin;

- 1958—William Barclay’s Daily Study Bible series begins;

- 1962—Race and the Renewal of the Church, by Will Campbell;

- 1966—The Gospel According to Peanuts by Robert L. Short;

- 1974—Human Liberation in a Feminist Perspective, by Letty Russell;

- 1977—The Bible Makes Sense, by Walter Brueggemann;

- 1982—Prophesy Deliverance! by Cornel West;

- 1992—Women’s Bible Commentary, edited by Carol A. Newsom and Sharon H. Ringe;

- 2008—WJK starts printing volumes in the twelve-volume preaching commentary series, Feasting on the Word, a partnership with Columbia Theological Seminary;

- 2015—WJK begins partnership with Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary on the new lectionary commentary series called Connections;

- 2017—WJK published A Bigger Table by well-known pastor and author John Pavlovitz.

Flyaway Books

In 2017 PPC launched a new children’s book imprint, Flyaway Books. Flyaway Books will be penned by a varied group of authors and illustrators, from beginners to experienced writers and artists. The titles will be intentionally multicultural in their artwork and characters. They will carry themes of diversity, inclusion, self-esteem, kindness, compassion, and care for our world. Many of them will help children understand today’s most pressing social issues. Some will retell familiar religious stories in new ways, while others will carry universal themes appropriate for those from any, or no, religious background.

Many Flyaway Books will be appropriate for use in public and private schools, school and public libraries, and book stores. Others will be aimed at church communities in mainline, emergent, progressive evangelical, and similar traditions.

In just a few short months our first books, still carrying the WJK imprint, have received positive reviews in The New York Times Sunday Book Review, Kirkus, Foreword, and Publishers Weekly. Our first book was named a selection of the Junior Library Guild. Future authors include bestselling children’s book authors Sandy Sasso and Kathy Bostrom, noted New Testament scholar Amy-Jill Levine, the African American Episcopal pastor and activist Michael Waters, and author and illustrator Katie Yamasaki.

Retail Marketplaces

PPC operates several online retail marketplaces to serve the church. These include the following:

The Thoughtful Christian (www.thethoughtfulchristian.com) is an online religious marketplace including digital and print resources that are perfect for Sunday school classes, Bible study groups, clergy and preachers, Christian educators and teachers, religious academic scholars, students, and individuals who seek to grow, nurture and even ask questions to develop their faith and inform their faithful action in the world. By offering current and theologically sound books; studies for youth, adults, and parents; and retreat guides, we strive to encourage Christians to share their thoughts and beliefs while wrestling with questions that inform the way we live out our faith in everyday life.

PCUSAStore.com is a central online store where you can find PC(USA)-produced books, curriculum, and downloadable resources related to the Presbyterian faith, including information about the new Presbyterian hymnal, Glory to God. Providing excellent customer service and an overall positive shopping experience are top priorities for the PC(USA) Store team. The store is maintained by the Presbyterian Publishing Corporation, the publishing house of the Presbyterian Church (USA), in partnership with other agency partners from PMA, OGA, and Presbyterian Women.

These Days

These Days is a quarterly devotional magazine that offers powerful daily inspirational meditations interspersed with Bible verses, reflective prayers, and action steps to encourage readers to apply what they have read to their daily lives. These Days is published by PPC in cooperation with the PC(USA), the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, the Presbyterian Church in Canada, the United Church of Canada, the United Church of Christ, and the Cumberland Presbyterian Church in America.

C. Benefits Plan Amendments Report—From the Board of Pensions

The Board of Pensions reports the following amendments to the Benefits Plan of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) (the “Plan”) adopted by the Board of Pensions since the 222nd General Assembly (2016).

Since the 222nd General Assembly (2016), the Board of Pensions adopted amendments to add or improve the benefits offered under the Benefits Plan, effective January 1, 2019 (unless a different effective date is stated). The substantive changes are highlighted below.

A. Pension Plan

- A 2.0 percent experience apportionment pension benefit or pension credit increase for Plan Year 2016 (the increase was effective July 1, 2017, for members in pay status and applied to credits accrued as of December 31, 2016, for active and term vested members).

- A 3.9 percent experience apportionment pension benefit or pension credit increase for Plan Year 2017 (the increase is effective July 1, 2018, for members in pay status and applied to credits accrued as of December 31, 2017, for active and term vested members).

B. Retirement Savings Plan

- The Retirement Savings Plan documents were amended, effective January 1, 2017, to allow loans from participant accounts.

- The Retirement Savings Plan documents were amended, effective January 1, 2019, to give employers the option to elect:
  - An auto-enrollment program for new hires that will automatically contribute a percentage of the new employee’s salary into the Retirement Savings Plan. The employee may opt-out of the auto-enrollment or change their contribution percentage.
  - An elective deferral auto-escalation option that will increase the employee’s percentage of salary contribution to the Retirement Savings Plan by a percentage to be determined by the employer, not to exceed the IRS contribution limit. The employee may opt-out of the auto-escalation or change their contribution percentage.

C. Death and Disability Plan

- A new group term life benefit for employers to offer employees enrolled under the menu-based benefits options that provides a lump-sum payment at the time of death to a member’s designated beneficiaries on a noncontributory basis.

- A 1.0 percent disability benefit increase for Plan year 2016 (eff. July 1, 2017).

- A 2.0 percent disability benefit increase for Plan year 2017 (eff. July 1, 2018).

D. Medical Plan

- A new high deductible health benefits option (HDHP Benefits) for the Medical Plan’s menu-based benefits options. The HDHP Benefits coverage option has a higher deductible than the preferred provider organization (PPO) and exclusive provider organization (EPO) Benefits options and is qualified to be offered with a health savings account.

- The Covered Medical Services under the PPO, EPO, and HDHP options will include:
○ A new preventive prescription drug services benefit that reduces or eliminates the copayment amount for drugs designated by the Plan for preventive care (i.e., when a person has the risk factors for a disease but is asymptomatic or to prevent the reoccurrence of the disease).

○ An improved centers of excellence program that reduces the deductible and copayment responsibilities of a member who uses a preferred facility for a procedure and reimburses the Member for reasonable travel and lodging expenses for the member and a companion to travel to that facility. Centers of excellence are designated by the plan on the basis of their expertise and quality performance outcomes in delivering specialty care.

• Appendix F, the summary of benefits, deductibles, and copayment maximums for the Medical Plan coverage options, has been updated for 2018 and 2019.

• A new optional benefits program for Vision Eyewear Coverage offers discounts and reimbursement for a portion of the member’s or eligible family member’s vision wear (eyeglass, contact lenses).

E. Dues

• The Board of Pensions is authorized to offer time-limited, targeted dues reductions or dues waivers to incent employers to offer coverage under the Benefits Plan to employees or designated classifications of employees. This provision facilitates the Board’s adoption of the Pathways to Renewal program for churches that, among other things, offers pastor’s participation coverage to newly ordained ministers at a reduced dues rate. It is effective as of July 1, 2018.

The Board of Pensions communicates all Benefits Plan amendments when they are adopted through The Board Bulletin and other Board of Pensions communications. A copy of the verbatim text of the amendments reported above and the official plan documents for the Benefits Plan and the Retirement Savings Plans, effective as of January 1, 2018, are available on the Board of Pensions’ website (pensions.org) or by calling the Board of Pensions at 800-PRESPLAN (800-773-7752).

D. New Covenant Trust Company, N.A., a Subsidiary of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation.

New Covenant Trust Company, N.A. (NCTC), a subsidiary of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation, was chartered by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency on January 2, 1998. The company serves as trustee of various types of trust instruments and provides investment management services. NCTC’s Board has enacted policies and procedures to ensure compliance with banking laws and provides oversight of the delivery of services to the Presbyterian community.

NCTC partners with individuals and Presbyterian and related organizations in the delivery of trust services, such as personal trusts, wholly charitable trusts and charitable remainder trusts, and investment management services. These services allow NCTC to create custom solutions such that trust, investment management, and philanthropic goals and objectives can be met. NCTC consistently strives to deliver superior service to the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and seeks to enhance opportunities available to Presbyterians to express their Christian faith and generous stewardship.

NCTC provides shareholder and social witness services to New Covenant Funds, a family of mutual funds organized with participation from the Presbyterian Foundation. The services provided by NCTC help ensure the investments in New Covenant Funds are aligned with the social witness principles of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

NCTC also provides customized investment portfolios for individual and institutional investors that align with their mission values. Mission-driven portfolios may include screens for one or more of the following:

• Companies involved in alcohol, tobacco, gambling, war materials;

• Companies that are making a major contribution to carbon dioxide emissions;

• Positive investment in certain parts of the world.

The following individuals were confirmed by former General Assemblies and as of the submission of this report continue in their service as Directors of New Covenant Trust Company, N.A.

Foundation Trustee

Stephen C. Kelly, Banker, White, Male, Married, Lay, Over 50, Synod of Living Waters.

Former Foundation Trustee

Timothy P. Clark, Senior Bank Officer, White, Male, Married, Lay, Over 50, Synod of Living Waters.
E. Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation Agency Summary

Mission Statement

A vital part of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), the Foundation cultivates, attracts, and manages financial resources of individuals and institutions to serve Christ's mission.

Summary

The Foundation remains true to its original charge from the 1799 General Assembly to solicit from individuals and congregations, “pious donations and bequests in order to supply the funds which are absolutely necessary to carry on with advantage the great and charitable work” of the church.

Today we partner with congregations, councils, agencies, and related ministries to gather, steward, and distribute funds for their mission and ministry. Our nationwide staff of ministry relationship officers works with pastors, ministry leaders, and individual donors to develop communities of Christian generosity in support of Christ’s mission in the world.

In countless ways, the Foundation offers charitable expertise and services that unite and empower Presbyterians and the ministries about which they are passionate. We strive to do so in a trustworthy, clear, and accessible manner that reflects the faith and values of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

The Foundation has much to offer the church:

Stability. The Foundation has been forging partnerships with donors, congregations, and others to fund mission for more than two centuries. One of six national agencies of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), the Foundation is composed of highly skilled officers and support staff trained in the areas of gift administration and compliance, accounting, law, communications, funds development, philanthropy, trust services, and more.

Connection. We work in leadership and partnership with the whole denomination to fund its mission. The Foundation does not compete with local congregations or any other institution of the church for charitable gifts. To the contrary, we are committed to strengthening these entities by developing gifts and managing funds on their behalf.

Commitment. We provide all Presbyterians with an avenue to realize their philanthropic goals through a variety of giving options. We maintain a strong focus on the Presbyterian values and principles that drive our stewardship initiatives.

Highlights of Our Work

Ministry Relationship Officers

Our nationwide staff of ministry relationship officers works to cultivate funds for mission and grow communities of generosity throughout the church. Combining decades of pastoral, leadership, and funds development experience, these officers help church leaders assess the financial health, generosity capacity, and stewardship practices of their congregations, then build on their strengths and address their weaknesses.

Project Regeneration

Faithful stewardship of church resources always looks to the future because congregations go through life cycles. The reinvention of a congregation, the closing of a church building, or the merger of multiple congregations can mean more than the end of a previously vibrant ministry. It can also mean the opportunity for the sale or transformation of excess church property into funds for new ministry. It can mean freeing an existing congregation from the burden of supporting a facility that no longer meets its mission needs.

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation is partnering with churches and presbyteries across the denomination to discover and explore creative options for ministries that need adequate funding in order to grow and prosper. Endowment funds are among the many options available to leave a lasting legacy of the faith community by naming a ministry and specific purpose for the use of the fund, and provide support in perpetuity.

Online Giving

Presbyterians are generous by nature—we are passionate about mission and give joyfully to the projects, causes, and organizations that touch our hearts and engage our minds. To help expedite that generosity, the Foundation has created the Presbyterian Mission Exchange—a web-based giving hub with tools to facilitate easy online donations. Congregations can quickly and easily offer online giving to their members through the Mission Exchange.

Presbyterians use the Mission Exchange to discover and fund churches and charities that are sharing their gifts to heal the sick, feed the hungry, clothe and shelter the poor, educate and build up their communities, and promote the good news of Jesus Christ throughout the world. In 2015 alone, donors made more than 8,800 gifts totaling more than $2.9 million to 332 congregations and ministries using the Presbyterian Mission Exchange.

Donor-Advised Funds

The fastest-growing charitable gift vehicle is the Donor-Advised Fund (DAF), and the Presbyterian Foundation offers a flexible and easy-to-use DAF program. Donors make an initial gift (which may offer immediate tax benefits), then recommend over time when to make grants from the fund, which ministries to support, and what amounts to give.

The Foundation provides online tools to manage the funds, including making gifts and grant recommendations, changing investments options, and tracking giving over time.

Donor-Advised Funds are excellent tools for teaching generosity and developing family giving patterns across generations.

Wills Program

Annually, the Presbyterian Foundation offers a Wills Emphasis program to congregations throughout the denomination. At the program’s beginning in the 1950s, wills were the main focus of gift development. Currently, that focus has shifted to remembering the church in estate planning. While simple bequests in a will are still important, now the Foundation can provide guidance for complex estate plans in coordination with an individual’s tax and legal advisors.

To complement congregation-based bequest and planned giving efforts, the Foundation offers pastors a package of wills program resources including a leadership guide, website, sample appeal letters, bulletin inserts, social media content, and more. These materials are provided free of charge to any Presbyterian congregation—the only expenses are the shipping and handling costs.

Expanded Investment Options

The Foundation and its subsidiary, New Covenant Trust Company, offer a range of investment services to congregations and related Presbyterian institutions. New Covenant Funds provide an easy entry point and daily liquidity for congregations who want to self-direct their investment portfolio within the PC(USA)’s mission responsibility through investment framework. New Covenant Trust Company offers a variety of more customized investment options to match the congregation’s policy objectives. Presbyterian Endowment Funds are held permanently by the Foundation, invested in a diverse yet socially responsible portfolio by Northern Trust, and pay out according to an established spending formula designed to provide stable funding over many years.

Transformational investment options allow congregations and other Presbyterian institutions to invest positively in organizations creating positive solutions to challenging situations. These include a series of development projects in Israel and Palestine developed in response to the 220th General Assembly’s (2012) call for positive investment in the region.

Care for the Environment

While Presbyterians continue to discuss how best to provide care for God’s creation and mitigate the negative effects of climate change, the Foundation’s Board of Trustees has adopted a five-pronged approach to leveraging denominational investments to address environmental concerns:

- The Foundation’s investment committee has allocated an initial investment of at least 1 percent of the Presbyterian Endowment Fund into investments that target climate change solutions.

- The Foundation has directed its investment managers to consider environmental factors in their security selection process. New Covenant Funds (a family of mutual funds created and sponsored by the Foundation) adopted ESG (Environmental, Social, and Governance) positive screening in 2014.

- The Foundation continues to work with MRTI in dialogue with energy companies to bring about change.
The Foundation is utilizing a portion of the Church Loan Program, for which the Foundation is the fiduciary, for loans that implement renewable energy or carbon reduction solutions. This effort is in partnership with the Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program, Inc., which administers the loans, and the Presbyterian Mission Agency’s Mission Development Resource Committee, which sets terms for loans and grants.

The Presbyterian Foundation subsidiary, New Covenant Trust Company, provides fossil free managed solutions to congregations, institutions, and other clients desiring a customized approach.

Stewardship Education

The Presbyterian Foundation is the denomination’s hub for stewardship education. It’s a natural extension of the work we’ve been doing since 1799—helping Presbyterians and their congregations to become people and places of joyful generosity. The Foundation provides an array of stewardship resources, including training seminars and conferences, publications, e-newsletters, planning ideas, case studies, and online tools.

In 2015, the Foundation was awarded a $1 million grant to take part in the Lilly Endowment’s National Initiative to Address Economic Challenges Facing Pastoral Leaders. The initiative supports a variety of religious organizations across the nation as they address the financial and economic struggles that can impair the ability of pastors to lead congregations effectively. In this three-year program, the Foundation is further developing stewardship resources for congregations, along with training programs in financial literacy and leadership for pastoral and lay leaders. The Foundation is working in close collaboration with the Board of Pensions on this, which also received a Lilly program grant.

Item 14-01

[The assembly approved Item 14-01 with amendment. See p. 17.]

On Developing a Letter to Accompany the Confession of Belhar—From the Presbytery of New Castle.

The Presbytery of New Castle overtures the 223rd General Assembly (2018) to approve the creation of a task force to:

1. Develop a U.S. letter to accompany the Confession of Belhar that addresses the participation of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and other Reformed bodies in racism in our historical context, building on prior statements of repentance and apology. As with the original accompanying letter from the church in South Africa, while not of constitutional character, whenever the Confession of Belhar is printed in the Book of Confessions, it should be accompanied by this “U.S. accompanying letter” once the task force prepares it and it is approved by the General Assembly.

2. Include within the development of this U.S. accompanying letter such topics as unfair [unfair] unjust land acquisition; near genocide of native peoples; the enslavement of African men, women, and children; and a system of white privilege that unfairly discriminates against people of color.

3. Share this work with other U.S. Reformed churches and full communion partners, building on past ecumenical efforts to address the sin of racism in view of enduring tensions, and on a common concern to honor our identity as churches “reformed, always to be reformed according to the Word of God” (Book of Order, F-2.02).

4. Request the Moderators of the 222nd and 223rd General Assemblies (2016 and 2018), in consultation with the Presbyterian Mission Agency and the Office of the General Assembly and their advisory and advocacy committees, jointly to name a team of seven PC(USA) members from the fields of theology, social ethics, ethnic and racial history, law and/or philosophy, capable of contributing to a concise but comprehensive statement to be presented for approval to the 224th General Assembly (2020).

5. Request the Stated Clerk to invite as many as four other Reformed and/or Full Communion churches to nominate (single) representatives to serve on the task force, sharing in their costs, both to contribute to the drafting work and to help develop shared strategic conversations about our witness in a diverse culture.

[Financial Implications: Per Capita Annual $13,364. Total—$26,728]

Rationale

Presbyterians are one of the oldest religious bodies in the United States. A number of U.S. government structures are modeled on our church. We celebrate how Presbyterians helped shape the institutions, founding documents, and religious life of this nation.

Yet, we know the history is much more complex and problematic. Our story is fraught with failure to live according to God’s call and riddled with contradictions and sinful actions that have never been enumerated and confessed in our constitutional documents.

European founders arrived on these shores filled with dreams and seeking religious freedom, but the land was already full of people living their own dreams within thriving and diverse cultures. America had already been “discovered” and was a cherished home to native peoples!

Nevertheless, many Christians, including those from our church, participated in removing native peoples and taking their land, actions that resulted in the near genocide of the original American residents. Soon after came the brutality of 246 years of chattel slavery. Many European settlers, including many Presbyterian church leaders, owned enslaved Africans. Our church split over slavery. Many Presbyterians believed that the tragic civil war solved much of the racial injustice, yet even after slavery was officially abolished and repudiated, various forms of legal and customary racial discrimination reigned in this land for more than a century. And though many laws have now changed, institutional patterns of discrimination linger. Racism is indeed America’s original sin.

The PC(USA) took a big step towards addressing racism by adding the Confession of Belhar, the first confession from the global South, to our Book of Confessions at the last General Assembly. Written by an oppressed church suffering racial discrimination, Belhar is an important statement of solidarity and repudiation of racism. The addition of a U.S. accompanying letter will help us take the next step that is sorely needed: to name and confess the sin of racism built into the fabric of our own corporate society and individual lives.

Why an accompanying letter?

As a reminder, our collection of confessions in the Book of Confessions originated with the adoption of the Confession of 1967. The Book of Confessions includes creeds stating what we believe (Nicene, Apostles, Scots, Second Helvetic, Confession Various attempts have been made over the decades to convince the PC(USA) to write its own confession regarding racism. Most often, these requests have arisen from people of color in the church calling an overwhelmingly white denomination to account for its actions.

The Confession of 1967 did address the intent of God to break “down every form of discrimination based on racial or ethnic difference, real or imaginary” (Book of Confessions, 9.44). A concise letter responding to the Confession of Belhar from the U.S. context might strengthen the new confession and also serve to address our historic complicity in sinful actions.

Why now?

The U.S. is once again facing a kairos moment with regards to its racist history. Fear of “the other” continues to permeate society and church. People of color live in fear in their own country. While some hope for a return to an imagined better past, many Presbyterians are taking action on issues of racial justice. A denominational letter modeled on and complementing the South African example would help us better understand and apply Belhar in our 21st century U.S. context.

The PC(USA) is an overwhelmingly white denomination wishing to diversify its membership to include people of other ethnicities. We also hope to appeal to younger people. The Millennial generation cares deeply about social justice. How can our church expect to earn the trust of new groups if we do not boldly confess our racist past? We can no longer ignore a sin that has shackled us for generations. This is the time to courageously seek forgiveness as a denomination.

If not now, when?

Imagine this generation taking the courageous step to name the sin, articulate the dangerous theology and ideology that allowed the sin to be practiced for so long, and collectively apologize. Let us acknowledge what needs to be forgiven, and ask God to set us free from our sin, and lead us to a world where all people will be free to live with justice, dignity, and peace. What a gift to future generations of the church and what a message to new, diverse communities, that we pledge to strive for the eradication of racism.

ACSWP ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 14-01

Advice & Counsel on Item 14-01—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

Item 14-01 calls for a concise “Accompanying Letter” to go with the newly adopted Confession of Belhar that would suggest ways that South African statement applies to the U.S. context.

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises approval in light of the following considerations.

The existing Accompanying Letter for the Belhar Confession partly reflects the initial efforts to gain support among South African English and Afrikaner background whites as well as black, “Colored,” and Indian South Africans. To date, the confession has not been adopted by the main white Reformed Church in South Africa. While “the Belhar” is used by the Christian Reformed Church and the Reformed Church in America as well as by the PC(USA), it is generally not as well known in global Reformed churches as the Accra Confession or Declaration, adopted in Ghana in 2004 by the World Alliance (now Communion) of Reformed Churches. Thus, there is not only an educational motivation to the request for a U.S. accompanying letter, there is a question: why does the Confession of Belhar seem to fit the U.S. context, more than thirty years since its first writing, under the conditions of apartheid?

In January of 2010, in preparation for the Uniting General Council of the World Communion of Reformed Churches (WCRC), the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy held a consultation on the Belhar and Accra confessions attended by at least one person from all the Reformed churches in North America and the Caribbean. The joint statement from that consultation looked at the particular style of both Belhar and Accra for their “family resemblance” to the Theological Declaration of Barmen of 1934. Though Belhar was addressing race and the church itself, and Accra was addressing globalization, particularly in its economic aspect, both of the children of Barmen were doing a theological critique of culture, and then also providing a promise or annunciation. God was “still speaking,” as the United Church of Christ would say; there was a covenant being renewed with a transcendent God who was calling the church to a next step in reformation.

Coming particularly from the angle of theological ethics, ACSWP sees a great value in the creation of an accompanying letter. We note that the Presbyterian Mission Agency Board endorsed a similar idea in February of 2017, seeking to listen to Belhar in its reflection and planning of mission. Yet, as our colleagues in Theology and Worship were aware when a very long and awkwardly written letter was presented with Belhar to the General Assembly that approved sending it to the presbyteries, that letter missed the mark. Too affirming of too many pages of boilerplate prose, it was three times as long as Belhar itself.

We hear a different tone in this overture and would be honored to be consulted or included in some fashion, hoping for serious theological and ethical work to be done. Clearly, one part of the preparation work at least would be looking at the legacies of The Confession of 1967 and The Brief Statement of Faith and helping Presbyterians make deep connections without blocking the potential appreciation of Full Communion partners.

As we read the overture, it would include seven PC(USA) persons and three from our Full Communion partners, if those bodies so chose, even if their own adoption of Belhar as a confession were unlikely. Gene TeSelle once distinguished six kinds of confessions, however: church uniting, polemical, educational, reforming, etc. Thus, each study participant would be recognizing that the same document would be performing different functions than those envisioned by its original authors and adopters.

ACREC ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 14-01

Advice & Counsel on Item 14-01—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns.

The Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 14-01.

ACREC supports this overture as it demonstrates faith in action recognizing that the PC(USA), a predominately white Christian denomination, write its own confession regarding racism. The letter would allow us to own our particular context and complicity in systems of racism and expose with honesty the places where repentance is still necessary.

The U.S. is once again facing a kairos moment with regards to its racist history. Fear of “the other” continues to permeate society and church. People of color live in fear in their own country. While some hope for a return to an imagined better past, many Presbyterians are taking action on issues of racial justice. A denominational letter modeled on and complementing the South African example would help us better understand and apply the Confession of Belhar in our 21st century U.S. context.

This overture supports ACREC’s core values of advocating for peace and unity among God’s creation. ACREC believes this overture enables the confession and forgiveness of members of the PC(USA) of the sin of racism. Once forgiven, members are now free to live together in unity and peace.

PMA COMMENT ON ITEM 14-01

Comment on Item 14-01—From the Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA).

This overture calls for the development of a “U.S. Letter to accompany the Confession of Belhar,” addressing the participation of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and other U.S. Reformed bodies in racism in the specific context of the United States of America. This accompanying letter would stand alongside and have the same (non-constitutional) status as the original accompanying letter that addressed the confession’s implications for the South African context in which the confession was first affirmed.

The Presbyterian Mission Agency notes that an accompanying letter specific to the United States and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) was developed and submitted to 221st General Assembly (2014) by the Special Committee on the Confession of Belhar. It was submitted as part of the action that brought the Confession of Belhar itself before the assembly for possible inclusion in the Book of Confessions. Though the 221st General Assembly (2014) voted not to send the newly drafted accompanying letter to the presbyteries, that letter and its content are relevant to the concerns articulated in Item 14-01.

This is the text of the new accompanying letter composed by the Special Committee on the Confession of Belhar and submitted to the 221st General Assembly (2014):

THE ACCOMPANYING LETTER TO THE CONFESSION OF BELHAR

from the 221st General Assembly (2014) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) on the occasion of the adoption of the Confession of Belhar

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is again facing a critical time in its history. We are rent apart by division and schism, we have yet to confront directly and confess the racism that has been a significant force in our own history, and we have shown a failure of resolve to make courageous stands for justice. We believe that the Confession of Belhar, a profound statement on unity, reconciliation, and justice in the church, comes to us as a word from God for this particular time and place for the PC(USA).

We understand confession as both the church’s response to human sin and as witness to our faith. Confession by the church is necessary because sin is present in social injustice and in our conscious or unconscious participation in human suffering. Confession is not a way to cast aspersions or in any way denigrate, castigate, or delimit any person or group of persons. We the church are called to confess sin because the Word of God as revealed in and through the life of Jesus Christ and the Holy Scriptures calls us to bear witness to a just, loving, and compassionate Creator.

The Confession of Belhar calls us to renew our understanding and confessional affirmation of the “one triune God, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.” The confession centers us in the reality of the Holy God of creation, the covenant, and the prophets, who was incarnate in Jesus Christ. The Spirit fills all who have come to know God through the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, the love of God the Father, and the communion of the Holy Spirit. As the Confession of Belhar affirms, the God whom we worship and serve has gathered us, protected us, and cared for us through the Word and Spirit. “This, God has done since the beginning of the world and will do to the end.”

The Confession of Belhar is particularly helpful to our common life as Presbyterians for two reasons. First, it comes to us in a time of Kairo in South Africa, when the church dared to speak with unusual clarity. It can help the PC(USA) speak and act with equal clarity. Second, it focuses the church’s confession on its own life. It is far too easy for the church to look outside of its walls and find fault, all the while ignoring the sin in its own life. Belhar focuses the church’s attention on the way its own life and witness have fallen short of the gospel.

Unity.

We believe that the gospel of God calls the entire universal church into the unity of the one triune God. At the heart of the Creator God revealed in Scripture is the invitation to enjoy the fellowship of the personal God who is one, yet three. The Lord whom we confess has a purpose and plan for the cosmos into which we have all been born by God’s providence. We learn from Scripture of “…the mystery of [God’s] will … set forth in Christ, as a plan for the fullness of time, to gather up [unite] all things in him, things in heaven and things on earth” (Eph. 1:9–10).

To this end, Jesus, the incarnate Son of God, fully human and fully God, offered us new life when he gave his life for us through his incarnation, his crucifixion, and his resurrection. This new life broke down dividing walls of hostility within humanity; transforming hatred into love and making unity a mandate from God. Unity is God’s will for humanity, beyond the differences of Jews and Gentiles, slave and free, male and female, educated and uneducated, rich and poor, and beyond social categories of races. All who heard the good news and believed in God through Christ the Savior were incorporated into the new humanity. Through the abiding presence of the Holy Spirit, those who trusted in Jesus Christ became members of the household of God and experienced themselves as being built together spiritually into a dwelling place for God. This spiritual temple called “the church” was given a mission of proclaiming, living, making visible, and extending the good news of the New Creation in Christ (Eph. 2:11–22).

Presbyterians have confessed this gospel from the early years of our history in America. Yet we have had great difficulty of living into the gift of God’s unity and mission revealed and made possible through the cross of Jesus Christ. Like our brothers and sisters in South Africa, we have been afflicted by the division of the church along racial, political, cultural, theological, and class divisions.

In South Africa the system of “apartheid,” or separation of the races, divided both nation and church into separate spheres. The Reformed Churches of South Africa justified this division and developed theological rationales for this division so that blacks and whites were not allowed to come to the same Lord’s Table. The white settlers who came from Europe to the tip of the African continent came with a vision of a Promised Land that required the removal of the native Africans or the separation of the races for the sake of racial purity, spiritual well-being, and economic development. The spiritualized gospel adopted by the white church focused upon the saving of souls but had lost its prophetic word and mission for the healing of the divisions caused by human sinfulness.

Reformed/Presbyterian Christians who came to the New World of the North American continent carried with them a sense of their own election and privilege. They too came to a “Promised Land” of new beginnings, seeking freedom and opportunity for themselves. They brought with them an understanding of the gospel that was not whole, that did not understand the completed work of Jesus Christ upon the cross, and that did not call for the church to be visibly one. To complicate matters, in order to develop the New World’s economic base, lands and workers were needed. Native Americans were removed from their lands and African slaves imported to be a source of cheap labor. Human persons were oppressed, defined as property, and denied basic human rights. The church embraced a spiritualized gospel that justified the enslavement of people forcefully and violently captured and held in dehumanizing slavery for the good of white masters and landowners. Every aspect of American culture became divided. Slaves were only counted as 3/5ths persons under the new Constitution of the United States. God’s election, interpreted as social privilege, became a theological justification for chattel slavery and racial segregation.

Privileges based on race, wealth, gender, class, and power became institutionalized and legalized. As a result, we have witnessed to the eleven o’clock hour of Sunday morning as the most segregated hour of life in the United States of America. We Presbyterian Reformed churches found ourselves in betrayal of the gospel of Jesus Christ, in our own internal worship, fellowship, and witness. We continue to live under the specters of racism, classism, sexism, and division, which remain as enduring conflicts and challenges for both church and culture.

Beyond the issues of race and class, Presbyterians in the United States of America have, from the beginning, been troubled by differing theological world views and practices. We have been willing to divide over and over again. Political ideologies, hermeneutical theories, racial prejudices, economic ideologies, and powerful personalities have driven wedges between believers, causing congregations to divide and to seek new affiliations of like-minded believers. Old School/New School believers separated and debated theology. Racial theologies divided the church and nation into north and south and led to the American Civil War. Brothers and sisters went to war reading the same Bible and praying to the same God with the confidence that God was on their sides. Fundamentalists and Modernists did battle over issues of biblical and scientific interpretations. The divisions over the ordination of women remained present into the last century. For the last quarter of the 20th century, the Presbyterian church has argued and divided over human sexuality and how to read its Scriptures in these matters. Once again, the reality of diversity has threatened to divide us so that the visible unity of the church now hangs by a slender thread.

We believe that the PC(USA) needs to be called to the unity taught and proclaimed in the Confession of Belhar. Belhar’s witness to the unity of God, the unity created by the good news of Jesus Christ and the power of the Holy Spirit, calls us to the hard work of spiritual transformation and surrender to the way of Jesus Christ who came to unite all believers in the visible communion of the body of Christ, the church.

Belhar asks us to look first at ourselves when faced with church division, rather than moving quickly to blaming those with whom we are separated. It is far too easy to look at others and blame them for division. Belhar directs us to look at our own behavior that has led to disunity. What is the log in our own eye?

Reconciliation.

The Confession of Belhar reaffirms the vision of mission articulated in the Confession of 1967: that God in Christ has done what we could not do for ourselves. The Apostle Paul wrote to the Corinthian church, “All this is from God, who reconciled us to himself through Christ, and has given us the ministry of reconciliation; that is, in Christ God was reconciling the world to himself, not counting their trespasses against them, and entrusting the message of reconciliation to us. So, we are ambassadors for Christ, since God is making his appeal through us; we entreat you on behalf of Christ, be reconciled to God” (2 Cor. 5:18–20).
In the 1960s, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) confessed its faith in the reconciling power of God in the context of a society being driven apart by racial divisions, issues of war and peace, poverty and abundance, and by anarchy in sexual relationships.

The Confession of Belhar reaffirms this witness, but more specifically calls the members of this church and the corporate structures of the church to be claimed by the gospel of God, who alone can bring us together as one family of Christ, healing the deep divides that still haunt us all.

We believe that all who have trusted in Jesus as Savior and Lord, and been baptized into the fellowship of Christ’s church, have been welcomed to the Lord’s Table. At the Lord’s Table, we receive by faith the presence of the resurrected Lord. His spiritual presence feeds us with bread and wine. At his Table we are reconciled to God, united as races, tribes of peoples speaking different languages, and representatives of many nations. We are Jew and Gentile, male and female, rich and poor, black and white and every color. We are blue and red, Democrat and Republican, Independent, Conservative and Progressive, Protestant and Catholic and Orthodox. We share in the Lord’s Table as a foretaste of the Reign of God.

In Christ, the hope of glory, we are members of the one family of God. We are brothers and sisters in Christ. And like all human families, we have our differences; we engage in conflicts. We often agree to disagree. We at times are arrogant; other times we are humble toward one another and serve one another. At each moment in time we live by the forgiveness of sins. Over time we come to realize that our life together is only in and through the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ. This side of the perfection of the New Creation we will all remain sinners and in need of spiritual transformation.

Nevertheless, Christians are called to be seekers of justice, peacemakers, reconcilers, mediators, who extend hospitality and love toward those with whom we differ. Down deep we are longing to embrace our calling, “with all humility and gentleness, with patience, bearing with one another in love, making every effort to maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. There is one body and one Spirit, just as you were called to the one hope of your calling, one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is above all and through all and in all” (Eph. 4:2-6).

Therefore, as God’s reconciled people we have promised not to break the covenant in which we are bound through the body and blood of our Lord Jesus Christ. At reunion we attempted to create the PC(USA) as a reunited church in the absence of confessing the sin that had created our original division. In the last several decades, we in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) have become increasingly separated into different political, economic, and theological camps. More than ever, we need to be claimed by the gospel of God’s reconciling love. This gospel allows believers to come together, knowing that we have more in common that unites us, than what divides us.

We American Presbyterians have not been able to fully confront our own past in regard to race. The fact is that both streams that came together to form the PC(USA), southern and northern, used theology to justify permanent inequality in church and society. A theology that grew out of giving all glory to God became justification for divinely sanctioned inequality, particularly directed at African Americans. To fully embody God’s ministry of reconciliation, we Presbyterians must confess that we have used God against others in our own church and commit ourselves to new patterns of relationship.

Reconciliation implies repair of that which has been broken. Our verbal and written confessions, while important, are far less than adequate means of repairing the harms done, restoring the losses, and reconciling the relationships that have been historically distorted. Concrete steps are required to produce the healing that we so desperately want and need.

The Confession of Belhar calls us to renew the covenant, to embrace one another as members of one family of God. Jesus Christ calls us to a costly discipleship of dying to ourselves so that we might allow his light to shine through us as a witness into the darkness of our world.

Justice

Jesus began his public ministry in his hometown synagogue in Nazareth (Luke 4). He read from the Scripture of the day, Isaiah 61. “The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has anointed me to bring good news to the poor. He has sent me to proclaim release to the captives and recovery of sight to the blind, to let the oppressed go free, to proclaim the year of the Lord’s favor” (Lk. 4:18–19).

Then he announced that in the reading of this Scripture, on that day, it had been fulfilled. He was God’s Spirit anointed Messiah who had been sent to inaugurate the Year of Jubilee, the year in which wrongs would be righted, wounds be healed, sins forgiven, slaves set free, sight restored, lands returned to their rightful heirs. It was a day of new beginnings. The kingdom of God was at hand in the person and words of Jesus. With his coming in the power of the Holy Spirit, God’s vision of justice and social righteousness were breaking into a troubled and unjust world.

Isaiah 61 was Jesus’ mission statement and it became the mission statement of the church. His mission was God’s project of healing the cosmos, making right ancient wrongs, reversing the injustices of human society, of lifting up the poor and humble and bringing down the high and mighty, (“to be repairers of the devastations of many generations”). His mission was not only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel, but also to believing Gentiles who would welcome his good news. Not all received Jesus, but to as many as turned around and believed, he gave the power to become the children of God (John 1).

As Jesus launched his mission, the poor, the sinners, the wounded, the oppressed, the blind, and the tax collectors gladly welcomed him. It was those whose privilege was threatened by transformation who rejected Jesus. They realized that he was turning the world upside down in a new day of justice and righteousness.

As the ambassadors of Christ’s reconciling love, the apostles, the sent ones, often met resistance and persecution. Many gave their lives to advance the reign of God in their announcement of the good news of God’s gracious presence and new life for those who repented and believed.

We are being called to launch this mission again in our place and time. While the Confession of Belhar arose from the struggle of South African Christians to give witness to the Gospel amidst the injustice of apartheid, we are also being called to give witness in the face of injustice here among us in the U.S.A. We see that injustice in the faces of thousands of First Nation peoples who still live in dire poverty on reservations; in young African American men who are incarcerated disproportionate to their percentage of the population; in the “legal limbo” status of immigrants, and in both native born Latinos who are subject to question in virtually every quarter of the nation; in public policies such as “stop and frisk” and “stand your ground” that put poor, black and brown young men at risk in the public square.

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) confesses its commitment to God and to the biblical principles of unity, justice, and reconciliation because in times like these in which we live, we need to remind ourselves and others of our discipleship to Christ and follow God’s mission in the world.

Some will no doubt say that the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) already has confessions for the reasons identified herein and more. But we say that these are unique times in the United States of America. The winds of polarization blow strong and threaten the body politic as never before. There is a not-so-subtle dangerous intermingling of God and nation that makes discerning the difference between the two difficult. Historic Reformed theological values are under... constant attack. The forces of evil tempt followers of Christ to walk in the spirit of disunity, conflict, and injustice. As we claim the church’s earliest confession, JESUS IS LORD, we put on notice, every principality and power, that the only Sovereign in heaven and earth is on the move.

We, therefore, close with the ringing affirmation found in the final words from the Confession of Belhar:

“Jesus is Lord.

“To the one and only God, Father, Son and Holy Spirit, be the honor and the glory for ever and ever.”

Item 14-02

On Amending Portions of the Directory for Worship—From the Presbytery of Santa Fe.

The Presbytery of Santa Fe respectfully overtures the 223rd General Assembly (2018) of the PC(USA) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendments to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

[The assembly referred Item 14-02, Recommendation 1, to the Presbyterian Mission Agency, Office of Theology and Worship. See pp. 14, 17.]

1. Shall W-3.0101 (The Day of Resurrection) be amended as follows: [Text to be added is shown as italic.]

“We gather to worship God on the Lord’s Day (Sunday) because the gospels testify that Jesus rose from the dead early on the first day of the week. The Lord’s Day is also called the ‘eighth day’ of creation, a sign of the new creation that has begun with Christ’s resurrection. Like the Jewish Sabbath, the Lord’s Day is a day for holy rest and spiritual renewal for faith communities as well as individuals and families. While we may worship God on any day and at any time, the Sunday service in particular is a celebration of Christ’s resurrection and an anticipation of the fullness of God’s coming reign.”

Rationale

The intention behind proposing this addition to the Directory for Worship is that it is too common for worship and church programming to get overloaded on Sundays. In directly guiding the planning and conduct of worship for the Lord’s Day, this addition to this particular paragraph and chapter would serve as a helpful reminder to remember the need for, and benefit of, congregational Sabbath time.

[The assembly referred Item 14-02, Recommendation 2, to the Presbyterian Mission Agency, Office of Theology and Worship. See pp. 14, 17.]

2. Shall the third paragraph of W-3.0205 (Confession and Forgiveness) be amended by adding new text to the end as follows: [Text to be added is shown as italic.]

“Other actions may follow—a song of praise, such as “Glory be to the Father” or “Glory to God”; a summary of the law or call to faithfulness; and the sharing of peace as a sign of reconciliation in Christ. In some circumstances, it may be appropriate for the sacrament of Baptism (W-3.0307, W-3.0402–.0408) to be administered at this point in the worship service.”

Rationale

Section W-3.0205 already establishes the link between confession and forgiveness, and the Sacrament of Baptism. In practice, for duly considered pastoral reasons, many ministers of the Word and Sacrament over the years have chosen to include the administration of Baptism at this point in the service, rather than later, especially with infants and younger children. Besides accommodating family needs, it can also make it more possible for other small children to be present to witness the sacrament, and be reminded of their own baptisms. In addition to practical reasons, there may be times when it is pastorally and symbolically significant for the person or persons being baptized to receive this sacrament of forgiveness, reconciliation, and assurance at this point in the service. In giving guidance to the ordering of worship, it is appropriate for the Directory for Worship to include this option.

[The assembly referred Item 14-02, Recommendation 3, to the Presbyterian Mission Agency, Office of Theology and Worship. See pp. 14, 17.]

3. Shall the fifth paragraph of W-3.0409 (Theology of the Lord’s Supper) be amended as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be inserted is shown as italic.]
“The opportunity to eat and drink with Christ is not a right bestowed upon the worthy, but a privilege given to the undeserving who come in faith, repentance, and love. All who come to the table are offered the bread and cup, regardless of their age or understanding. If some of those who come have not yet been baptized, an invitation, when appropriate, to baptismal preparation and Baptism should be graciously extended.”

Rationale

The changes suggested here are very slight. It has been said that discerning an invitation to the Lord’s Supper is also an invitation to baptism. This is certainly true in the case of unbaptized children, youth, and others seeking membership in a community of faith. There are, however, Christian believers from nonsacramental Christian bodies such as the Society of Friends and Salvation Army, who may have occasion to be attending services with us and find themselves moved by the Holy Spirit to accept the invitation to participate in the Lord’s Supper, and yet not to seek baptism. Simply dropping the word “yet” more clearly allows for this. Including the word “appropriate” serves as a reminder that matters such as age, competency, and faith tradition (as preceding) should be borne in mind.

[The assembly referred Item 14-02, Recommendation 4, to the Presbyterian Mission Agency, Office of Theology and Worship. See pp. 14, 17.]

4. Shall W-3.0412 (Great Thanksgiving) and W-3.0413 (Breaking the Bread) be amended as follows: [Text to be inserted is shown as italic.]

“W-3.0412: Great Thanksgiving

“Following the offering and the preparation of the table, a minister of the Word and Sacrament† invites worshipers to the Lord’s Supper using sentences of Scripture (including the institution narrative, if not used elsewhere). At the table, facing the people, the minister of the Word and Sacrament† shall lead the people in a prayer to the triune God: giving thanks for God’s creative power, providential care, and covenant faithfulness, along with particular blessings of the day; remembering God’s acts of salvation through Jesus’ birth, life, death, resurrection, ascension, and promised return, as well as Jesus’ institution of the Sacrament (if not otherwise spoken at the invitation to the table or the breaking of the bread); and calling on the Holy Spirit to draw worshipers into the presence of the risen Lord, nourish them in the body and blood of Christ, unite them with Christ in the communion of saints and the Church in every place, and send them in mission to the world. The prayer ends with praise to the triune God. Musical acclamations, such as “Holy, holy, holy,” “Christ has died,” and “Amen,” may be included. The Lord’s Prayer follows.

“W-3.0413: Breaking the Bread

“At the table, in full view of the people, the minister of Word and Sacrament† breaks the bread and pours the cup, or lifts a cup that has already been filled. These actions may be accompanied by sentences of Scripture (including the institution narrative, if not used elsewhere) or performed in silence. The use of one loaf and one cup expresses the unity of the body of Christ and the communal nature of the Sacrament. The bread used for the Lord’s Supper should be common to the culture of the congregation; those who prepare the bread shall make provision for the full participation of the congregation. The session will determine whether wine is used; a non-alcoholic option shall be provided and clearly identified.”

Rationale

Reference to the “institution narrative” is somewhat hidden away and easy to miss in W-3.0412. These additions at additional key places, where the narrative frequently appears in Reformed celebrations of the Lord’s Supper, help to remedy that. This is important because inclusion of the narrative is seen as normative to the administration of the Lord’s Supper by churches of the Reformed Tradition and essential in the greater family of Orthodox, Roman Catholic, and other Protestant Communions. (See, for example, the World Council of Churches Faith and Order Paper 111: Baptism, Eucharist, and Ministry, 1982).

[The assembly referred Item 14-02, Recommendation 5, to the Presbyterian Mission Agency, Office of Theology and Worship. See pp. 14, 17.]

5. Shall the second paragraph of W-3.0414 (Communion) be amended as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“When all have received the bread and cup the remaining elements are placed on the table. The minister of Word and Sacrament† then leads the people in prayer. A prayer follows, thanking God for the gift of the Sacrament and asking for grace to live and serve faithfully until the coming of Christ’s realm in fullness.”

Rationale

Although certain portions of the administration of the Lord’s Supper (institution narrative, breaking the bread and pouring the cup, and the invocation of the Holy Spirit) are widely held to be particular to the role and function of ministers of the Word and Sacrament, offering or leading the prayer after Communion need not be similarly restricted. Asking a ruling elder, deacon, or another who has been invited to serve to lead this prayer is appropriate to our Reformed understandings both of ordered ministry and the priesthood of all believers.

[The assembly referred Item 14-02, Recommendation 6, to the Presbyterian Mission Agency, Office of Theology and Worship. See pp. 14, 17.]

6. Shall the first paragraph of W-5.0104 (Household Worship) be amended as follows: [Text to be inserted is shown as italic.]

“We respond to God’s grace in the context of personal relationships, particularly when Christians who live together worship together. Historically, household worship has been a central and important practice within the Reformed tradition, an important means of faith formation. Opportunities for household or family worship include: sabbath-keeping and rhythms of daily prayer; Bible reading, study, or memorization; prayers before meals; singing hymns, psalms, and spiritual songs; and expressions of giving, sharing, and service to others. Congregations are encouraged to nurture and equip households and families for these practices.”

Rationale

As witnessed by numerous accounts and memoirs (example: Robert Burns’s warm-hearted poem, “The Cotter’s Saturday Night”), the practice of household worship has a particularly strong and distinctive place in the Reformed Tradition. In noting this, the suggested wording also emphasizes the function of the practice in faith formation.

[The assembly referred Item 14-02, Recommendation 7, to the Presbyterian Mission Agency, Office of Theology and Worship. See pp. 14, 17.]

7. Shall W-5.0104: Household Worship be amended by adding a new third paragraph, to read as follows:

“Prayers of thanks and blessing at the household table draw upon ancient Jewish practice, and on the example of Jesus, his disciples, and the early Christian community. As the worshipping community gives thanks for God’s providence at the Lord’s Supper, so prayers at household meals provide an opportunity for remembering God’s gracious sustenance of our lives and Jesus’s giving of himself to and for us. We respond with heartfelt thanks and praise in the sharing of our daily bread.”

Rationale

In expanding the biblical context in which we understand the Lord’s Supper (W-3.0409: Theology of the Lord’s Supper—“Jesus shared meals with his followers throughout his earthly life and ministry …”), the Directory for Worship implicitly re-contextualizes the practice of prayer at meals. While administration of the Lord’s Supper in the Reformed Tradition is largely limited to a congregational setting under the leadership of ministers of the Word and Sacrament and ruling elders, household prayers at meals can be viewed as a sort of para-sacramental practice, as well as being tied to historic Jewish practice (example: Shabbat observance) and family traditions (example: prayer at table on Thanksgiving Day and other holidays). The intent of this added paragraph is to guide households in the practice of prayer at meals, to help make the practice richer and more meaningful.

[The assembly referred Item 14-02, Recommendation 8, to the Presbyterian Mission Agency, Office of Theology and Worship. See pp. 14, 17.]

8. Shall the third paragraph of W-5.0204 (Pastoral Care) be amended as follows: [Text to be inserted is shown as italic.]

“All members are called to take part in the ministry of pastoral care, visiting the sick, supporting the weak, and comforting those who mourn. Ruling elders, deacons, and ministers of the Word and Sacrament have particular responsibility for the exercise of pastoral care within the community of faith. Those with special gifts and appropriate training may be called to the ministries of spiritual direction, pastoral counseling, or chaplaincy. In certain circumstances, persons may need to be referred to other qualified and credentialed professionals to receive appropriate counseling and care.”

Rationale

The new Directory for Worship is, in many ways, equally a guide for spiritual formation. Among the practices of spiritual formation that have emerged in the PC(USA) over the last generation, spiritual direction is a particularly important pastoral practice. Pioneered by the late former Moderator Howard Rice, various of our seminaries offer training in spiritual formation and in spiritual direction. “Appropriate” training is stressed by associations of spiritual directors such as Spiritual Directors International. Adding spiritual direction into this section of the Directory for Worship would be both a recognition of this ministry, and provide some guidance (as per training) in practice.

[Editorial Note: Please notice the adjusted punctuation after the phrase “pastoral counseling.”]
9. Shall the fourth paragraph of W-5.0204 (Pastoral Care) be amended as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be inserted is shown as italic.]

“Services of wholeness and healing are one way of enacting the church’s ministry of pastoral care. The central element in these services is prayer, calling upon God’s saving grace or giving thanks for healing received, in life and in death, in body, mind, or spirit. A service of wholeness includes the proclamation of the Word, focusing on the promise of abundant peace and ultimate well-being through life in Christ. Prayer may be enacted through the laying on of hands and anointing with oil, provided that these actions are carefully introduced and interpreted: healing always in its many forms comes as a gift from God, not as a product of human prayer. The Lord’s Supper is a fitting way to seal the promise of wholeness proclaimed in the Word. Services of wholeness are to be authorized by the session and are under the direction of the minister of Word and Sacraments†, but may involve leadership from ruling elders, deacons, and others with gifts for prayer. They may take place on a regular basis, as an occasional event, or as a part of the Service for the Lord’s Day.”

Rationale:

The concern behind this suggested revision is itself pastoral. In the setting of a study of the new Directory for Worship in a particular congregation, concern was expressed around what “healing” is, and about why, when it seems so many prayers for healing “go unanswered,” we still “bother” to pray in this way. Such concerns are voiced in many ways and places. The suggested changes are an attempt to address them in a biblically and theologically appropriate way.

10. Shall W-5.0201 (The Church’s Ministry within the Community of Faith) and W-5.0301 (The Church’s Mission in the World) be amended as follows: [Text to be inserted is shown as italic.]

“W-5.0201: The Church’s Ministry within the Community of Faith

“God calls the Church in the name of Jesus Christ to mutual love, discipleship, and service. Jesus’ ministry and the church’s worship are deeply connected; indeed, worship is ministry. The church’s ministry springs from its worship, where God builds up the body of Christ through the gifts of the Holy Spirit. The church’s ministry flows back into worship as we bring to God the celebrations and concerns of the community of faith.

“Within the church, we seek to love and serve one another through the rhythm of daily prayer, the ministries of Christian education and pastoral care, the activities of councils of the church, and other gatherings of believers. The church’s ministries are shaped and nourished by the Word and Sacraments, and are to be carried out in the spirit of faithful discipleship and constant prayer (F-1.0301; F-1.0302a; F-1.0303; F-1.0403). ...

“W-5.0301: The Church’s Mission in the World

“God sends the Church in the power of the Holy Spirit to join the mission of Jesus Christ in discipleship and service to the world. Jesus’ mission and the church’s worship are deeply connected; indeed, worship is mission. The church’s mission springs from its worship, where we glimpse the reality and the promise of God’s eternal realm. The church’s mission flows back into worship as we bring to God the joy and suffering of the world.

“Through its mission in the world, the church, as a community of disciples, seeks to bear witness to God’s reign through the proclamation of the gospel, acts of compassion, work for justice and peace, and the care of creation. The church’s mission is shaped and nourished by the Word and Sacraments, and represents the living out of our prayer for the world (F-1.01; F-1.0303; F-1.0304).”

Rationale

The emphasis on “discipleship” found elsewhere in the Directory for Worship, and also in the Foundations of Presbyterian Polity (F-1.0303), suggested this small but important addition. There has been much emphasis in recent years on the “missional” nature of the church, but the formational aspect of “discipleship” in faith and life is of comparable importance. Mission speaks to the apostolic work of Christians; but, the Apostles of Jesus were first his disciples, called, formed, and trained by him, and ministering in his name and under his direction. So are we.

[Editorial Note: If a title change is desired, it may best serve to make a change to the title of the entire fifth chapter, as in Chapter Five: Worship and Discipleship in Christian Life. Please also notice the adjusted punctuation.]
In offering the above revisions and amendments to the Directory for Worship, the Presbytery of Santa Fe is deeply grateful for the hard work of all who prepared and presented the new Directory for Worship adopted in 2017. As our constitutional guide for understanding and planning worship in the PC(USA), it is an extremely important document in the ongoing life of the denomination. It is our hope and prayer that what we offer will only help to make a good document even better. We have chosen to offer our proposals as items, each with their own rationale, and each intended, if passed by the General Assembly, to be voted on individually by the presbyteries.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 14-02

Advice on Item 14-02—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

Item 14-02 consists of multiple parts. The Advisory Committee on the Constitution will advise on each numbered item in this item separately. In its advice, the committee reminds the assembly of the following general principles of constitutional interpretation:

- That which is not prohibited is permitted.
- Itemized lists are presumed to be exhaustive unless otherwise stated. Recent revisions of the Form of Government and Directory for Worship have tried to replace lists containing specific elements with broader categories that suggest possibilities.
- The Directory for Worship is a combination of the theology, practice, and polity of this church’s worship. While all of it is constitutional and therefore authoritative for this church, not all of its content is polity.
- The Book of Order, including its parts, should be read as a whole. No section contains all the information pertinent to a particular topic.

Recommendation 1: On Amending W-3.0101

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 223rd General Assembly (2018) to disapprove Item 14-02, Recommendation 1.

The overture, which would amend W-3.0101, seeks to add a sentence to the Directory for Worship emphasizing the value of holy rest and spiritual renewal on the Lord’s Day.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution finds that this overture is unnecessary. The Directory for Worship, at W-5.0103, already contains language that accomplishes the stated intent of this overture, using much the same language offered by this overture. The committee also notes that the overture would insert this language into a discussion of the ordering of Reformed worship where its insertion interrupts the flow and sense of that paragraph.

Recommendation 2: On Amending W-3.0205

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 223rd General Assembly (2018) to disapprove Item 14-02, Recommendation 2.

This overture seeks to amend W-3.0205, a section in the Directory for Worship that describes confession and forgiveness as an element of the worship service. The proposed language would articulate the possibility that the sacrament of Baptism might be administered following confession and proclamation of forgiveness in the worship service.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution finds that this amendment is unnecessary. Reformed theology commonly links Word and Sacrament as in W-1.0106, but W-3.0307 already provides for the sacrament of Baptism ordinarily to be in response to the Word. It does not, however, require that the sacrament only be administered at that time in the service. As the overture’s rationale points out, many ministers have chosen for years to administer baptism after confession and forgiveness in the worship service.

However, if the 223rd General Assembly (2018) believes that the intent of Item 14-02, Recommendation 2 is appropriate, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises that it would be better and more simply accomplished by inserting “the sacrament of Baptism;” in the final sentence of W-3.0205: “Other actions may follow—a song of praise, such as “Glory Be to the Father” or “Glory to God”; a summary of the law or call to faithfulness; \textit{[the sacrament of Baptism]}; and the sharing of peace as a sign of reconciliation in Christ.”

\textit{Recommendation 3: On Amending W-3.0409}

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 223rd General Assembly (2018) that Item 14-02, Recommendation 3 presents the following issues that the assembly should consider:

This recommendation of the overture seeks to amend W-3.0409 to underscore pastoral discretion regarding an invitation to baptismal preparation when persons who have not previously been baptized participate in the sacrament of the Lord’s Supper.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution finds that the proposed changes have the potential to weaken the link between Baptism and the Lord’s Supper. The use of “should” (not the mandatory “shall”) in the present language of W-3.0409 already provides latitude for pastoral discretion in determining the appropriateness of an invitation to baptismal preparation. If the assembly believes that the present language of W-3.0409 does not provide sufficient pastoral discretion, the language proposed in this overture is clear and consistent with the stated intent.

\textit{Recommendation 4: On Amending W-3.0412 and W-3.0413}

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 223rd General Assembly (2018) to disapprove Item 14-02, Recommendation 4.

Recommendation 4 in this overture would add the words “including the institution narrative, if not used elsewhere” in two paragraphs (W-3.0412 and W-3.0413) describing the components of the Lord’s Supper.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution finds that the present language of W-3.0412 already requires “Jesus’ institution of the Sacrament” and offers options for its placement in the service “(if not otherwise spoken at the invitation to the table or the breaking of the bread).” To add the language proposed in the overture would place the same information in the sentence preceding its current location in W-3.0412. The phrase “institution narrative” supplied by the overture should not be used because it is undefined and not used elsewhere in the Directory for Worship.

\textit{Recommendation 5: On Amending W-3.0414}

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 223rd General Assembly (2018) to approve Item 14-02, Recommendation 5.

Recommendation 5 in this overture would eliminate the current requirement that the prayer after Communion be led only by a minister of the Word and Sacrament or ruling elder authorized by the presbytery to administer Communion.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution finds that the current language of W-3.0414 is unnecessarily restrictive and amendment is advisable.

\textit{Recommendation 6: On Amending W-5.0104}

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 223rd General Assembly (2018) that Item 14-02, Recommendation 6, does not present constitutional issues. If the 223rd General Assembly (2018) believes that the intent of Item 14-02, Recommendation 6 is appropriate, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises that the proposed language is clear and consistent with that intent.

\textit{Rationale}

Recommendation 6 in this overture would add a new sentence to W-5.0104, the current paragraph on household worship, adding the notion of its importance in faith formation.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution finds that this addition provides historical information and does not raise constitutional issues.

\textit{Recommendation 7: On Amending W-5.0104}

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 223rd General Assembly (2018) that Item 14-02, Recommendation 7, presents the following issues that the assembly should consider:

Recommendation 7 in this overture, amending W-5.0104, would add a new paragraph emphasizing the role of mealtime prayers to the section on household worship.
The Advisory Committee on the Constitution finds that the proposed amendment risks diminishing the meaning of the Lord’s Supper by linking it with family meals and may lead to confusion in the church about the orderly administration of the celebration of the Lord’s Supper.

If the 223rd General Assembly (2018) believes that the intent of Item 14-02, Recommendation 7, is appropriate, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises that the proposed language could be improved with these changes.

At W-5.0104: Household Worship, adding a new third paragraph, as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strikethrough and with brackets; text to be inserted is shown with an underline and with brackets.]

“Prayers of thanks and blessing at the household table draw upon ancient Jewish practice[,] and [on] the examples of Jesus, his disciples, and the early Christian community. [As the worshipping community gives thanks for God’s providence at the Lord’s Supper, so prayers at household meals provide an opportunity for remembering God’s gracious sustenance of our lives and Jesus’s giving of himself to and for us.] [Mealtime prayers provide opportunities to give thanks for God’s works of creation and redemption by which we are sustained for Christ’s service.] We respond with heartfelt thanks and praise in the sharing of our daily bread.”

Recommendation 8: On Amending W-5.0204

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 223rd General Assembly (2018) that Item 14-02, Recommendation 8, presents the following issues that the assembly should consider.

Recommendation 8 in this overture on amending W-5.0204 would add “spiritual direction” to those named ministries of pastoral care.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution finds that adding this item creates a list that would then be presumed to be exhaustive. Adding more specific language is counter to recent constitutional changes that give various councils parameters and responsibility to define their own practices. Decisions about appropriate validated ministries are properly left to the individual presbyteries and their committees.

If the assembly believes that the intent of Item 14-02 is appropriate, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution finds that it could be accomplished, while addressing the issues presented above, by striking “the ministries of pastoral counseling or chaplaincy” in W-5.0204 and inserting “particular specialized pastoral care ministries” so that it would read “Those with special gifts and appropriate training may be called to [the ministries of pastoral counseling or chaplaincy] [particular specialized pastoral care ministries.]”

Recommendation 9: On Amending W-5.0204

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 223rd General Assembly (2018) to disapprove Item 14-02, Recommendation 9.

Recommendation 9 in this overture would amend W-5.0204 by adding to a paragraph on pastoral care language describing healing. The Advisory Committee on the Constitution finds that the overture would add descriptive words that do not change the meaning of the paragraph. The stated intent is better addressed in other contexts than that of the Constitution.

Recommendation 10: On Amending W-5.0201 & W-5.0301

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 223rd General Assembly (2010) to approve amendment to W-5.0201 and disapprove amendment to W-5.0301.

Recommendation 10 in this overture would introduce the concept of discipleship in various places in paragraphs describing (a) the church’s ministry within the community of faith (W-5.0201) and (b) the church’s mission in the world (W-5.0301).

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution finds that sections W-5.0201 and W-5.0301 should be seen as complementary, not contradictory or mutually exclusive. It is unnecessary to amend W-5.0301 to incorporate discipleship as this is sufficiently addressed by the proposed amendment to W-5.0201.

PMA COMMENT ON ITEM 14-02

Comment on Item 14-02—From the Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA).

This overture consists of ten proposals to amend the PC(USA) Directory for Worship. The Presbyterian Mission Agency’s Office of Theology and Worship, responsible for coordinating the process of revision that resulted in the current Directory for Worship, extends its gratitude to the Presbytery of Santa Fe for its careful review and thoughtful ideas for refining the document. On Recommendation 3., the Presbyterian Mission Agency notes that the language of those who are “not yet baptized” stands on the wording of a statement of pastoral advice (Item 16-06) approved by the 219th General Assembly (2010). The use of “yet” highlights the integral connection between font and table and expresses the hope that unbaptized persons who receive communion will seek out deeper relationship with Christ through baptism.

[The assembly approved Item 14-03 with comment. See p. 17.]

Comment: The Assembly Committee on Theological & Church Growth Issues and Institutions recommends that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 14-03, directing the Stated Clerk to send the proposed amendment along with the rationale and comments from the ACC and PMA, and advice from the ACC to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes.

On Amending W-4.0202 Concerning Participation in the Lord’s Supper by Baptized Children—From the Presbytery of Grace.

The Presbytery of Grace overtures the 223rd General Assembly (2018) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall W-4.0202 be amended as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“W-4.0202 Welcoming to the Table

“In cases where baptized children who have not yet begun to participate in the Lord’s Supper express a desire to receive the Sacrament, the session should provide an occasion to welcome them they shall be welcomed to the table in public worship. Their introduction to the Lord’s Supper should include and the session should ensure they receive ongoing instruction or formation in the meaning and mystery of the Sacraments.”

Rationale

The current language “provide an occasion to welcome them” could be interpreted as the need to provide a “first communion” service for baptized children. If taken this way, the language could develop a mindset that baptized children must wait until a certain age or complete certain educational requirements before belonging at the table. This mindset would violate our understanding that the Sacraments of Baptism and the Lord’s Supper are linked (W-3.0408 “Welcome”) and that “all who come to the table are to be offered the bread and cup regardless of their age or understanding,” (W-3.0409 “The Theology of the Lord’s Supper”).

Striking this phrase simplifies the wording while maintaining the intent—to welcome the baptized and provide them with ongoing instruction. The responsibility for instruction in baptismal identity and worship education and participation is addressed in W-4.0201 “Nurturing the Baptized,” W-2.0303 “Ruling Elders,” and W-2.0305 “Shared Responsibility and Accountability.” The issue of welcome to those not baptized is addressed in W-3.0409 “The Theology of the Lord’s Supper.”

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 14-03

Advice on Item 14-03—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 223rd General Assembly (2018) to approve Item 14-03. This amendment seeks to clarify that when children receive the Lord’s Supper for the first time, the Directory for Worship is not suggesting a service such as “first communion.”

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution finds that the overture has identified a possible contradiction between W-3.0409 and the current language of W-4.0202 and has provided an amendment to W-4.0202 that would resolve that contradiction. The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises that the proposed language is clear and consistent with the stated intent of the overture.

PMA COMMENT ON ITEM 14-03

Comment on Item 14-03—From the Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA).

This overture is an effort to clarify what the PC(USA) Directory for Worship says about welcoming baptized children to the Lord’s Table. Specifically, it seeks to avoid the impression that children must wait until they have reached a certain age of discretion, or until they have fulfilled other requirements, before receiving the sacrament. If the General Assembly wishes to affirm this overture, the Presbyterian Mission Agency notes that the following wording (including cross-references to the paragraph on baptized members in G-1.0401 and the statement on welcome in W-3.0408), might accomplish a similar intent: “Children of any age are welcome at the Lord’s Table as baptized members of the body of Christ (G-1.0401, W-3.0408). The session should ensure that all members receive ongoing instruction or formation in the meaning and mystery of the Sacraments.”

[The assembly disapproved Item 14-04. See p. 17.]

On Amending W-4.0404 by Adding Constitutional Questions to the Installation of Ministers of Word and Sacrament to Be Answered by Members of the Presbytery—From the Presbytery of Wabash Valley.

The Presbytery of Wabash Valley overtures the 223rd General Assembly (2018) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative vote:

Shall W-4.0404 be amended by adding at the end of the section constitutional questions to the service of installation of a minister of Word and Sacrament to be answered by members of the installing presbytery as follows: [Text to be added is shown as italic.]

“Following the affirmative answers to the questions asked of the congregation, the moderator shall face the congregation along with the (associate) pastor-elect and remind the congregation that installation is an act of the presbytery establishing the pastoral relationship (G-2.0805) and therefore it is incumbent upon the presbytery to covenant to support and uphold this pastoral relationship to the best of its ability. The moderator shall affirm that those included under the banner of presbytery are the members of the installing congregation in addition to the members of the commission and other special guests in the congregation. The moderator shall then ask the presbytery to answer the following questions:

“a. Will we, the Presbytery of ________, do everything in our power to uphold and support the pastoral relationship established this day between (pastor-elect) and (congregation), to pray for them, to offer encouragement, and in all things work cooperatively to further the peace, unity, and purity of the church.

“b. Do we, the members of the Presbytery of ________, welcome (pastor-elect) as a friend and colleague in ministry? Do we promise to work with (him/her), subject to the ordering of God’s Word and Spirit?”

Rationale

As G-2.0805 affirms, it is our understanding as Presbyterians that “Installation is an act of the presbytery establishing the pastoral relationship.” The call of a minister of Word and Sacrament to service in the context of a particular congregation is a threefold call of: candidate, congregation, and presbytery. Yet historically in our service of installation, as outlined in the Directory for Worship, we have only asked two members of this covenant relationship (congregation and candidate) to publicly and audibly answer constitutional questions affirming their commitment to live into this threefold covenant relationship. The Presbytery of Wabash Valley would submit that it is incumbent upon us to give definitive expression to our belief that the call of a minister of Word and Sacrament to service in the context of a particular congregation is a threefold call of: candidate, congregation, and presbytery by inviting members of the installing presbytery to publicly and audibly answer constitutional questions thus affirming their place in this covenant relationship.

G-2.0805 Installation Service

When the congregation, the presbytery, and the minister of the Word and Sacrament (or candidate) have all concurred in a call to a permanent or designated pastoral position, the presbytery shall complete the call process by organizing and conducting a service of installation. Installation is an act of the presbytery establishing the pastoral relationship. A service of installation occurs in the context of worship. The order for that service of worship in the Directory for Worship (W-4.04) shall be followed. (Book of Order, G-2.0805)

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 14-04

Advice on Item 14-04—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 223rd General Assembly (2018) that Item 14-04 presents the assembly with the following issues to consider:
Item 14-04 proposes a third set of questions at an installation service, after the questions posed to the pastor and to the congregation. The general objective of the overture is consistent with the constitutional understanding of the relationship between presbytery, pastor, and congregation.

The idea of posing questions to the presbytery parallels the act of putting questions to the congregation at the time of installation. The congregation’s answers to the constitutional questions, as a previous authoritative interpretation points out, “affirm, but do not replicate, actions previously taken” (Minutes, 1992, Part I, paragraph 21.079). Nevertheless, the questions are not merely ceremonial. The installation is deemed incomplete unless all questions are answered affirmatively (Ibid. 21.081).

The presbytery’s answers might be similarly understood to “affirm” the presbytery’s previous votes to confirm the pastoral call and conduct the installation. However, a commission conducting an installation would not have the authority to answer the question negatively. The commission is charged to conduct the installation based on the presbytery’s prior action.

Certain portions of the overture’s current form, however, introduce understandings of that relationship that are unfamiliar to the Constitution.

1. The notion that “it is incumbent upon the presbytery to covenant to support and uphold [a] pastoral relationship to the best of its ability” does not appear in the Book of Order. Language that more closely reflects the presbytery’s responsibility vis-à-vis a pastoral relationship can be found at G-3.0101: “… [it is the presbytery’s responsibility] to nurture, guide, and govern [the witness of its ministers and congregations,] to the end that such witness strengthens the whole church and gives glory to God.”

2. The current language speaks of the “installing congregation.” Yet the overture itself correctly recognizes that the “installation is an act of the presbytery establishing the pastoral relationship” (see G-2.0805, G-3.0301c). In addition, some “special guests” attending an installation service may be members of a presbytery other than the one conducting the installation, or members of another denomination.

3. Members of presbytery in attendance at an installation service but not appointed to the installation commission do not have authority to speak on behalf of the presbytery. Only a commission to which the presbytery has granted certain powers has authority to act in the presbytery’s stead. Similarly, only officers of the presbytery or a duly appointed commission have authority to speak on behalf of the presbytery in accordance with their respective charges.

4. In some places within the proposed questions, the language is unfamiliar to times of installation. In another instance, the language is familiar, but appears to lift up one among several aspects of the pastoral relationship. Doing so may give the false impression of limiting the presbytery’s oversight responsibilities.

If the assembly agrees with the intent of Item 14-04, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises that the assembly (i) direct the Department of Constitutional Interpretation to develop language for a constitutional amendment that might accomplish the intended goal; (ii) instruct the department to consult with the Presbyteries of Wabash Valley, Albany, Blackhawk, de Cristo, and Tropical Florida; and (iii) further instruct the department to receive the advice of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution in drafting such amendment.

If this assembly prefers instead to propose a constitutional amendment for the presbyteries’ consideration, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises that the following language is preferable:

“[Following the affirmative answers to the questions asked of the congregation the moderator shall face the congregation along with the pastor-elect and remind the congregation that the installation is an act of the presbytery establishing the pastoral relationship (G-2.0805). The moderator shall affirm that the presbytery is represented by the members of the commission. The moderator shall then ask the commission to answer the following questions on behalf of the presbytery:

“[a. Has the presbytery affirmed that [name] has been chosen by God through the voice of this congregation to lead them in the way of Jesus Christ? Does it affirm that this call is for the good of the whole Church?]

“[b. Will you pray for this pastor and congregation? Will you be friends and colleagues in ministry, working with them, subject to the ordering of God’s Word and Spirit?]”

COGA COMMENT ON ITEM 14-04

Comment on Item 14-04—From the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

This overture proposes two additions to the constitutional questions asked at the installation of a minister of Word and Sacrament in a particular ministry context. Typically, this is a three-way agreement between a minister of Word and Sacrament, a congregation, and the presbytery. The proposed questions are directed to the presbytery for response.
Actions by the presbytery have been approved prior to the installation service. These include the approval of the terms of call between the congregation and the minister of Word and Sacrament, and the examination of the person, as determined by the presbytery. The installation service is conducted on behalf of the presbytery and includes an approved administrative commission that is composed of both ruling elders and ministers of Word and Sacrament. It is this administrative commission that acts on behalf of the presbytery.

The addition of the proposed questions is problematic in that those present on behalf of the presbytery have not been given the authority to answer. The language of the first question includes the words, “Will we do everything in our power to uphold and support the pastoral relationship …” This might be seen as binding the presbytery to prolong a pastoral relationship that is a bad match between the pastor and congregation.

A more appropriate setting for these types of questions to be asked is when a new minister member is welcomed into the life of a presbytery at a stated meeting. A suggested revision is:

- “Do we, the members of the Presbytery of ________________, welcome (minister of Word and Sacrament) as a friend and colleague in ministry?
- “Do we promise to work with (him/her) subject to the ordering of God’s Word and Spirit?
- “Will we offer encouragement, including prayer, and in all things, work cooperatively to further the peace, unity and purity of the church?”

Answering these questions at a stated meeting of the presbytery would include all new minister members, not just those who are in an installed position.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly consists of fifteen elected members and was created “to carry out the assembly’s oversight of the Stated Clerk …” (Organization for Mission, IV.C.2.). COGA regularly reviews the work of the Stated Clerk and the Office of the General Assembly.

Item 14-05

[In response to Item 14-05, the assembly approved an alternative resolution. See pp. 17, 18.]

On Adopting the “Letter from Birmingham City Jail,” Written by the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., as a Contemporary Statement of Faith (But Not with Constitutional Standing)—from the Presbytery of the Twin Cities Area.

The Presbytery of the Twin Cities Area overtures the 223rd General Assembly (2018) to approve “Letter from Birmingham City Jail” by the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., as a contemporary statement of faith, a reliable aid for Christian study, liturgy, and inspiration (with the understanding that only the current Book of Confessions has constitutional standing).

Alternate Resolution: The 223rd General Assembly (2018) commends the “Letter from Birmingham City Jail,” written by the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., to the church for study, as a resource that provides prophetic witness that inspires, challenges, and educates both church and world, and furthermore, to begin the process outlined in G-6.03 to include it in the Book of Confessions.

[Financial Implications: Per Capita Annual $20,540. Total—$41,080]

Rationale

We Presbyterians are obligated to work for the Great Ends of the Church, which are:

- the proclamation of the gospel for the salvation of humankind;
- the shelter, nurture, and spiritual fellowship of the children of God;
- the maintenance of divine worship;
- the preservation of the truth;
- the promotion of social righteousness; and
- the exhibition of the Kingdom of Heaven to the world. (Book of Order, F-1.0304).

In accordance with the Book of Confessions, we are called specifically to work to abolish all racial discrimination, to work for peace and practice the forgiveness of enemies, and to advance the common welfare to end poverty (Book of Confessions, The Confession of 1967, 9.44–.46), recognizing that the church must obey Jesus Christ as the one Word of God, and not merely become “an organ of the State” (Ibid., The Theological Declaration of Barmen, 8.11, 8.24), “even though the authorities and human laws might forbid [the church from obeying Jesus Christ] and punishment and suffering be the consequence” (Ibid, Confession of Belhar, 10.9).

Fifty years ago, a man gave his life in the service of others, consistent with these teachings from our Book of Confessions: The Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., President of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC). On December 4, 1967, Dr. King announced his intention to organize a “Poor People’s Campaign,” so that the poor from many different races (e.g., “Indians, Mexican Americans, Puerto Ricans, Appalachians, and others”) would lobby the federal government to change inadequate public policies, including “low minimum wages,” “a degrading system of inadequate welfare,” “subsidies of the rich and unemployment and underemployment of the poor,” “a war mentality,” “slums and starvation, and racism.”4 In April 4, 1968, Dr. King was assassinated at the Lorraine Hotel in Memphis, Tennessee.5

Many find inspiration from the life and teachings of Dr. King, of which his “Letter from Birmingham City Jail” “has probably been reprinted more than anything else Dr. King wrote.”6, 7

In Dr. King’s letter, he describes how Christ led him to organize nonviolent resistance to systemic injustice within the context of a specific event in Birmingham, Alabama, which is described below.

In November 1962, citizens of Birmingham voted to change their city’s form of government from a system of being governed by three elected commissioners (each with oversight of specific areas) to a mayor/city council system. Eugene “Bull” Connor, Commissioner of Public Safety who had oversight over Birmingham’s fire and police departments, ran for mayor, but lost the election on April 2, 1963.8

On April 3, 1963, the day after the election, the Alabama Christian Movement for Human Rights (ACMHR) and the SCLC began coordinated nonviolent confrontations in Birmingham, Alabama, to demonstrate opposition to the city’s practices of racial discrimination, “including sit-ins at libraries and lunch counters, kneel-ins by black visitors at white churches, and a march to the county building to mark the beginning of a voter-registration drive.” Dr. King was arrested, along with fifty Birmingham residents, on Good Friday, April 12, 1963. He was denied consultation with an attorney from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored Peoples (NAACP) without guards present.9

Eight white Alabama clergymen, seven Christian (including the moderator of a Presbyterian synod), and one Jewish, published “A Call for Unity” in a newspaper on April 12.10 The “Call for Unity” said, in part:

> [W]e are now confronted by a series of demonstrations by some of our Negro citizens, directed and led in part by outsiders. We recognize the natural impatience of people who feel that their hopes are slow in being realized. But we are convinced that these demonstrations are unwise and untimely. We agree rather with certain local Negro leadership which has called for honest and open negotiation of racial issues in our area. …

> We commend the community as a whole, and the local news media and law enforcement officials in particular, on the calm manner in which these demonstrations have been handled. We urge the public to continue to show restraint should the demonstrations continue, and the law enforcement officials to remain calm and protect our city from violence.

> We further strongly urge our own Negro community to withdraw support from these demonstrations, and to unite locally in working peacefully for a better Birmingham. When rights are consistently denied, a cause should be pressed in the courts and in negotiations among local leaders, and not in the streets. We appeal to both our white and Negro citizenry to observe the principles of law and order and common sense.11

A copy of this newspaper was smuggled into jail, and Dr. King wrote the “Letter from Birmingham City Jail” in response. Dr. King described his writing of the letter as follows: “Begun on the margins of the newspaper in which the statement appeared while I was in jail, the letter was continued on scraps of writing paper supplied by a friendly black trusty, and concluded on a pad my attorneys were eventually permitted to leave me.”12

Among the many teachings of Dr. King’s letter are the following:

1. All Americans are impacted by injustice.

   I think I should indicate why I am here in Birmingham, since you have been influenced by the view which argues against “outsiders coming in.” I have the honor of serving as president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, an organization operating in every southern state, with headquarters in Atlanta, Georgia. … I, along with several members of my staff, am here because I was invited here. I am here because I have organizational ties here.

   But more basically, I am in Birmingham because injustice is here. Just as the prophets of the eighth century B.C. left their villages and carried their “thus saith the Lord” far beyond the boundaries of their home towns, and just as the Apostle Paul left his village of Tarsus and carried the gospel of Jesus Christ to the far corners of the Greco Roman world, so am I compelled to carry the gospel of freedom beyond my own home town. …

   Moreover, I am cognizant of the interrelatedness of all communities and states. I cannot sit idly by in Atlanta and not be concerned about what happens in Birmingham. Injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere. We are caught in an inescapable network of mutuality, tied in a single garment of destiny. Whatever affects one directly, affects all indirectly. Never again can we afford to live with the narrow, provincial “outside agitator” idea. Anyone who lives inside the United States can never be considered an outsider anywhere within its bounds.13
2. Insisting that those who labor under crushing poverty should wait and be patient for the convenience of those who are not in such poverty will not resolve poverty. “Wait” too often means “Never,” and justice delayed is justice denied.

You deplore the demonstrations taking place in Birmingham. But your statement, I am sorry to say, fails to express a similar concern for the conditions that brought about the demonstrations. I am sure that none of you would want to rest content with the superficial kind of social analysis that deals merely with effects and does not grapple with underlying causes. It is unfortunate that demonstrations are taking place in Birmingham, but it is even more unfortunate that the city’s white power structure left the Negro community with no alternative.

We know through painful experience that freedom is never voluntarily given by the oppressor; it must be demanded by the oppressed. Frankly, I have yet to engage in a direct action campaign that was “well timed” in the view of those who have not suffered unduly from the disease of segregation. For years now I have heard the word “Wait!” It rings in the ear of every Negro with piercing familiarity. This “Wait” has almost always meant “Never.” We must come to see, with one of our distinguished jurists, that “justice too long delayed is justice denied.”

We have waited for more than 340 years for our constitutional and God given rights. The nations of Asia and Africa are moving with jet-like speed toward gaining political independence, but we still creep at horse and buggy pace toward gaining a cup of coffee at a lunch counter. Perhaps it is easy for those who have never felt the stinging darts of segregation to say, “Wait.” But when you have seen vicious mobs lynch your mothers and fathers at will and drown your sisters and brothers at whim; when you have seen hate filled policemen curse, kick and even kill your black brothers and sisters; when you see the vast majority of your twenty million Negro brothers smothering in an airtight cage of poverty in the midst of an affluent society; when you suddenly find your tongue twisted and your speech stammering as you seek to explain to your six year old daughter why she can’t go to the public amusement park that has just been advertised on television, and see tears welling up in her eyes when she is told that Funtown is closed to colored children, and see ominous clouds of inferiority beginning to form in her little mental sky, and see her beginning to distort her personality by developing an unconscious bitterness toward white people; when you have to concoct an answer for a five year old son who is asking: “Daddy, why do white people treat colored people so mean?”; when you take a cross county drive and find it necessary to sleep night after night in the uncomfortable corners of your automobile because no motel will accept you; … when you are harried by day and haunted by night by the fact that you are a Negro, living constantly at tiptoe stance, never quite knowing what to expect next, and are plagued with inner fears and outer resentments; when you are forever fighting a degenerate sense of “nobodiness”—then you will understand why we find it difficult to wait. There comes a time when the cup of endurance runs over, and men are no longer willing to be plunged into the abyss of despair. I hope, sirs, you can understand our legitimate and unavoidable impatience.

Christians are obligated to distinguish between just laws and unjust laws.

You express a great deal of anxiety over our willingness to break laws. This is certainly a legitimate concern. Since we so diligently urge people to obey the Supreme Court’s decision of 1954 outlawing segregation in the public schools, at first glance it may seem rather paradoxical for us consciously to break laws. One may well ask: “How can you advocate breaking some laws and obeying others?” The answer lies in the fact that there are two types of laws: just and unjust. One would be the first to advocate obeying just laws. One has not only a legal but a moral responsibility to obey just laws. Conversely, one has a moral responsibility to disobey unjust laws. I would agree with St. Augustine that “an unjust law is no law at all.”

Now, what is the difference between the two? How does one determine whether a law is just or unjust? A just law is a man-made code that squares with the moral law or the God of An unjust law is a code that is out of harmony with the moral law. To put it in the terms of St. Thomas Aquinas: An unjust law is a human law that is not rooted in eternal law and natural law. Any law that uplifts human personality is just. Any law that degrades human personality is unjust. All segregation statutes are unjust because they are rooted in the self-esteem of man’s soul and damages the personality. It gives the segregator a false sense of superiority and the segregated a false sense of inferiority…. Hence segregation is not only politically, economically and sociologically unsound, it is morally wrong and sinful. Paul Tillich has said that sin is separation. Is not segregation an existential expression of man’s tragic separation, his awful estrangement, his terrible sinfulness? Thus it is that I can urge men to obey the 1954 decision of the Supreme Court, for it is morally right; and I can urge them to disobey segregation ordinances, for they are morally wrong.

Let us consider a more concrete example of just and unjust laws. An unjust law is a code that a numerical or power majority group compels a minority group to obey but does not make binding on itself. This is difference made legal. By the same token, a just law is a code that a majority compels a minority to follow and that it is willing to follow itself. This is sameness made legal. Let me give another explanation. A law is unjust if it is inflicted on a minority that, as a result of being denied the right to vote, had no part in enacting or devising the law. Who can say that the legislature of Alabama which set up that state’s segregation laws was democratically elected? Throughout Alabama all sorts of devious methods are used to prevent Negroes from becoming registered voters, and there are some counties in which, even though Negroes constitute a majority of the population, not a single Negro is registered. Can any law enacted under such circumstances be considered democratically structured?

Sometimes a law is just on its face and unjust in its application. For instance, I have been arrested on a charge of parading without a permit. Now, there is nothing wrong in having an ordinance which requires a permit for a parade. But such an ordinance becomes unjust when it is used to maintain segregation and to deny citizens the First-Amendment privilege of peaceful assembly and protest.

I hope you are able to see the distinction I am trying to point out. In no sense do I advocate evading or defying the law, as would the rabid segregationist. That would lead to anarchy. One who breaks an unjust law must do so openly, lovingly, and with a willingness to accept the penalty. I submit that an individual who breaks a law that conscience tells him is unjust, and who willingly accepts the penalty of imprisonment in order to arouse the conscience of the community over its injustice, is in reality expressing the highest respect for law.

Of course, there is nothing new about this kind of civil disobedience. It was evidenced sublimely in the refusal of Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego to obey the laws of Nebuchadnezzar, on the ground that a higher moral law was at stake. It was practiced superbly by the early Christians, who were willing to face hungry lions and the excruciating pain of chopping blocks rather than submit to certain unjust laws of the Roman Empire. To a degree, academic freedom is a reality today because Socrates practiced civil disobedience. In our own nation, the Boston Tea Party represented a massive act of civil disobedience.

We should never forget that everything Adolf Hitler did in Germany was “legal” and everything the Hungarian freedom fighters did in Hungary was “illegal.”

4. There is a better way than either accommodating injustice or advocating violence: Nonviolent resistance.

You speak of our activity in Birmingham as extreme. At first I was rather disappointed that fellow clergymen would see my nonviolent efforts as those of an extremist. I began thinking about the fact that I stand in the middle of two opposing forces in the Negro community. One is a force of complacency, made up in part of Negroes who, as a result of long years of oppression, are so drained of self respect and a sense of “somebodiness” that... they have adjusted to segregation; and in part of a few middle-class Negroes who, because of a degree of academic and economic security and because in some ways they profit by segregation, have become insensitive to the problems of the masses. The other force is one of bitterness and hatred, and it comes perilously close to advocating violence. It is expressed in the various black nationalist groups that are springing up across the nation. … Nourished by the Negro’s frustration over the continued existence of racial discrimination, this movement is made up of people who have lost faith in America, who have absolutely repudiated Christianity, and who have concluded that the white man is an incorrigible “devil.”

I have tried to stand between these two forces, saying that we need emulate neither the “do nothingism” of the complacent nor the hatred and despair of the black nationalist. For there is the more excellent way of love and nonviolent protest. I am grateful to God that, through the influence of the Negro church, the way of nonviolence became an integral part of our struggle. If this philosophy had not emerged, by now many streets of the South would, I am convinced, be flowing with blood. …

In any nonviolent campaign there are four basic steps: collection of the facts to determine whether injustices exist; negotiation; self-purification; and direct action. We have gone through all these steps in Birmingham. There can be no gainsaying the fact that racial injustice engulfs this community. Birmingham is probably the most thoroughly segregated city in the United States. Its ugly record of brutality is widely known. Negroes have experienced grossly unjust treatment in the courts. There have been more unsolved bombings of Negro homes and churches in Birmingham than in any other city in the nation. These are the hard, brutal facts of the case. On the basis of these conditions, Negro leaders sought to negotiate with the city fathers. But the latter consistently refused to engage in good faith negotiation.

Then, last September, came the opportunity to talk with leaders of Birmingham’s economic community. In the course of the negotiations, certain promises were made by the merchants—for example, to remove the stores’ humiliating racial signs. On the basis of these promises, the Reverend Fred Shuttlesworth and the leaders of the Alabama Christian Movement for Human Rights agreed to a moratorium on all demonstrations. As the weeks and months went by, we realized that we were the victims of a broken promise. A few signs, briefly removed, returned; the others remained. As in so many past experiences, our hopes had been blasted, and the shadow of deep disappointment settled upon us. We had no alternative except to prepare for direct action, whereby we would present our very bodies as a means of laying our case before the conscience of the local and the national community. Mindful of the difficulties involved, we decided to undertake a process of self-purification. We began a series of workshops on nonviolence, and we repeatedly asked ourselves: “Are you able to accept blows without retaliating?” “Are you able to endure the ordeal of jail?” We decided to schedule our direct action program for the Easter season, realizing that except for Christmas, this is the main shopping period of the year. Knowing that a strong economic-withdrawal program would be the by product of direct action, we felt that this would be the best time to bring pressure to bear on the merchants for the needed change.

5. The worst stumbling blocks to establishing social justice may not be extremists, like members of the Ku Klux Klan, but moderates in white churches who seem content to do little.

I must make two honest confessions to you, my Christian and Jewish brothers. First, I must confess that over the past few years I have been gravely disappointed with the white moderate. I have almost reached the regrettable conclusion that the Negro’s great stumbling block in his stride toward freedom is not the White Citizen’s Council or the Ku Klux Klanner, but the white moderate, who is more devoted to “order” than to justice; who prefers a negative peace which is the absence of tension to a positive peace which is the presence of justice; who constantly says: “I agree with you in the goal you seek, but I cannot agree with your methods of direct action”; who paternalistically believes he can set the timetable for another man’s freedom; who lives by a mythical concept of time and who constantly advises the Negro to wait for a “more convenient season.” Shallow understanding from people of good will is more frustrating than absolute misunderstanding from people of ill will. Lukewarm acceptance is much more bewildering than outright rejection.

I had hoped that the white moderate would understand that law and order exist for the purpose of establishing justice and that when they fail in this purpose they become the dangerously structured dams that block the flow of social progress. I had hoped that the white moderate would understand that the present tension in the South is a necessary phase of the transition from an obnoxious negative peace, in which the Negro passively accepted his unjust plight, to a substantive and positive peace, in which all men will respect the dignity and worth of human personality. Actually, we who engage in nonviolent direct action are not the creators of tension. We merely bring to the surface the hidden tension that is already alive. We bring it out in the open, where it can be seen and dealt with. Like a boil that can never be cured so long as it is covered up but must be opened with all its ugliness to the natural medicines of air and light, injustice must be exposed, with all the tension its exposure creates, to the light of human conscience and the air of national opinion before it can be cured.

I had also hoped that the white moderate would reject the myth concerning time in relation to the struggle for freedom. I have just received a letter from a white brother in Texas. He writes: “All Christians know that the colored people will receive equal rights eventually, but it is possible that you are in too great a religious hurry. It has taken Christianity almost two thousand years to accomplish what it has. The teachings of Christ take time to come to earth.” Such an attitude stems from a tragic misconception of time, from the strangely irrational notion that there is something in the very flow of time that will inevitably cure all ills. Actually, time itself is neutral; it can be used either destructively or constructively. More and more I feel that the people of ill will have used time much more effectively than have the people of good will. We will have to repent in this generation not merely for the hateful words and actions of the bad people but for the appalling silence of the good people. Human progress never rolls in on wheels of inevitability; it comes through the tireless efforts of men willing to be co workers with God, and without this hard work, time itself becomes an ally of the forces of social stagnation. We must use time creatively, in the knowledge that the time is always ripe to do right.

Oppressed people cannot remain oppressed forever. The yearning for freedom eventually manifests itself, and that is what has happened to the American Negro. Something within has reminded him of his birthright of freedom, and something without has reminded him that it can be gained. …

I had hoped that the white moderate would see this need. …

But, … I must honestly reiterate that I have been disappointed with the church.

When I was suddenly catapulted into the leadership of the bus protest in Montgomery, Alabama, a few years ago, I felt we would be supported by the white church. I felt that the white ministers, priests and rabbis of the South would be among our strongest allies. Instead, some have been outright opponents, refusing to understand the freedom movement and misrepresenting its leaders; all too many others have been more cautious than courageous and have remained silent behind the anesthetizing security of stained glass windows.

In spite of my shattered dreams, I came to Birmingham with the hope that the white religious leadership of this community would see the justice of our cause and, with deep moral concern, would serve as the channel through which our just grievances could reach the power structure. I had hoped that each of you would understand. But again I have been disappointed.
I have heard numerous southern religious leaders admonish their worshipers to comply with a desegregation decision because it is the law, but I have longed to hear white ministers declare: “Follow this decree because integration is morally right and because the Negro is your brother.” In the midst of blatant injustices inflicted upon the Negro, I have watched white churchmen stand on the sideline and mouth pious irrelevances and sanctimonious trivialities. In the midst of a mighty struggle to rid our nation of racial and economic injustice, I have heard many ministers say: “Those are social issues, with which the gospel has no real concern.” And I have watched many churches commit themselves to a completely other worldly religion which makes a strange, un-Biblical distinction between body and soul, between the sacred and the secular.

... In deep disappointment I have wept over the laxity of the church. But be assured that my tears have been tears of love. There can be no deep disappointment where there is not deep love. Yes, I love the church. How could I do otherwise? I am in the rather unique position of being the son, the grandson and the great grandson of preachers. Yes, I see the church as the body of Christ. But, oh! How we have blemished and scarred that body through social neglect and through fear of being nonconformists.

There was a time when the church was very powerful—in the time when the early Christians rejoiced at being deemed worthy to suffer for what they believed. In those days the church was not merely a thermometer that recorded the ideas and principles of popular opinion; it was a thermostat that transformed the mores of society. Whenever the early Christians entered a town, the people in power became disturbed and immediately sought to convict the Christians for being “disturbers of the peace” and “outside agitators.” But the Christians pressed on, in the conviction that they were “a colony of heaven,” called to obey God rather than man. Small in number, they were big in commitment. They were too God-intoxicated to be “astronomically intimidated.” By their example and by their actions they brought an end to such ancient evils as infanticide and gladiatorial contests. Things are different now. So often the contemporary church is a weak, ineffectual voice with an uncertain sound. So often it is an archdefender of the status quo. Far from being disturbed by the presence of the church, the power structure of the average community is consoled by the church’s silent—and often even vocal—sanction of things as they are.

But the judgment of God is upon the church as never before. If today’s church does not recapture the sacrificial spirit of the early church, it will lose its authenticity, forfeit the loyalty of millions, and be dismissed as an irrelevant social club with no meaning for the twentieth century. Every day I meet young people whose disappointment with the church has turned into outright disgust.

Perhaps I have once again been too optimistic. Is organized religion too inextricably bound to the status quo to save our nation and the world? Perhaps I must turn my faith to the inner spiritual church, the church within the church, as the true ekkllesia and the hope of the world. But again I am thankful to God that some noble souls from the ranks of organized religion have broken loose from the paralyzing chains of conformity and joined us as active partners in the struggle for freedom. They have left their secure congregations and walked the streets of Albany, Georgia, with us. They have gone down the highways of the South on tortuous rides for freedom. Yes, they have gone to jail with us. Some have been dismissed from their churches, have lost the support of their bishops and fellow ministers. But they have acted in the faith that right defeated is stronger than evil triumphant. Their witness has been the spiritual salt that has preserved the true meaning of the gospel in these troubled times.

6. Love your enemies, and respect your opponents—as demonstrated in Dr. King’s tone of his letter.

My Dear Fellow Clergymen: ...

I am sure that none of you would want to rest content with the superficial kind of social analysis that deals merely with effects and does not grapple with underlying causes. ...

You may well ask: “Why direct action? Why sit ins, marches and so forth? Isn’t negotiation a better path?” You are quite right in calling for negotiation. Indeed, this is the very purpose of direct action. ...

I hope you are able to see the distinction I am trying to point out. ...

I must make two honest confessions to you, my Christian and Jewish brothers. ...

I am not unmindful of the fact that each of you has taken some significant stands on this issue. I commend you, Reverend Stallings, for your Christian stand on this past Sunday, in welcoming Negroes to your worship service on a nonsegregated basis. I commend the Catholic leaders of this state for integrating Spring Hill College several years ago. ...

But despite these notable exceptions, I must honestly reiterate that I have been disappointed with the church. I do not say this as one of those negative critics who can always find something wrong with the church. I say this as a minister of the gospel, who loves the church; who was nurtured in its bosom; who has been sustained by its spiritual blessings and who will remain true to it as long as the cord of life shall lengthen.

... Before closing I feel impelled to mention one other point in your statement that has troubled me profoundly. You warmly commended the Birmingham police force for keeping “order” and “preventing violence.” I doubt that you would have so warmly commended the police force if you had seen its dogs sinking their teeth into unarmed, nonviolent Negroes. I doubt that you would so quickly commend the policemen if you were to observe their ugly and inhumane treatment of Negroes here in the city jail; if you were to watch them push and curse old Negro women and young Negro girls; if you were to see them slap and kick old Negro men and young boys; if you were to observe them, as they did on two occasions, refuse to give us food because we wanted to sing our grace together. I cannot join you in your praise of the Birmingham police department.

It is true that the police have exercised a degree of discipline in handling the demonstrators. In this sense they have conducted themselves rather “nonviolently” in public. But for what purpose? To preserve the evil system of segregation. Over the past few years I have consistently preached that nonviolence demands that the means we use must be as pure as the ends we seek. I have tried to make clear that it is wrong to use immoral means to attain moral ends. But now I must affirm that it is just as wrong, or perhaps even more so, to use moral means to preserve immoral ends. Perhaps Mr. Connor and his policemen have been rather nonviolent in public, as was Chief Pritchett in Albany, Georgia, but they have used the moral means of nonviolence to maintain the immoral end of racial injustice. ...

I wish you had commended the Negro sit ins and demonstrators of Birmingham for their sublime courage, their willingness to suffer and their amazing discipline in the midst of great provocation. ...

Never before have I written so long a letter. I’m afraid it is much too long to take your precious time....
If I have said anything in this letter that overstates the truth and indicates an unreasonable impatience, I beg you to forgive me. If I have said anything that understates the truth and indicates my having a patience that allows me to settle for anything less than brotherhood, I beg God to forgive me.

I hope this letter finds you strong in the faith. I also hope that circumstances will soon make it possible for me to meet each of you, not as an integrationist or a civil-rights leader but as a fellow clergyman and a Christian brother. Let us all hope that the dark clouds of racial prejudice will soon pass away and the deep fog of misunderstanding will be lifted from our dear drenched communities, and in some not too distant tomorrow the radiant stars of love and brotherhood will shine over our great nation with all their scintillating beauty.

Yours for the cause of Peace and Brotherhood, Martin Luther King, Jr. 18

About Dr. King

The Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., was a remarkable human being, and one of the greatest theologians of the 20th century. Born in 1929 in a lineage of pastors, he graduated high school at fifteen and graduated college at nineteen. At Crozier Theological Seminary, he was elected president of his predominantly white senior class, graduated seminary at age twenty-two, and won a fellowship that supported his doctoral studies at Boston University, where he completed his PhD in systematic theology at age twenty-six. 19

When he met and married Coretta Scott in Boston, they could have stayed in the north where racial discrimination was not as extreme. However, they chose to move to Montgomery, Alabama, returning to the south where they had both been born, and Dr. King was installed as pastor of the Dexter Avenue Baptist Church. 20, 21 On December 1, 1955, in the same year Dr. King completed his doctorate, Ms. Rosa Parks refused to give up her seat on a Montgomery city bus to a white man. 22 Although Dr. King (to his surprise) was elected to be the leader of a boycott of Montgomery buses, he struggled with whether such a boycott was Christian. He then remembered reading David Thoreau’s essay “Civil Disobedience” in his earlier years, where Thoreau said: “We can no longer lend our cooperation to an evil system.” The evening of the first day of the boycott (December 5), Dr. King gave what he later called the most decisive speech he ever made, spelling out his principles:

[O]ur method will be that of persuasion and not coercion. We will only say to the people, “Let your conscience be your guide.” 23 Our actions must be guided by the deepest principles of our Christian faith. … Once again we must hear the words of Jesus echoing across the centuries: “Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, and pray for them that despitefully use you.” 24

The Montgomery bus boycott lasted for 381 days. During that time, at least ninety people were arrested and sentenced to jail or fined. The homes and churches of protestors were firebombed, and protestors were often assaulted themselves. Dr. King’s own home was firebombed. Even after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that Alabama’s laws requiring segregated seating on buses was unconstitutional, and the city of Montgomery thereafter passed an ordinance to remove restrictions on where black passengers could sit on buses, violence continued. Someone fired a shotgun through the front door of Dr. King’s family’s house. Snipers fired upon buses, and shot a pregnant woman in both of her legs. Five black churches and the home of a white pastor who had supported segregation were destroyed by bombs. Klansmen lynched a black man, claiming that he was dating a white woman. Nevertheless, laws that mandated segregated seating on buses were changed, and Dr. King’s work began to become nationally known. 25

Dr. King’s biography after the Montgomery bus boycott reads as follows:

In 1957 he was elected president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, an organization formed to provide new leadership for the now burgeoning civil rights movement. The ideals for this organization he took from Christianity; its operational techniques from Gandhi. 26 In the eleven-year period between 1957 and 1968, King traveled over six million miles and spoke over twenty-five hundred times, appearing wherever there was injustice, protest, and action; and meanwhile he wrote five books as well as numerous articles. In these years, he led a massive protest in Birmingham, Alabama, that caught the attention of the entire world, providing what he called a coalition of conscience, and inspiring his “Letter from a Birmingham Jail”, a manifesto of the Negro revolution; he planned the drives in Alabama for the registration of Negroes as voters; he directed the peaceful march on Washington, D.C., of 250,000 people to whom he delivered his address, “I Have a Dream,” he conferred with President John F. Kennedy and campaigned for President Lyndon B. Johnson; he was arrested upwards of twenty times and assaulted at least four times; he was awarded five honorary degrees; was named Man of the Year by Time magazine in 1963; and became not only the symbolic leader of American blacks but also a world figure.

At the age of thirty-five, Martin Luther King, Jr., was the youngest man to have received the Nobel Peace Prize. When notified of his selection, he announced that he would turn over the prize money of $54,123 to the furtherance of the civil rights movement.

On the evening of April 4, 1968, while standing on the balcony of his motel room in Memphis, Tennessee, where he was to lead a protest march in sympathy with striking garbage workers of that city, he was assassinated. 27

In conclusion, adopting Dr. King’s “Letter from Birmingham City Jail” would be a way that the General Assembly could make a meaningful tribute to Dr. King, fifty years after he began a “Poor People’s Campaign” and also fifty years after his assassination at age 39. Lifting up Dr. King’s letter would help inspire and encourage all of us to carry on Christ’s demanding work to establish social justice.

2. There is precedent for the General Assembly to approve statements of faith that do not have constitutional standing. “The 197th General Assembly (1985) of the PC(USA) made its own the action of the 177th General Assembly (1977) of the Presbyterian Church in the United States (PCUS) with reference to “A Declaration of Faith,” which is as follows: “That ‘A Declaration of Faith’ be adopted as a contemporary statement of faith, a reliable aid for Christian study, liturgy, and inspiration ...” (Minutes, 1977, PCUS, Part I, p. 168), with the understanding that only the current Book of Confessions has constitutional standing. https://www.presbyterianmission.org/resource/declaration-faith/.

3. The Book of Confessions speaks of the need to establish social justice in many places. For example, the Westminster Larger Catechism teaches that the Sixth Commandment forbids “the neglecting or withdrawing the lawful or necessary means of preservation of life” (7.246, cf. Matt, 25:42–43; James 2:15–16). The first of our Historic Principles of Church Order is that “God alone is Lord of the conscience, and hath left it free from the doctrines and commandments of men which are in anything contrary to his Word, or beside it, in matters of faith or worship” (F-3.0101a; c.f. Book of Confessions, Westminster Confession of Faith, 6.109).

26. Dr. King was also influenced by Mahatma Gandhi, a Hindu and an Indian nationalist who led nonviolent resistance against the British government so that they would permit India to have home rule. Dr. King said, “Gandhi was probably the first person in history to lift the love ethic of Jesus above mere interaction between individuals to a powerful and effective social force. … I found in the nonviolent resistance philosophy of Gandhi … the only morally and practically sound method to oppressed people in their struggle for freedom.” See: https://www.nobelprize.org/nobel_prizes/peace/laureates/1964/press.html.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 14-05

Advice on Item 14-05—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 223rd General Assembly (2018) that Item 14-05 presents issues that the assembly should consider.

Item 14-05 asks the General Assembly to approve the “Letter from the Birmingham City Jail” by the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King as a contemporary statement of faith, but not with constitutional standing. This recommendation poses issues both in constitutional terminology and process.

The phrase “contemporary statement of faith without constitutional standing” is not defined in the Book of Order. A statement of faith is defined in F-2.0101:

>The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) states its faith and bears witness to God’s grace in Jesus Christ in the creeds and confessions in the Book of Confessions. In these statements the church declares to its members and to the world who and what it is, what it believes, and what it resolves to do. These statements identify the church as a community of people known by its convictions as well as by its actions. They guide the church in its study and interpretation of the Scriptures; they summarize the essence of Reformed Christian tradition; they direct the church in maintaining sound doctrines; they equip the church for its work of proclamation. They serve to strengthen personal commitment and the life and witness of the community of believers. (Book of Order, F-2.0101)

The Book of Confessions makes no distinction between a creed, confession, statement of faith, or catechism in terms of being ‘contemporary’ or not. The items in the Book of Confessions are from three distinct eras in church history: the early church, the Reformation, and the twentieth century. In the latter group, the Confession of Belhar and A Brief Statement of Faith are over a quarter century more “contemporary” than Dr. King’s Letter from the Birmingham City Jail.

All of the statements of faith in the Book of Confessions went through an approval process defined in G-6.03. Item 14-05 seeks to give Dr. King’s letter certain standing (as a statement of faith) without going through the process to give it that standing. It creates confusion as to what has “constitutional standing” and what does not, that is, what are “authentic and reliable expositions of what Scripture leads us to believe and do” (W-4.0404c) and what are short of that standard.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the General Assembly to consider one of the following two options regarding Item 14-05.

If the General Assembly believes that Dr. King’s letter should be recognized as a statement of faith, then the assembly can begin the process outlined in G-6.03 to include it in the Book of Confessions.

Amendments to the confessional documents of this church may be made only if all the following steps are completed:

- The proposal to amend the Book of Confessions is approved by the General Assembly for study in the church.
- The General Assembly appoints a committee of ruling elders and ministers of the Word and Sacrament, numbering not fewer than fifteen, of whom not more than two shall be from any one synod, to consider the proposal. This committee shall consult with the committee or council from which the proposal originated. It shall report its findings to the next General Assembly.
- The next ensuing General Assembly considers the report of the study committee and approves the proposed amendment and recommends it to the presbyteries for vote.
- The proposed amendment receives the approval in writing of two thirds of the presbyteries.
- The proposed amendment is approved and enacted by the next ensuing General Assembly following the amendment’s receipt of the necessary two-thirds approval of the presbyteries. (Book of Order, G-6.03)
The second option is for the General Assembly to commend Dr. King’s letter to the church for study, as a resource that provides prophetic witness that inspires, challenges, and educates both church and world. Section G-3.0501c gives the General Assembly the power and responsibility of:

... communicating with the whole church on matters of common concern; warning and bearing witness against errors in doctrine or immorality in the church and in the world; providing such services of education and nurture as its presbyteries may require; providing encouragement, guidance, and resources to presbyteries in the areas of mission, prophetic witness, leadership development, worship, evangelism, and responsible administration; discerning and presenting with the guidance of the Holy Spirit, matters of truth and vision that may inspire, challenge, and educate both church and world; ... (Book of Order, G-3.0501c).

Dr. King’s letter touches much of what is in this paragraph, and on this basis, can be commended to the councils of the church for their study and use.

ACSWP ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 14-05

Advice & Counsel on Item 14-05—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

Item 14-05 proposes Martin Luther King’s Letter from a Birmingham Jail be a non-confessional faith statement.

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises disapproval.

The proponent presbytery is right to appreciate the spiritual depth of Martin Luther King Jr.’s famous letter. It was not intended, nor has it been used, as a statement of faith by a church body. But it has been used in a manner similar to that proposed in this overture. A Study of The Belhar Confession and Its Accompanying Letter by Eunice T. McGarrahlan (2008) contains the text of King’s letter in its entirety with some commentary: http://www.synatantic.org/wp-content/uploads/2016/09/Belhar-study_guide.pdf.

Thus, while we advise disapproval, their objective may already have been partly realized.

ACREC ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 14-05

Advice & Counsel on Item 14-05—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns.

The Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 14-05.

ACREC supports this overture as it demonstrates faith in action advocating for the realization of living in God’s beloved community. The Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. is recognized worldwide as a prophetic voice committed to racial and economic justice.

The recommendation supports the core values of ACREC as it advocates for combating racism, prejudices, world peace, and unity across differing religious and theological beliefs.

Valued members of PC(USA) congregations believe in equality and genuine Christian love. The Letter from the Birmingham Jail commends us to demonstrate God’s love to others creating the beloved community.

PMA COMMENT ON ITEM 14-05

Comment on Item 14-05—From the Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA).

This overture calls on the General Assembly to “approve” Martin Luther King Jr.’s Letter from Birmingham City Jail, “as a Contemporary Statement of Faith (but not with constitutional standing).”

The rationale of the overture makes clear the importance of this document for Christians in the United States, as it articulates and explores God’s call to grapple with the sin of racism today. The rationale helpfully shows the connections between Dr. King’s Letter and the PC(USA)’s statement of faith in the Book of Confessions. Letter from Birmingham City Jail is clearly (in the words of the overture) “a reliable aid for Christian study, liturgy, and inspiration.” The PMA stands ready to join in commending it to members, congregations, and councils of this denomination, and to support those who do so.

There is an element of the overture that calls for careful reflection. The overture asks that the Letter be “approved” and given the status of “contemporary statement of faith (but not with constitutional standing).” It is unclear what this status is in the polity of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

To date only one document has carried this designation—A Declaration of Faith. A Declaration of Faith was written within one of the predecessor denominations to the PC(USA): the Presbyterian Church in the United States (PCUS). It was put before that denomination to be voted on for adoption as a confession of faith with constitutional standing. A majority of PCUS presbyteries voted in favor of such adoption, but the vote failed to reach the required super-majority. As noted in the rationale to the overture, the 117th General Assembly of the PCUS (1977) then voted: “That ‘A Declaration of Faith’ be adopted as a contemporary statement of faith, a reliable aid for Christian study, liturgy, and inspiration, with the clear understanding that only the Westminster Standards are constitutional” [Minutes, 1977, PCUS, Part I, p. 168]. The action of that General Assembly does not appear to have intended by this action to create a new category of documents in its polity.

The General Assembly has regularly approved documents and commended them to the denomination for study, reflection, and liturgical use. This has proven to be a good and useful way for the General Assembly to bring attention to the documents in question and to their content. Should commissioners wish to call on this denomination to engage the Letter from Birmingham City Jail as a decisive statement of the demands and opportunities of Christian life and witness today, the overture itself provides alternate language that does not also implicitly establish a new category of document. The assembly could commend the Letter from Birmingham City Jail to members, congregations, and councils as “a reliable aid for Christian study, liturgy, and inspiration.”

Item 14-06

[The assembly approved Item 14-06 as amended. See pp. 17, 18.]

Special Committee to Study the Reformed Perspective of Christian Education in the 21st Century.

The General Assembly’s Special Committee to Study the Reformed Perspective of Christian Education in the 21st Century recommends that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) do the following:

1. Encourage the Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA) to adjust to a shift in Christian education paradigms and practices over the last several decades and therefore
   a. support the restructuring, resourcing, and staffing of the ministry area of Christian formation, working to [deemphasize] [include and expand upon] [continue resourcing] age and stage Christian education, and instead focus on [by developing] [while transitioning to an emphasis on] lifelong Christian education and faith formation, especially intergenerational ministry;
   b. encourage the newly structured ministry area of Christian formation to dedicate resources to be focused on supporting local congregations (facilitating the networking, coaching, and training of local leaders).

2. Direct that curriculum and/or resources produced by the Presbyterian Publishing Corporation and [Congregational Ministries Publishing] [Geneva Press] shall be in consultation and collaboration with the ministry area[s] of Christian Formation [and Racial Ethnic and Women’s Ministries] of the Presbyterian Mission Agency. [Moreover, PPC and Geneva Press should make it a priority to hire culturally proficient and multilingual staff to produce culturally sensitive and appropriate resources.]

3. Direct the [Office of the] General Assembly [to adapt the Session Annual Statistical Report] to collect disaggregated data on certified Christian educators and non-certified Christian educators (employed or volunteer who are functioning as staff).

4. Direct the Office of the General Assembly to encourage the Educator Certification Committee (ECC) to expand and promote the level of Christian Education Associate (CEA), making it more accessible and emphasizing the diverse needs of committed Christian education and faith formation leaders.

5. Advise the Committee on Theological Education (COTE) to encourage Presbyterian seminaries to offer some Christian education and faith formation courses that specifically address intergenerational ministry.

6. Authorize that the special committee’s work be extended by the General Assembly for two years to report back at the 224th General Assembly (2020)
   a. for further study of the certified Christian educator process and recommendations for its future;
   b. for further study of Christian education and faith formation in racial ethnic minority congregations and small congregations;
   c. for the membership of this special committee to be expanded to eleven total members, at least four of whom are racial ethnic minorities or serving in racial ethnic minority congregations and/or ministries.

[Financial Implications: Per Capita Annual $13,732. Total—$27,464]
Rationale

These recommendations are in response to the following referral: 2016 Referral: Item 14-12. Recommendation to Create a Special Committee to Study the Reformed Perspective of Christian Education in the 21st Century—From the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (Minutes, 2016, Part I, pp. 14, 20–21, 1014).

The Reformed faith is a faith that, in the footsteps of St. Augustine, seeks understanding. Five-hundred years ago, the Protestant Reformation began as Scripture and worship were made accessible in the vernacular, inviting and calling the lay-people to know their faith. We are their descendants.

In February 2018, the Reverend J Herbert Nelson, II, Stated Clerk of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), stated:

If we don’t learn to teach again as we have done historically, and as we are known for—theology, education, and how-to—if we don’t begin to learn how to do this today, we will probably be no more than a remnant going into the middle of the 21st century … we must teach what it means to love the Lord God with all our hearts, souls and minds.

The role of such Christian education is not just about knowing about God, but knowing God; not just about knowing a doctrine of grace, but of knowing grace and experiencing it in one’s own soul. We learn who and whose we are. That identity shapes our faith and sends us out in ministry and mission.

Given Jesus’ invitation to love the Lord God with all our hearts, souls, and minds,” we offer the use of the term “Christian education and faith formation” as a central part of the church’s mission in which we seek to integrate our ways of knowing God. It is not through Christian Education and Faith Formation by which we are saved, but it is through Christian Education and Faith Formation that we deepen in our relationship with the Triune God, the one who offers us grace and salvation.

As the special committee began our work, we quickly noticed shifts in traditional understandings of Christian education, from the basic language churches are using to talk about education and formation, to how such ministry is being adapted in light of changing understandings of human spiritual development, learning styles, and cultural dynamics. Our recommendations just scratch the surface of these changes. We hope they reflect the beginnings of our work, and not the culmination of it.

On Recommendation 1—supporting changes to the structure and emphasis of the PMA in the area of Christian formation:

- Our study showed that intergenerational ministry is an area of congregational life that is thriving in diverse settings. Many pastors, educators, and volunteer leaders are looking towards this model of ministry in the future church. Current research trends also emphasize holistic understanding of lifelong faith formation and spiritual practice, noting the limits of only age-segregated, classroom-style education.
  - Intergenerational ministry can thrive in congregations regardless of membership size or financial resources. With the majority of PC(USA) churches categorized as small churches, intergenerational ministries and lifelong Christian education across all areas of congregational life will best serve across multiple contexts, lifting up a sustainable model of ministry with Christian education and faith formation at the core. We believe our national office resources are best utilized supporting this model of ministry.
  - Communication with leaders across the denomination connected to educational ministries led us to infer that connections between local congregations could be improved upon in order to strengthen ministry overall. We also note the reemphasis on the work and ministry of the local church and the decentralization of institutions in the culture overall.
  - Local practitioners best know the needs and challenges of their context. It is networks of local congregations that will be the ones adapting resources and supporting one another in much of the church’s efforts to serve their communities. Investing in those natural networks will benefit congregations and the denomination.

On Recommendation 2—directing Presbyterian Publishing to collaborate with the PMA ministry area of Christian formation:

- We discovered there is little collaboration between the Presbyterian publishing entities and the PMA. There are exciting opportunities for them to be more aligned and mutually supportive. The PMA ministry area of Christian Formation offices also work closely with covenant partners, which expands the number of people available to collaborate on the resources and make training available based on them.

On Recommendation 3—including Christian educators on annual statistical reports:

- During our research to find the current trends and employment for Christian educators and certified Christian educators, we discovered that there is no statistical documentation in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) of Christian educators, currently employed, retired, or deceased. We do not know who they are, where they carry out their ministry, or how they are active in the denomination. Updating the statistical report could
  a. identify Christian educators in the PC(USA);
b. assist the Board of Pensions in their recommendations/changes, and presbyteries in writing compensation guidelines in implementing benefits;

c. aid the Educator Certification Committee in identifying educators to encourage to enter the certification process;

d. aid mid councils in identifying educators to serve on committees and as resources.

On Recommendation 4—encouraging the ECC to expand the Christian education associate level (the level not requiring a BA/BS):

- Currently, the ECC sets the standards for the process of certification for all certified Christian educators, which includes certified Christian educators (CCE) and Christian education associates (CEA).

- In our research we found that, for a variety of reasons, those serving in the role of church educators, employed or volunteer, do not know about or have access to the CEA level of certification. The CEA is underutilized and ripe for adaptation, especially for smaller congregations and racial ethnic congregations who have volunteer or part-time educators. Additionally, there are opportunities to shape the education and training for specific ministry contexts and functions. In promoting and increasing awareness for the CEA, collaboration with partnering organizations would be mutually beneficial.

On Recommendation 5—asking COTE to encourage seminaries to add more courses in faith formation/intergenerational ministry:

- Pastors are, by nature of their role as preachers and teachers, Christian educators. In many congregations the pastor is the only person employed to carry out the function of teaching. As moderators of session and strategic leaders, pastors often have great say in what is emphasized and prioritized in ministry and mission. It is essential they are given the skills in seminary to keep up with new understandings of Christian spiritual formation and educational processes.

On Recommendation 6—extending the special committee for continued work:

- This special committee was formed in April of 2017 and began work in May of 2017. Therefore, the special committee had only nine months to complete its work, which was not enough time to complete the full scope of the charge.

- Given the reality of evolving demographics, the Presbyterian church of the future will not look the same as it does now, and given that one of our charges is to study racial ethnic minority congregations, the special committee feels it needs more diverse experience, voice, and representation on the committee to faithfully live out that charge.

- Through the study of Christian education and faith formation, as well as the role of the Christian educator, the committee has come to understand that the role of educational ministries in the church has a connection to congregational vitality. Further study will allow the committee to offer crucial recommendations regarding the training of those providing lifelong Christian education and faith formation in local congregations.

- Through the study of Christian education in the 21st century and how the educator can be a resource to the denomination, the committee has learned that those providing for educational ministries in our churches is an expanding role. Further study will allow for recommendations about equipping and identifying these leaders and how they can shape faith formation in our churches in the 21st century.

Closing Statement

Jesus invited his disciples to follow him; later he asked them “who do you say that I am?” The special committee proposes that Christian education and faith formation has as much to do with discipleship as it does with learning doctrine. Christian education and faith formation is thus a lifelong, ongoing, iterative process in which we follow Jesus, in so doing learn about him and get to know him, and offer our confession of faith. This whole process is Christian education and faith formation. It is what Jesus did with his disciples. It is what we are called to now.

To this end, the special committee encourages congregations to continue to move toward an intergenerational model of Christian education and faith formation that involves the teaching and learning of Scripture just as much as it involves discipleship in the world combined with reflection and prayer.

ACREC ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 14-06

Advice & Counsel on Item 14-06—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns.

The Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 14-06 with the following amendment to Recommendation 2: [Text to be added is shown with brackets and with an underline.]
“2. Direct that curriculum and/or resources produced by the Presbyterian Publishing Corporation and Congregational Ministries Publishing shall be in consultation and collaboration with the ministry area of Christian Formation [and the Racial/Ethnic and Women’s Ministries of] the Presbyterian Mission Agency. [Moreover, PPC and CMP should make it a priority to hire culturally proficient and multilingual staff to produce culturally sensitive and appropriate resources.]”

Many of the resources developed by PPC and CMP are written from the dominant culture’s perspective, that is, white and middle class. As the country and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)’s demographics continue to change and diversify, the current resources produced do not meet the cultural, social, and religious contexts of people of color and immigrants from the Global South, even when those resources are translated.

[The assembly approved Item 14-07 with comment. See pp. 14, 18.]

Comment: The Assembly Committee on Theological & Church Growth Issues and Institutions recommends that the assembly direct the Committee on Theological Education to encourage member theological institutions to actively recruit Native American, Hispanic, and other underrepresented communities, as well as equal and appropriate gender representation, as members for these boards of trustees.

Approve New Trustees Elected by Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Theological Institutions—From the Committee on Theological Education.

The Committee on Theological Education recommends the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve the new trustees elected by Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) theological institutions in 2016–2018:

Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary: Jill Duffield, Stephen Giles, Bobbi Kaye Jones, Keatan King, Sloan Leonard, Denise Nance Pierce, Mark Ramsey, Matthew Ruffner, John Van Osdall, Elizabeth Williams, Margaret Aymer (faculty rep).

University of Dubuque Theological Seminary: J. Hazen Graves.

Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary: Laurie Laidlaw Deacon, Kenneth McClellan, Elizabeth L. Sheppard, Anne C. Steele, Mr. Tim Stoepker, Lee Walthall.

McCormick Theological Seminary: William Evertsberg, Diane Hart, Stewart Hudnut, Connie Lindsey, Marc Miller, Amy Pagliarella, Jacquelyn Pinkowski, Doug McMahon, David Roberson, Damon Smith, Randall Tate, Reggie Williams.

Princeton Theological Seminary: Peter J.M. Henry, Robert Underhill, Peter Whitelock, Steven Yamaguchi.

San Francisco Theological Seminary: YongKyu Kang, Alvin McLean, Jeannie Kim.

Johnson C. Smith Theological Seminary: no new trustees to present.

Union Presbyterian Seminary: Terry Coffey, Marvin Pullen Daniel, Mindy Douglas, Delano Douglas, Lori Raible, Brent Torstrick, Peter Bynum, Christopher Edmonston.

Rationale

“A Plan for the Governance and Funding of the Theological Institutions of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)” approved by the 198th General Assembly (1986) requires COTE to present presidents and trustees of PC(USA)-related seminaries to the General Assembly for approval. A list of the entire board of trustees of each of the PC(USA)-related seminaries as well as brief biographical information about trustees to be approved will be made available by COTE for review by the appropriate committee during the 223rd General Assembly (2018). Similar information will also be available about those currently serving on the boards of Auburn Theological Seminary and the Evangelical Seminary of Puerto Rico, which are related to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) through covenant agreements.
In addition, and as required by vote of the 209th General Assembly (1997), the following information is offered in regard to racial ethnic and gender representation on the various seminary boards.

_Grant Permission to Theological Institutions to Celebrate the Lord’s Supper—From the Committee on Theological Education._

The Committee on Theological Education recommends that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) grant permission to the following theological institutions to celebrate the Sacrament of the Lord’s Supper in 2016–2017 [from January 2018 through to the conclusion of the 224th General Assembly (2020)]: Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Columbia Theological Seminary, University of Dubuque Theological Seminary, Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary, McCormick Theological Seminary, Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, Princeton Theological Seminary, San Francisco Theological Seminary, Johnson C. Smith Theological Seminary, Union Presbyterian Seminary, Seminario Evangélico de Puerto Rico, and Auburn Theological Seminary.

_Rationale_

Beginning in 1989, the General Assembly became the governing body that grants permission to celebrate the Sacrament of the Lord’s Supper at Presbyterian theological institutions. Each seminary is entrusted with identifying a governing group on campus to discern appropriate occasions and leaders to celebrate on each campus. The 222nd General Assembly (2016) granted permission for celebrations in 2016–2017.

Item 14-09

[The assembly approved Item 14-09 with amendment. See pp. 16, 18–19.]

_Recognize Persons for Outstanding Lifetime Contributions to Theological Education—From the Committee on Theological Education._

The Committee on Theological Education recommends that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) do the following:

1. Recognize the Reverend Katie Geneva Cannon, Ph.D., Annie Scales Rogers Professor of Christian Ethics at Union Presbyterian Seminary, and the Reverend Douglas Oldenburg, Ph.D., President Emeritus at Columbia Theological Seminary, for outstanding lifetime contributions to theological education in and for the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and present them with the Award for Excellence in Theological Education.

2. Schedule [three minutes each] docket time in plenary session to celebrate with each awardee.

_Rationale_

Katie Geneva Cannon

Dr. Katie Geneva Cannon is the Annie Scales Rogers Professor of Christian Social Ethics at Union Presbyterian Seminary. She received a Bachelor of Science degree from Barber-Scotia College in Concord, N.C., and a Master of Divinity from Johnson C. Smith Seminary in Atlanta. She received her Master and Doctor of Philosophy degrees from Union Theological Seminary in New York.
Dr. Cannon has taught at Union in Richmond since 2001 and has received numerous awards for her teaching. She has been the Lilly Distinguished Visiting Professor of Religion at Davidson College and the Sterling Brown Visiting Professor in Religion and African American Studies at Williams College. She has received the distinguished professor award from Spelman College, the Lucy Craft Laney award at the Black Presbyterian Bicentennial Celebration, and was a Professor-Scholar honoree at the National Black Church Summit at Emory University. Additionally, and significantly, she was awarded the Excellence in Teaching Award by the American Academy of Religion.

She has authored the following: Black Womanist Ethics; Katie’s Canon: Womanism and the Soul of the Black Community; Teaching Preaching: Isaac R. Clark and Black Sacred Rhetoric. She has edited God’s Fierce Whimsy: The Implications of Feminism for Theological Education. She has coedited Womanist Theological Ethics (A Reader) with Emilie M. Townes and Angela D. Sims and The Oxford Handbook of African American Theology with Anthony Pinn.

Since 2012, Dr. Cannon has served as executive director of the Squaring the Womanist Circle Project at Union Presbyterian Seminary. This academic and communal integration of scholarly endeavor in womanist thought and practical application of womanist study and research to the social circumstances surrounding the lives of women of color has been widely supported by womanist scholars from around the country and world. Following from the research results learned from the Womanist Circle Project, Dr. Cannon is currently working with the administration of Union Presbyterian Seminary and several foundations to establish The Center for Womanist Leadership at Union Presbyterian Seminary. The Center will be the first of its kind at any theological academic institution in the United States.

Dr. Cannon is the first African American woman to be ordained in the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

Douglas Oldenburg

Doug Oldenburg dedicated his life to service in the Presbyterian church. He was first a pastor, a seminary president, and then moderator of the 210th General Assembly (1998) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

Following his graduation from Union Theological Seminary in Virginia in 1960, he served as pastor at Covenant Presbyterian Church in Lynchburg, Virginia. After seven years he left and began serving as a pastor at Davis Memorial Presbyterian Church in Elkins, West Virginia. His last pastoral position was in the city he grew up in at Covenant Presbyterian Church in Charlotte, North Carolina. He worked for twenty-six years as a pastor and then decided he was called to a new role.

In 1987, he became the seventh president of Columbia Theological Seminary, a position he held until 2000. Oldenburg’s leadership at Columbia Seminary was key to advancing the seminary from regional to national prominence. He recruited extraordinary faculty and built an exemplary board. His unique contribution was to the wider world of theological education. In a day when the emphasis in presidency was championing one’s own institution and gaining competitive advantage, Doug insisted that the whole was as important as the parts and that the Gospel concept of losing one’s life in order to save it applies to institutions as well as persons. He put his money where his mouth was, supporting the institution of the theological education fund even though, by leaving the former funding pattern, Columbia lost and other schools gained, and always asking how any new formula or policy affected all the schools, not just his own.

Oldenburg served on a variety of committees for the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) prior to becoming Moderator. He was elected to serve this position because he placed a large emphasis on theological education and social justice. He called not only for support of the ordination of educators, but also for unity among the nation’s church-related colleges and universities. As Moderator he also sought to support and pursue the study of the Bible. He called for every congregation and presbytery to engage in a program of study about what Presbyterians believe about the Bible and how they read the Bible because he believed “how we read and interpret the Bible is a crucial issue for the church.”

Item 14-10

[The assembly approved Item 14-10. See pp. 16, 19.]

Recommendations from the Committee on Theological Education Self Study Report, Fall 2010–Fall 2017.

The Committee on Theological Education recommends that the 223rd General Assembly do the following:

1. Suspend COTE’s accountability to those documents that presently specify the purpose, functions, and structure of COTE, for a period of two years, allowing for a period of experimentation, during which COTE will be governed by its Manual of Operations.

2. Elect church-at-large/elected members to the COTE class of 2022 by re-nomination of eligible members of the class of 2018.
Rationale

The COTE Self-Study Report provides a thorough analysis that has led to these recommendations. A full understanding of the realities that lead to these recommendations will be found by reading that report.

The conclusion of the report draws that analysis together, leading directly to the first of these recommendations. That conclusion is the following:

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is in a time of flux and transition and the Committee on Theological Education is no different. The COTE has spent much time over the past few years attempting to get at the heart of how it might best serve the denomination. Its members stayed true to the purposes and functions found in the Manual of Operations when possible, while also wrestling with how to prioritize such a wide-ranging and historically bound list of responsibilities. While this committee, throughout the years, has been responsible for facilitating and fostering an ongoing relationship between PC(USA) seminaries and the denomination in the years since our last self-study in 2010, it has become clear to COTE members that the current list of purposes and functions no longer serve to reflect the richness of the covenantal relationship between PC(USA) seminaries and the denomination. It seems to the self-study committee and the committee as a whole that the time has come for a fundamental reorientation of how that relationship will function going forward. We commend the revision of the Manual of Operations and any further development of the work of the Purpose, Form, and Structure task force to this end.

In order to facilitate this fundamental reorientation, the Committee on Theological Education requests a two-year period of study and experimentation, exploring what structures and patterns of meeting best facilitate a fruitful and mutually supportive relationship between the denomination and the seminaries, making best use of opportunities opened by the present realities of both. In order to allow the needed study and experimentation, COTE has made the recommendations at the beginning of this report.

The second recommendation is linked to the first. Primarily because of the deep-going nature of the issues at stake in this discussion, and the need to produce recommendations for the 224th General Assembly (2020) regarding these matters, COTE believes that it would be difficult for new members of the committee to become familiar enough with the issues and institutions involved in the time available. Secondarily, in February 2018, COTE revised its Manual of Operations to facilitate the ongoing discernment of how best to serve the denomination and make proposed changes at the 224th General Assembly (2020). That revision includes reducing the number of members serving on COTE. Since the term of elected members is four years, adding new members now could either delay the implementation of a permanent change or occasion the awkward task of asking elected members to resign. Limiting the number of new members elected to COTE now will facilitate the experimentation before, proposal to, and implementation of changes following the 224th General Assembly (2020).

Item 14-11

Approval of Seminary President and Request for Docket Time for President-Elect to Make Brief Remarks—From the Committee on Theological Education.

The Committee on Theological Education recommends that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) do the following:

1. Approve Alton B. Pollard, III as president of Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary.

2. Approve [three minutes of] docket time in the plenary session for Dr. Pollard to make brief remarks.

Rationale

General Assembly approval of the Reverend Dr. Alton B. Pollard III’s election as president of Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary is required by “A Plan for the Governance and Funding of the Theological Institutions of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.),” approved by the 198th General Assembly (1986).

The Reverend Dr. Alton B. Pollard III, president-elect of Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary, currently serves as Professor of Religion and Culture and is the former Dean at Howard University School of Divinity in Washington, D.C. He is concluding a sabbatical year as Visiting Professor of Religion and Culture and Scholar-in-Residence at Eden Theological Seminary in St. Louis. Dr. Pollard received a Ph.D. in Religion and Culture from Duke University, a M.Div. from Harvard Divinity School, and a B.A. from Fisk University.

Dr. Pollard was the Dean of Howard University School of Divinity from 2007–2017. Prior to that position, he served as Associate Professor of Religion and Culture and Director of the Black Church Studies program at Candler School of Theology at Emory University for nine years. He also served as Chair of American Religious Cultures in the Graduate Division of Religion at Emory (PhD Program) and has taught at Wake Forest University and St. Olaf College.

Item 14-12

[The assembly referred Item 14-12 to the Presbyterian Mission Agency, Office of Theology and Worship, with amendment and with comment. See pp. 17, 19.]

Comment: [The assembly calls for an examination by members, congregations, and presbyteries of what it means to be a people “Reclaiming Jesus,” the Jesus of scriptures. We commend for study, comment, and prayer the resources that the “Reclaiming Jesus” movement gives, including the Reclaiming Jesus statement and its summary, its Bible studies and its Civil Discourse Curricula.]

Commissioners’ Resolution. On Supporting the Reclaiming Jesus statement with Prayer and Study.

The 223rd General Assembly (2018) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)

1. Commends to its members, congregations, and presbyteries the Reclaiming Jesus statement concerning matters of Christian faith and how that faith interacts with the “spirits” of our times.

2. Calls for an examination by members, congregations, and presbyteries of what it means to be a people “Reclaiming Jesus,” the Jesus of the scriptures. We commend for study, comment, and prayer the resources that the “Reclaiming Jesus” movement gives, including the Reclaiming Jesus statement and its summary, its Bible studies and Civil Discourse Curricula.

3. Authorizes the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to develop, in coordination with the Reclaiming Jesus movement, ancillary materials to expand this process of study, examination, comment, and prayer, and to make these materials, along with the Reclaiming Jesus materials, available to individuals, congregations, sessions, and presbyteries.

[2.] [4.] Encourages the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), through its 224th General Assembly [(2018)] [(2020)], to endorse the Reclaiming Jesus movement through signing onto its statement.

[Financial Implications: Per Capita 2019 Total $105,000]

Rationale

The growth of the evangelical community in the United States of America has become increasingly divided. This division has resulted in the perception in the non-Christian world that Christ, as seen through His followers, is a demanding King who insists upon submission, rather than a loving Kin who died so that all may hear the call of the Gospel to “come unto me and rest.”

This perversion of the Gospel hinders by the creation of false first impressions not only the work of the church in spreading the Gospel but in contradicting the very work of God through the Holy Spirit.

We do believe that each and every human being is made in the likeness of God, and therefore do reject white nationalism and racism, including that expressed in the very halls of our government.

We do assert our kinship with all others in the body of Christ, without regards to race, gender, identity, or class and, therefore, condemn misogyny, sexism, abuse, harassment, and oppression of others who are our kin, being all people, include that expressed in the politics of our country.

We believe that God has a special place in God’s heart for those who are “the least of these” (all people) “who are members” of God’s family, and that God calls for us to be, like God, especially present, accepting, loving, and nurturing of them, and therefore condemn language by any and all of those who would lead us by saying that there is anyone “first” in line except these vulnerable ones, and by saying that anyone should lord it over others. We condemn actions that affirm sinful language, including making the vulnerable targets of political action, of neglect including through government, and take the vulnerable away from being the neediest, making the richest among us first instead of servants.

We believe the truth of the Gospel has been perverted by many claiming to be proponents of the Gospel in and to the halls of government, making a false witness of the promises of Scripture and how power in society should act in light of the love of God; and, therefore, condemn all forms of falsehood, including the dissemination of “fake news” by our very leaders, and inconsistent statements that make holding our leaders accountable impossible.

We view ourselves, and in particular our church and its members, congregations, and presbyteries, as well as those among us who have received abundance in wealth, as following in the steps of Christ, leaders by being servants of our kin, and therefore call for all those who would lead, through democratic election or by appointment, to reject the temptation to be autocratic, to dictate to others without regard to their kinship, to subvert what gift from God our country’s democracy has given us, to lord it over others and especially over the vulnerable among us, and to worship power over responsibility to our kin.

We view our calling as Christians, a call from Jesus, to be disciples among all peoples, nations, and communities of the love of God and, therefore, view the concept of primacy of our country over others in any way, economically, politically, environmentally, and militarily, as profound distortion of the Gospel of love for our kin throughout the world and therefore as heresy, to be named and identified as such.

ACSWP ADVICE AND COUNSEL ON ITEM 14-12

Advice and Council on Item 14-12—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises that the 223rd General Assembly (2018) approve Item 14-12 as amended below. [Text to be deleted is shown with brackets and with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown with brackets and with an underline.]

“3. Authorizes the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to develop, in coordination with the Reclaiming Jesus movement, ancillary materials[,] drawing on Reformed, Presbyterian, and ecumenical social teaching[,] to expand this process of study, examination, comment, and prayer, and to make these materials, along with the Reclaiming Jesus materials, available to individuals, congregations, sessions, and presbyteries.

“4. Encourages [individual members and congregations of] the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) [to consider] [, through its 224th General Assembly (2018), to endorse] [endorsing] the Reclaiming Jesus movement through signing onto its statement.”

The “Reclaiming Jesus” statement is very good statement by a group of well-known ecumenical leaders about the current need for and content of public Christian witness. The initiating group of individuals, coordinated by the Sojourners ministry and other groups, did not include a Presbyterian, but Presbyterians can certainly gain from it. The proponents wisely provide for resources or material to contextualize for a denomination, but that is not the context assumed by the signers. To the extent it is a “movement” document, it bears comparison with the Poor Peoples Campaign, and in that spirit, we advise encouraging congregations and individuals like the signers to consider it.

PMA COMMENT ON ITEM 14-12

Comment on Item 14-12—From the Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA).

The Presbyterian Mission Agency affirms the need for members of the PC(USA), alongside partners in the church ecumenical, to think well and deeply about how our primary commitment to the God with whom we are united in Jesus Christ, calls us to live and act during the societal and political realities of this time. Many members of the PC(USA) have found resources for such reflection in the Reclaiming Jesus statement. Should commissioners decide to commend this statement (and any resources developed to aid in study of the statement) to the denomination for study and reflection, we urge that the General Assembly direct the Presbyterian Mission Agency to develop a resource, or resources, that explore how the affirmations and concerns raised in each of the six affirmations of the Reclaiming Jesus statement are treated in a distinctive way in the confessional documents in the Book of Confessions that constitute us, the members of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), as one denomination across our varied political commitments. This resource or resources are to be framed in a way that seeks to draw the members of the PC(USA) together, rejecting the divisiveness and partisanship that so deeply characterizes political discourse in our nation today.

Item 14-A

Minutes, Committee on Theological Education

Approved with comment: [See p. 19.]
Comment: Although it was necessary to involve two different clerks over the course of the past two years, consistency is needed in presentation of the minutes:

1. Persons attending should be referenced by their full name or with title.

2. Care should be exercised in recording actions as motions and votes with less emphasis on recording discussion, especially when discussion notes are unclear, spotty, and incomplete. The minutes from February 21 are more helpful in clarity. Earlier minutes were less clear.

These comments were also part of the recommendation to approve with comment by the Assembly Committee on Theological & Church Growth Issues and Institutions of the 222nd General Assembly (2016).

Item 14-Info

Committee on Theological Education Self Study Report, Fall 2010–Fall 2017

1. Introduction

Since the last self-study submitted in 2010 to the 219th General Assembly (2010), the Committee on Theological Education (COTE) has undergone significant transformation. The most noteworthy change within COTE during this time was the transfer of fiduciary responsibility of the Theological Education Fund (TEF) from the Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA) to the Presbyterian Foundation (FDN) as of January 1, 2015. With time and space now opened up for work beyond the TEF, COTE envisioned increased opportunity and resources to respond to the needs of the denomination, its congregations, its ministries, and its seminaries in new and nimble ways.

The Committee on Theological Education is uniquely positioned to be the location of partnership between the denomination and its seminaries. The COTE Manual of Operations, revised in February 2013, states the following purpose and functions of the COTE:

Purpose: The Committee on Theological Education will be responsible:

a. to further the cause of theological education in the church
b. to provide a vehicle through which the individual theological schools can coordinate their activities and report to the church.
c. to provide for official communication from the church to the schools; to preserve the freedom of the schools for the benefit of the church;
d. to assure visible representation at national levels of the church’s organization.

Assigned Functions:

1. To develop and maintain a comprehensive overview of theological education from the perspective of the whole church.
2. To identify, develop, and propose strategies for a systemic approach to theological education within the denomination.
3. To serve as an advocate before the whole church for theological education and to interpret the mission of the denomination’s seminaries to the whole church.
4. To provide a way for the church’s needs to be addressed to the denomination’s seminaries.
5. To review the effectiveness and stewardship of the seminaries on behalf of the church.
6. To encourage and enhance cooperation among theological seminaries of the denomination.
7. To relate the governing bodies and agencies of the PC(USA), particularly those which have responsibilities for theology and worship, for education, for candidacy, and for leadership development for pastors and church members.
8. To maintain appropriate relationships with those responsible for theological education in other branches of the church catholic.
9. To receive and act upon requests and recommendations from the church.
10. To receive and review reports from the theological seminaries appropriate to the work of the committee.
11. To identify the issues, needs, and opportunities of the seminaries individually and corporately, and where appropriate, address these as requests and recommendations to the church.
12. To authorize use of Theological Education Fund monies, prepare an appropriate formula for disbursements to the theological seminaries of the PC(USA), and to advocate for financial support of the seminaries.
13. To maintain relations with educational and ecumenical associations which share common concerns with the committee.
14. To serve as an agency of the denomination for relation to theological seminaries other than those of the PC(USA).
15. To recommend to the General Assembly those theological seminaries which shall qualify as members of the Committee on Theological Education.
This report will highlight the ways in which COTE has fulfilled its purpose and functions throughout the last seven years as well as name ways in which we think some of our functions are no longer helpful in that they are no longer necessary or feasible in order to stay true to our purpose. We are mindful that concurrent discussions within COTE have envisioned a faithful future for COTE, including new ways for Presbyterian seminaries to serve the denomination, and ways for COTE to organize and operate to maximize its service to the PC(USA).

II. Summation of the COTE’s Activity and Changes Since the Self-Study of 2010

A. Significant Activities, Accomplishments, and Partnerships of the COTE since 2010:

1. Leadership Initiatives and Research and Development Task Forces

   Responding to observations raised in the paper, “Raising Up Leaders for the Mission of God” by the Joint Committee on Leadership Needs, in September of 2010, COTE appointed two task forces: One to focus specifically on Leadership Initiatives and the other on Research and Development.

   In 2011, COTE received recommendations from the two task forces and approved the following:

   From the Leadership Initiatives Task Force, COTE voted to send an official communication to the church at large inviting presbyteries and congregations into a conversation regarding investment in PC(USA) seminary graduates who have creative ideas about starting innovative ministries, supporting smaller membership congregations in a way that would make full-time calls possible, affirming congregations and presbyteries supporting new ministry ideas and joint ventures, inviting the Board of Pensions into a conversation regarding alternatives to meet pension dues, and continuing to explore the possibilities with the Office of Vocation regarding call and ministry with respect to the ordination process.

   The Research and Development Task Force was empowered to organize a Theological Education Symposium, which was held in conjunction with the 219th General Assembly (2010) in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and the Mobilizing the Talents gathering of pastors and emerging seminary leaders at the 220th General Assembly (2012).

2. Revisions to the COTE Manual of Operations

   In 2011, a task force was also named to review the COTE Manual of Operations. The recommendations of this committee were received and adopted in early 2013. On the basis of our findings and subsequent conversations, we recommend another revision of the COTE Manual of Operations.

3. Cooperative Seminary Courses

   In 2010, the COTE once again co-sponsored the Cooperative Seminary Course at Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary, “Leaders for a Connectional Church,” and the 2012 “Presbyterianism: Principles and Practice” course given at the 220th General Assembly (2012) and offered by San Francisco Theological Seminary and Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary.

4. Award for Excellence in Theological Education

   In 2010, John Trotti was named the winner of the PC(USA) Award for Excellence in Theological Education. In 2014, Jack Rogers and Cynthia Campbell received the award. In 2016, Katherine Sakenfeld and Craig Dykstra received the award.

5. “Why PC(USA) Seminaries Matter” Video Project

   In the fall of 2013, members of COTE were featured in a promotional video project entitled “Why PC(USA) Seminaries Matter” that was circulated throughout the greater church. The videos served specifically as promotional materials for the TEF, but also as a broader source of advocacy for the theological education throughout the denomination.

6. Interschool Cooperative Grants Awarded

   In 2013, COTE awarded a grant of $2,500 to Allan Cole, dean at Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary and $2,000 to Jeff Japinga at McCormick Theological Seminary to help fund interschool cooperative grant proposals for academic deans and doctor of ministry program directors to foster resource collaboration and mutual enrichment in leadership and curricular development.

7. Ongoing Discussions About the Role of COTE at This Time

   As early as 2011, the COTE invested time and energy reflecting on how we might best fulfill our purpose, as mandated by the PC(USA). Many conversations highlighted and affirmed COTE’s role as a connection point between “the church” and PC(USA) seminaries, and also acknowledged our discomfort with the regulatory language that pervades the list of functions. In the time since our last self-study in 2010, COTE discussed:
a. Promoting the value of theological education, especially within the PC(USA) and emphasizing its seminaries;

b. Coordinating events at large denominational events, such as General Assembly and Big Tent, for folks to engage with seminaries;

c. Bringing deans, presidents, and elected members of COTE together to talk about what it means to be a PC(USA) seminary;

d. Mediating questions about PC(USA) seminaries that arise at General Assembly or within the denomination.

8. Facilitation of Review of the Bible Content Exam on Behalf of Presbyteries’ Cooperative Committee on Examinations for Candidates (PCCEC)

In 2016, COTE served as a respected third-party facilitator of an independent review of the Bible Content Exam, in response to a protest filed with the PCCEC due to concerns about its difficulty in relation to recent decreases in pass rates. Through Tim Cargal, PCCEC asked the COTE, at the September 2016 executive committee meeting, to convene an independent review with four readers, Michelle Bartel (then coordinator of theological education and seminary relations) as convener, two PCCEC members as observers, and Tim Cargal as staff support. The COTE carried out this task and the review was completed by February 2017.

B. Significant Changes to COTE Since 2010

1. The Theological Education Fund (TEF)

In 2010, COTE began a period of collaborative discernment with the Presbyterian Mission Agency (PMA, previously the General Assembly Council) regarding the future of the TEF. This effort resulted in the 220th General Assembly (2012) acting to establish the Special Committee on Funding Theological Institutions (SCFTI).

In 2014, the final recommendation of the SCFTI was to transfer the fiduciary responsibility for the TEF from the PMA to the Presbyterian Foundation. The decision was then made to hire staff to manage and develop the fund. Lee Hinson-Hasty and Nancy Benson-Nicol were hired as senior director and associate director, respectively, and took up their posts as of January 1, 2015.

Although the move brought about many technical questions, particularly moving data and software, the transition was remarkably smooth thanks to the continued presence of Lee and Nancy in the new context.

Now that COTE has a new partner with the Presbyterian Foundation for the TEF’s development and management, greater opportunities for growth are possible. The COTE maintains its connection to the TEF by continuing oversight of the formula by which distributions of the fund are determined, as well as how any remaining discretionary funds are put to use. The COTE also remains dedicated to the promotion of the TEF in whatever ways the work of the committee might be useful and appropriate. The COTE celebrates the newly found partnership with the FDN and the gifts it is bringing to growing the TEF in support of future ministers and our PC(USA) seminaries.

2. Denominational Staffing for COTE

In the PMA, the work of COTE was supported by Barry Ensign-George, who handled the annual February meeting, until the new coordinator, Michelle Bartel, was hired in February 2015. At the time of the last self-study, there were four staff members for the then-named Office of Theological Education and Seminary Relations. It was reduced to one, Michelle Bartel, who served as coordinator of theological education and seminary relations and as executive officer of the COTE from February 2015 to September 2017. Barry Ensign-George returned to serve as our staff liaison in late 2017 to the time of this writing.

3. The Make-Up of COTE

Changes in COTE membership come about in two ways. The first is by virtue of changes in leadership naturally occurring within our PC(USA) seminaries. New institutional representatives since the last self-study include:

a. Frank Yamada—McCormick Theological Seminary (who was replaced by interim president David Crawford in June of 2017)

b. Leanne Van Dyk—Columbia Theological Seminary

c. David Esterline—Pittsburgh Theological Seminary

d. Craig Barnes—Princeton Theological Seminary

e. Paul Roberts—Johnson C. Smith Theological Seminary

Second is the rotation of elected members:
Class of 2018
   a. Alan Bancroft, Teaching Elder
   b. Matthew Miles, Teaching Elder
   c. Mary Elva Smith, Ruling Elder
   d. Saundra Tracy, Ruling Elder
   e. Tom Trinidad, Teaching Elder

Class of 2020
   a. Jodi Craiglow, Ruling Elder
   b. Garnett Foster, Ruling Elder
   c. Vanessa Hawkins, Teaching Elder
   d. Katherine Smith, Teaching Elder
   e. Amaury Tanon-Santos, Teaching Elder
   f. Mike Williams, Teaching Elder

III. Steps of Current Self-Study
A. The COTE Nominating Committee appointed the following Self-Study Task Force: Alan Bancroft (chair), Kathy Wolf-Reed, Vilmarie Cintron-Olivieri, Ted Wardlaw, Gary Eller, and Doris Garcia-Rivera.

B. The Self-Study Task Force met in person at Austin Seminary, then had several conversations in conjunction with COTE stated meetings and by conference call.

C. Task force members were asked to interview two-to-three people representing various constituencies of the church at-large, using a common rubric of questions, to gain insight into general impressions about COTE, the TEF, and theological education in the PC(USA) in general.

D. Reports from these conversations were discussed over conference call and were submitted to the chair for collation. The chair then summarized common themes and shared these with the entire task force. These themes are shared below.

E. Significant discussion was given to the effects of the transfer of the TEF to the Presbyterian Foundation, and to how this impacts the shape of COTE’s work. This showed up especially in the September 2015 stated meeting of the COTE when the subcommittees reviewed their mandates and called for review of their work.

F. A draft of this report was produced and circulated to the Self-Study Task Force. After further revisions, a final draft was submitted to the full COTE for approval.

G. Concurrently, a task force to evaluate the Purpose, Form, and Structure (PFS) of COTE was formed to address dissatisfaction with the stated functions of the COTE, especially those that are regulatory in tone, and to envision a fruitful relationship between Presbyterian seminaries and the denomination. The results of this task force include an inspirational course of service for the seminaries to the denomination, and a revision of the COTE Manual of Operations.

VI. Common Themes from Interviews
A. People offer mostly positive feedback when asked about our theological institutions. PC(USA) seminaries are still thought of highly and are considered to be the center of theological education within our denomination.

B. For the past few years, awareness of and connection to the TEF have declined within local congregation and mid council bodies. While some congregations continue to give, many have decreased giving, or have ceased doing so altogether. We have work to do in telling the story of why the TEF matters, and what impact it makes in the life of seminarians and seminary operations. While we are seeing positive strides in this area with regard to giving, we acknowledge this trend and hope to give it more attention.

C. There is concern from people representing various groups within the denomination that we be more intentional about engaging with racial ethnic communities in our efforts to train leaders for the future of the church. We are asked to consider the following: How might COTE play a role in fostering conversation/providing resources from CPMs, COMs, and theological institutions with regard to ways in which our current system leaves members of certain racial ethnic groups at a disadvantage?
D. Almost everyone we interviewed suggested that COTE might take a more active role in guiding/convening/fostering the wide variety of conversations happening within our denomination about the changing nature of leadership and how our theological institutions are training folks for the future needs of the church. As reflected earlier in this report, COTE has made efforts in this area, but those efforts seem to have gone unnoticed.

E. Many pastoral leaders in our denomination desire opportunities to continue receiving theological education throughout their service, and not all of them wish to engage with official degree programs to do so. We are asked to consider the following: How might COTE serve as a resource to aggregate all of the enriching programs being offered through our theological institutions and beyond for the ongoing theological development of pastoral leadership? We acknowledge that this falls outside of our mandate and functions, but we received enough feedback in this area that we wanted to make note of it.

F. Our PC(USA) seminaries are increasingly diverse theologically and denominationally. At the same time, candidates for ministry in the PC(USA) are attending a wider variety of theological institutions. We are asked to consider the following: What role does COTE have in providing guidance to CPMs and mid council bodies as to the ability of non-PC(USA) seminaries to adequately and effectively train future pastoral leaders on behalf of our denomination?

V. Conclusion

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is in a time of flux and transition and the Committee on Theological Education is no different. The COTE has spent much time over the past few years attempting to get at the heart of how it might best serve the denomination. Its members stayed true to the purposes and functions found in the Manual of Operations when possible, while also wrestling with how to prioritize such a wide-ranging and historically bound list of responsibilities. While this committee, throughout the years, has been responsible for facilitating and fostering an ongoing relationship between PC(USA) seminaries and the denomination in the years since our last self-study in 2010, it has become clear to COTE members that the current list of purposes and functions no longer serve to reflect the richness of the covenantal relationship between PC(USA) seminaries and the denomination. It seems to the self-study committee and the committee as a whole that the time has come for a fundamental reorientation of how that relationship will function going forward. We commend the revision of the Manual of Operations and any further development of the work of the Purpose, Form, and Structure task force to this end.

In order to facilitate this fundamental reorientation, the Committee on Theological Education requests a two-year period of study and experimentation, exploring what structures and patterns of meeting best facilitate a fruitful and mutually supportive relationship between the denomination and the seminaries, making best use of opportunities opened by the present realities of both. In order to allow the needed study and experimentation, COTE has made the recommendations at the beginning of this report.

As a result of its time of study and experimentation, COTE will submit for General Assembly consideration and action proposed revisions to the relevant governing documents that set forth the purposes, functions, and structure of COTE to the 224th General Assembly (2020). [See Item 14-10 for the recommendations submitted by the Committee on Theological Education as part of its self-study.]

Even in the early moments of our developing nation, the Presbyterian church—one of the earliest and most influential churches during and beyond the colonial period—steadfastly planted educational institutions in order to nurture the stewardship of the mind. Further, because of the church’s historic commitment to an educated clergy, Presbyterian theological institutions began springing up as early as 1794, when the earliest predecessor institution to the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary was founded, and 1812, when Princeton Theological Seminary was founded. Some of these theological institutions closed over time, merged with other schools, or shifted from the preparation of clergy to other missions; but ten of them have flourished and continue to be relevant resources for the PC(USA).

In 1983, when the two largest Presbyterian bodies reunited, finally healing a rupture brought about by the American Civil War, the seven seminaries of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. (the so-called Northern Presbyterian Church) combined with the four seminaries of the Presbyterian Church in the United States (the so-called Southern Presbyterian Church).

The UPCUSA seminaries were:

- Pittsburgh Theological Seminary
- Princeton Theological Seminary
- McCormick Theological Seminary (1829)
- University of Dubuque School of Theology (1852)
- Louisville Theological Seminary (aligned dually with both denominations and dating back to 1853)
- Johnson C. Smith Theological Seminary (1867)
- San Francisco Theological Seminary (1871)

The PCUS seminaries were:

- Union Presbyterian Seminary (1812)
- Columbia Theological Seminary (1828)
- Louisville Theological Seminary
- Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary (1902)

Since reunion, the General Assembly has established renewable covenant agreements with two additional seminaries with historical ties to the PC(USA)’s predecessors:

- Auburn Theological Seminary (1818)
- The Seminario Evangélico de Puerto Rico (1919)

Although theological education takes place in many venues across the church, most notably in congregations week in and week out, the focus of the work of COTE has been the ministry of theological education expressed through the mission and work of the theological seminaries related to the PC(USA) whose primary calling is the preparation and enhancement of women and men for ministry in the church of Jesus Christ. The ten theological schools of the PC(USA) named above and the two in covenant agreement are vital centers of teaching and learning. Collectively these schools have more than three thousand students in degrees ranging from the Master of Divinity (MDiv) and other master’s degrees to the Doctor of Ministry (DMin) and Doctor of Philosophy (PhD). These students are prepared by more than two hundred and fifty fulltime faculty as well as by scores of adjunct professors. The library resources of these schools represent some of the most important collections in the United States and the world. The scholarly work of seminary faculty members regularly appears in curriculum, journals, and books that support the work of pastors and teachers across the church.

Although preparation of leaders for the PC(USA) is the historical mission of these schools, students from many other denominations and from churches around the world are attracted to our seminaries because of the rich theological resources and the strong history of scholarship and teaching. The schools offering PhD programs (Princeton and Union) are important providers of faculty for theological schools in the United States and around the world. Of the twenty largest Doctor of Ministry programs in the United States, four are from mainline denominational traditions; three of those are Presbyterian schools (Columbia, McCormick, and San Francisco). While the degree programs that these schools offer are similar, each school responds to the unique needs of the church in its region and seeks to provide a distinctive focus in its education so as to enhance the range of resources available to the church.

The theological schools of the PC(USA) represent collectively one of the strongest systems of theological education of any denomination. Even after the devastating economic challenges of 2008–2009, our seminaries are among the strongest in the United States in terms of financial reserves. Much of this strength is due to the stewardship of the seminaries’ board of trustees, made up almost entirely of members and officers of the PC(USA). Their dedication and professional expertise has greatly contributed to the robust character of the schools.
Committee on Theological Education (COTE) Agency Summary

Introduction

The Committee on Theological Education (COTE) is the primary formal connection between the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) at the denominational level and the COTE member seminaries. The COTE member seminaries include ten institutions that are Institutional Members of COTE:

- Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary,
- Columbia Theological Seminary;
- Johnson C. Smith Theological Seminary;
- Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary;
- McCormick Theological Seminary;
- Pittsburgh Theological Seminary;
- Princeton Theological Seminary;
- San Francisco Theological Seminary;
- Union Presbyterian Seminary;
- University of Dubuque Theological Seminary.

COTE also includes two Covenant Member institutions:

- Auburn Theological Seminary;
- Seminario Evangélico de Puerto Rico.

The Omaha Seminary Foundation is a Corresponding Member of COTE.

These institutions have long historical ties to the PC(USA) and have participated in the life of this denomination across its and their existence.

COTE’s Self-Study: Request for a Two-Year Period of Reflection and Experimentation

Over the last four years, the Committee on Theological Education has worked diligently on its periodic self-study, which it is submitting to the 223rd General Assembly (2018) for consideration. The time since COTE’s previous self-study [submitted to the 219th General Assembly (2010)] has been a time of significant change, for COTE itself and for both the denomination and the seminaries. The current self-study explores these changes.

On the basis of that exploration, COTE is requesting that the General Assembly suspend, for a two-year period, some of the mandates presently governing it. In the self-study, the committee recommends “that the General Assembly suspend COTE’s accountability to those documents that presently specify the purpose, functions, and structure of COTE, allowing for a period of experimentation, during which COTE will be governed by its Manual of Operations.” It goes on to say: “As a result of its time of study and experimentation, COTE will submit for General Assembly consideration and action proposed revisions to the relevant governing documents that set forth the purposes, functions, and structure of COTE to the 224th General Assembly (2020).” In order to facilitate this work, COTE is recommending that the General Assembly fill the COTE Class of 2022 church-at-large members only with persons currently serving who are eligible for another term. This will facilitate COTE’s experimentation with a smaller sized committee. It will also save the need to orient members new to COTE, and to do the work of incorporating those new members into its work.

Developments at Johnson C. Smith Theological Seminary

The last four years have brought significant changes to Johnson C. Smith Theological Seminary (JCSTS), the only historically black theological seminary of the PC(USA). In order to survive and thrive in the current environment for theological education, JCSTS in 2014 entered into a period of institutional transition. This transition brought a time of, and a commitment to, extensive reflection and wide consultation on the particular shape of its participation in the ministry of theological education. Foundational in this time was JCSTS’s commitment to its identity: it is a justice-oriented Christ-centered institution providing theological education. Based on this process of reflection and consultation, JCSTS has launched study centers (including the
In 2016 JCSTS offered certificate programs in clergy wellness and worship leadership for more than fifty participants. In collaboration with the Metro Industrial Areas Foundation of Baltimore and NEXTChurch, it has offered a certificate in Community Organizing and Congregational Leadership, with a cohort of fifty-six students. In 2016–17 JCSTS has cohorts in two programs: Certificate in Worship Leadership and Certificate in Clergy and Congregational Wellness. Feedback from participants has been very positive and has enabled JCSTS to strengthen these programs.

JCSTS’s commitment to offering certificates means that it is not at the present time awarding degrees. It also is not presently accredited. As JCSTS moves in this time of experimentation, it remains open to again offering degrees and seeking accreditation. It has had some conversation with Johnson C Smith University of Charlotte, North Carolina, the institution from which it separated in the 1960s. It is also exploring the possibility of offering “stackable” certificates. A relatively new idea in education, stackable certificates are designed to interlock with one another in a way that can add up to a terminal degree. JCSTS is poised to be able to explore such innovations as it fulfills its mission.

Like many New Worshipping Communities, JCSTS’s mission and ministry have taken shape in unusual forms. JCSTS is housed in the offices of the Presbytery of Greater Atlanta, and it makes use of space in a WeWork location. Instruction and learning happen both in person, in varied locations, and online.

The leadership of JCSTS is committed to using this time of transition and exploration in bold ways, welcoming the opportunities this time has opened up.

COTE has received regular reports from Johnson C. Smith Theological Seminary through its president, the Reverend Paul T. Roberts. COTE has commended the leadership of JCSTS for its faithfulness, courage, and vision. COTE has sought ways to be of help to JCSTS as it charts a new way forward.

Response to Referral from 222nd General Assembly (2016)

As reported to the Presbyterian Mission Agency, COTE has responded to a referral from the 222nd General Assembly (2016): Item 11-22. Facing Racism: A Vision of the Intercultural Community. Recommendation 11. This referral encouraged seminaries to address matters related to racism through training, curriculum, and hiring. As part of its regular meeting in February 2018, the presidents of those seminaries in attendance reported on how their institutions are addressing matters of race. The members of COTE were overwhelmed by the presidents’ reports.

The presidents reported such activities as: Adding a day of new student orientation dealing with matters of race; offering a January term for intercultural learning; partnering with The Wabash Center to embed multiculturalism into the syllabi; hosting regular “courageous conversations” on matters of race; requiring each core theological discipline to include a class dealing with race, as well as requiring students to take that course; and revising search protocols to ensure diversification of the faculty.

Some matters of note include: Of the fourteen new faculty hires over the past five years at Princeton Theological Seminary, nine are people of color; The University of Dubuque Theological Seminary emphasizes its opportunity to address racism not simply as a societal matter, but from the theological category of sin; Union Presbyterian Seminary has created the Center for Womanist Leadership at its Richmond campus, under leadership of one of this year’s Excellence in Theological Education awardees, Dr. Katie Geneva Cannon; Union Presbyterian Seminary has received an endowment gift that has funded the establishment of a Center for Social Justice and Reconciliation on its Charlotte campus that will work on issues of race (among other justice-oriented issues), convening conversations within the seminary community; several seminaries are conducting historical analyses of the impact racism has had on their institutions, preparing to incorporate the truths discovered, beginning with repentance.

COTE members were instructed and inspired by the reports of our seminary presidents, and encouraged to witness how they are learning from one another and how they are preparing future ministers to lead congregations responsibly in dealing with issues of race.

Report: Changes in Charter/Bylaws of COTE Member Seminaries

The following COTE member institutions report changes in their charter/bylaws over the period 2016–17.

* Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary* reports two changes. Two degrees have been added: Master of Arts (Ministry Practice), and Master of Arts (Youth Ministry). The Finance and Administration Committee is to be notified in the case of dismissal of a senior member of the nonacademic administrative staff for cause.
Princeton Theological Seminary reports a change to its Articles of Incorporation, and a change to its bylaws.

Article VII of the Articles of Incorporation has been revised. Previously it specified that officers of the board of trustees would be ministers or ruling elders of the PC(USA). It has been revised to specify that ordinarily the chair or vice-chair of the board will be a minister or ruling elder of the PC(USA).

Article XI (“Relationship to the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)”) of the bylaws has been revised.

What follows is the text of this article prior to revision:

Princeton Theological Seminary is recognized by the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) as one of its theological institutions. In accord with this recognition, for so long as it shall remain in effect and to the extent permitted by law, the Seminary agrees to respect the polity of said Church, to be attentive to the recommendations of the General Assembly thereof, and to conduct a program of theological education in a manner not inconsistent with the standards of that Church. Whenever any funds or estate shall be conveyed to the Corporation by the General Assembly of said Church, with specific instructions for their disposition, the Corporation shall hold and use those funds and estate for the purpose specified.

Here is the text of this article as revised:

A professional and graduate school related to the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), the Seminary stands within the Reformed tradition, affirming the sovereignty of the triune God over all creation, the gospel of Jesus Christ as God’s saving word for all people, the renewing power of the word and Spirit in all of life, and the unity of Christ’s servant church throughout the world. This tradition shapes the instruction, research, practical training, and continuing education provided by the Seminary, as well as the theological scholarship it promotes.

San Francisco Theological Seminary reports that it has changed the phrase “women and men” to “persons” in the first line of its Mission Statement. It has also changed the name of its Budget and Investment Committee to Finance Committee.

University of Dubuque reports a change in membership of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees, which will include not more than four at-large representatives from the board, serving three-year terms that are nonrenewable unless waived by the board or the executive committee acting on the board’s behalf. Previously the bylaws specified that there would be not more than three at-large representatives.

Standing Rules of the General Assembly

[AS AMENDED BY THE 223RD GENERAL ASSEMBLY (2018).]

Introduction

Values Present at General Assembly

Now there are varieties of gifts, but the same Spirit; and there are varieties of services, but the same Lord; and there are varieties of activities, but it is the same God who activates all of them in everyone. To each is given the manifestation of the Spirit for the common good. … If one member suffers, all suffer together with it; if one member is honored, all rejoice together with it. Now you are the body of Christ and individually members of it. (1 Cor. 12:4–7 and 26–27)

The General Assembly constitutes the bond of union, community and mission among all its congregations and councils, to the end that the whole church becomes a community of faith, hope, love and witness. (G-3.0501)

With glad and grateful hearts, we affirm these core values in our worship, work, and witness together in gatherings of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.):

• That the common life of the whole church, as evidenced in our meetings, will reflect the mind of Christ, demonstrating consolation, spiritual sharing, compassion and sympathy, and doing nothing from selfish ambition or conceit, but in humility regarding others as better than ourselves. We will be in full accord and strive to model the faithful, obedient, humble, and self-emptying witness of Jesus Christ.

• That our engagement with one another in the ministry of the gathered church will reflect the transforming love of God, enabling us to discern God’s will together. We will use our gifts on behalf of one another and the world, giving glory to God. We will love genuinely and hold fast to all that is good. We will rejoice in hope, be patient in suffering, and persevere in prayer. We will live in harmony with one another and overcome evil with good.

• These values will enable us
  ◦ to engage with one another in love, humility, grace, and servant discipleship, as the council of the whole church;
  ◦ to encourage and increase collaboration within and among all councils of the church;
  ◦ to participate in discussion, deliberation, and discernment in ways that are fair and honest and open;
  ◦ to focus each meeting of the General Assembly to encourage the full and prayerful participation of those seeking the mind of Christ for the whole church.

We acknowledge these core characteristics of gatherings of the General Assembly:

• Affirming the Presbyterian distinctives that God is sovereign and God alone is Lord of the conscience;

• Encountering and learning from Presbyterians and many others from across the United States and around the world;

• Gathering again with old friends in the family reunion that is General Assembly;

• Creating and expanding generative relationships with fellow Christians;

• Learning from individuals who are quite different from one another;

• Witnessing with joy and thanksgiving the emergence of new leaders for the church;

• Experiencing an intentional, faithful process for discernment and decision making;
• Experiencing God’s presence through worship, devotions, hallway prayers, and Christ-centered conversations;

• Hoping and yearning together that our mutual witness will point to the reign of God;

• Demonstrating the church is not focused on any one cause or individual;

• Growing in our understanding of Christ and the church;

• Meeting sisters and brothers in Christ who represent a particular perspective and who listen and share with care and respect;

• Making decisions through contemplation, prayer, and heartfelt sharing;

• Continuing a history and heritage together since 1789.

We demonstrate and sustain our core values through these central commitments.

• Reflect the Body and Seek the Mind of Christ
  In all things, the General Assembly reflects the body of Christ and seeks the mind of Christ through worship, prayer, discernment, and action.

• A Broad Context for Christ’s Broad World
  The General Assembly provides a helpful, faithful context for understanding the beauty and diversity of the body of Christ in the world.

• Expansive and Spiritual Deliberation
  The General Assembly embraces an easily understood and accessible process that creates opportunities for questions, prayer, and God’s unexpected movement, rather than hurrying to yes/no votes.

• Order and Flexibility
  The General Assembly deliberates with fairness, attention to process, order, and the encouragement of minority voices, while creating space for decision making grounded in discernment and dialogue and for the emergence of new leadership.

• Reunion and Affirmation
  The General Assembly encourages the best of our Presbyterian tradition and friendships new and old.

• Faithful Stewardship
  The General Assembly demonstrates faithful stewardship of human and financial resources.

8. Advisory Committee on the Constitution Report

a. Report
b. Presented Directly to General Assembly

1. Papers in General

a. The General Assembly shall consider only those papers delivered to the Stated Clerk in compliance with Standing Rule A. Ordinarily, such papers shall have been forwarded to the Stated Clerk postmarked, or electronically delivered, no later than sixty days prior to the convening of the General Assembly.

b. All papers intended for consideration by the General Assembly that are forwarded to the Stated Clerk and postmarked less than sixty days, but no later than forty-five days prior to the convening of the General Assembly, shall be reviewed by the Stated Clerk, who shall determine whether or not to refer them to the Assembly Committee on Business Referral. The Stated Clerk shall report to the committee regarding those papers not referred.

c. It is the responsibility of the Stated Clerk to distribute the business of the assembly, with translations as appropriate, in a manner that allows the church to carefully discern the work of the assembly.
2. Reports of Entities, Commissions, and Committees

   a. All reports from entities, commissions, and committees of the General Assembly shall be delivered to the Stated Clerk on or before 120 days prior to the convening of the General Assembly. The Stated Clerk shall publish these reports (print or electronic) and distribute them so that they shall reach the commissioners thirty days before the convening of the General Assembly.

   b. An entity, commission, or committee submitting a report with a recommendation that affects the work or budget of another entity(ies) shall submit evidence that a consultation has been held with the affected entity(ies).

   c. Committees, agencies, or corporations presenting reports shall provide the appropriate background information necessary to interpret or understand the recommendations or responses to referrals to the members of the General Assembly committees to which the business is referred. Any and all documents or publications referred to in these reports that require approval by the assembly for publication and distribution to the church, including but not limited to curriculum, study papers/guides, position papers, and program resources, shall be made available to commissioners at the time the reports are published.

   d. All reports shall be limited to five thousand words except the report of the Presbyterian Mission Agency, the length of which shall be determined by the Stated Clerk and the Executive Director of the Presbyterian Mission Agency. A request for an exception to the length of a report, up to ten thousand words, shall be submitted to the Stated Clerk no later than forty-five days prior to the deadline for the submission of the report and shall include the anticipated length of the report. The Stated Clerk may assess a fee of the entity or committee whose report exceeds five thousand words for the costs incurred in translating, printing and distributing the excess pages. Payment of the fee shall be submitted to the treasurer of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), A Corporation. If the Stated Clerk and the representatives of any body are unable to agree, the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly shall determine the length of the report.

   e. All reports that bring recommendations shall use the following form:

   The [name of agency, commission, or committee] requests the [# of the assembly] General Assembly [year] of the PC(USA) to [state the specific action or actions the General Assembly is being asked to take].

   To this shall be appended a rationale, stating the reasons for submitting the requests and/or the report of the entity, commission, or committee.

3. Overtures

   a. Overtures are items of business that have been approved by a presbytery (with concurrence of another presbytery) or a synod and shall request the General Assembly to take a particular action, or approve or endorse a particular statement or resolution. (See Book of Order, G-3.0302d.)

   b. Concurrences are items of business that have been approved by a presbytery that recommend an action identical to that in an overture already received for that assembly. The first concurrence received by the Stated Clerk, fulfilling Book of Order, G-3.0302d, must be submitted by the deadlines appropriate for the overture and entitles the submitting presbytery to an overture advocate. Subsequent concurrences must meet the forty-five-day rule for business.

   c. The stated clerk of a presbytery or synod considering an overture to the General Assembly shall:

   (1) Examine the most recently published Minutes of the General Assembly to determine if a similar overture has already been passed.
223RD GENERAL ASSEMBLY (2018) 1269

“Submit for Review

a. Entities and synods required to submit minutes for review by the General Assembly shall submit such minutes on a calendar year basis so as to present minutes of all meetings for the calendar year (from January 1 through December 31) preceding the year in which is held the session of the General Assembly to which such minutes are submitted. The minutes shall contain

4. Entity and Synod Minutes

the attestation that they have been approved by the entity or synod submitting them in the manner regularly in use within that body.

Review Process

b. The assembly committee to which it is assigned is authorized to approve minutes of the agencies and entities without referral to plenary unless discrepancies occur that call for reporting to the assembly. Minutes of General Assembly agencies will be reviewed in accordance with the “Guidelines for Preparation of Minutes of Agencies” as printed in the Manual of the General Assembly. Minutes of the synods will be reviewed in accordance with “Guidelines for Reviewing Synod Records” as printed in the Manual of the General Assembly.

5. Presbytery Reports

Each presbytery shall act upon all papers sent to the presbytery to be voted upon in ample time to permit the stated clerk of the presbytery to transmit the results to the Stated Clerk so that they are received no later than one year following the adjournment of the assembly responsible for the proposed amendments.

6. Commissioners’ Resolutions

Who May Propose

a. An item of new business, in the form of a commissioners’ resolution, must be signed by commissioners representing at least one other presbytery. Such resolutions must be delivered in writing to the Stated Clerk or the Stated Clerk’s designee. No commissioner may sign more than two such resolutions.

Deadline

b. The Stated Clerk shall determine and announce at the first meeting at which business is conducted the deadline for receipt of commissioners’ resolutions. The deadline shall not be earlier than twenty-four hours after the assembly has convened.

Existing GA Policies

c. In the preparation of a resolution, commissioners are urged to be aware of existing General Assembly policies relevant to their proposal and, where appropriate, to make reference to these policies.

May Not Amend Book of Order

d. Commissioners’ resolutions shall not contain business that requires an amendment to or interpretation of the Constitution (see Book of Order, G-6.04a).

Already Before Assembly

e. The Stated Clerk shall not transmit as new business any resolution that deals with matters of business already before the General Assembly, nor transmit any resolution whose purpose can be achieved by the regular process of amendment and debate.

Same Issues as Previous Assembly

f. Should the commissioners’ resolution deal with substantially the same issue considered by one of the two previous sessions of the General Assembly, the Stated Clerk shall recommend that the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures take one of the following actions on the commissioners’ resolution: “refer to a subsequent assembly,” “decline for consideration,” or “take no action.”

Referral

g. If the proposed resolution does deal with new business, the Stated Clerk shall transmit it to the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures with a recommendation for its referral.

Referral Declined

h. The Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures may decline to refer proposed items of new business if it decides that the matters proposed are already before the assembly or that the purpose of the proposals can be reached by the process of amendment and debate. Proposed items of business not referred, whether declined by the Stated Clerk or the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures, shall be identified in the first report of the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures distributed to commissioners after the period docketed for committee meetings, with a brief description of the content and a statement of the reasons for declining the proposed business. Twenty-five percent of commissioners present and voting is required to overturn action of the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures to decline, take no action, or refer a commissioners’ resolution to a subsequent assembly. Should the assembly overturn a Bills and Overtures decision not to refer an item of business, the assembly committee who would ordinarily receive this item will be reconvened for the purpose of considering the business. If a commissioners’ resolution affects a substantial change in an existing social witness policy, the Stated Clerk should recommend to the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures that it be referred to the next General Assembly.
7. Communications and Resource Material

   a. Communications and resource material provide comment or advice on business already under consideration by the assembly and shall neither contain nor constitute business to be considered by the assembly. Communications may be directed to the General Assembly

   (1) by entities of the General Assembly that desire to comment on a single item of business coming before the General Assembly from any source other than their own entity, but which do not introduce new business,

   (2) by organizations in which the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) holds membership, and

   (3) by other denominations in correspondence with the General Assembly.

   b. All communications intended for consideration by the General Assembly shall be forwarded to the Stated Clerk, postmarked no later than forty-five days before the convening of the General Assembly.

   c. Resource material (except for previously published books), including advice and counsel memoranda from advocacy and advisory committees, shall be prepared as necessary by entities of the General Assembly and shall not exceed 1,000 words on each item of business referred. This material shall be submitted to the Stated Clerk, postmarked no later than forty-five days before the convening of the assembly meeting, who shall then publish (print or electronic) and distribute the material to all commissioners prior to the assembly.

   d. Advice and counsel memoranda are resources prepared by the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy, Racial Equity Advocacy Committee (REAC), and the Advocacy Committee for Women’s Concerns for the purpose of providing information about existing policy, current work on specific topics, recent developments, and other factors useful to commissioners as they consider issues before the assembly.

8. Advisory Committee on the Constitution Report

   a. The Advisory Committee on the Constitution shall report to the General Assembly its findings along with its recommendations on all questions requiring an interpretation by the General Assembly of the Book of Order, including proposals for constitutional change. The General Assembly shall vote on the recommendations, and may amend or decline to approve them (Book of Order, G-6.02). The Advisory Committee on the Constitution shall report any editorial changes made to the Book of Order since its last report to the General Assembly.

   b. The report of the committee shall be presented directly to the General Assembly. The General Assembly may take action on the recommendations immediately, or it may refer them to an assembly committee for consideration by that committee and report to the General Assembly for action later during the same session of the General Assembly.

6. List of Participants

1. Commissioners
   a. Each presbytery shall elect commissioners to the General Assembly in accordance with Book of Order, G-3.0501. The number of commissioners attending General Assembly will be based on the number of active members, including resident clergy members of presbytery. The figures for active members will be taken from the information recorded in Minutes of the General Assembly, Part II, Statistics of the year in which per capita apportionment is assessed for the year in which General Assembly meets.

   b. Presbyteries shall elect commissioners in sufficient time to permit the list of commissioners to be delivered to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly 180 days prior to the convening of the session of the General Assembly to which they are commissioned.

   c. Ministers of the Word and Sacrament and ruling elders considered for election as commissioners must be able to be in attendance for the duration of the General Assembly.

   d. Commissioners shall be entitled to speak under the rules, and to vote and present motions in meetings of the General Assembly and of assembly committees to which they are assigned. Commissioners shall be reimbursed for approved expenses.

   e. In the case of a newly created presbytery, the presbytery shall be entitled to elect commissioners to the General Assembly if the qualifying enrollment of ministers of the Word and Sacrament and congregations in that presbytery shall have been completed by December 31 of the year preceding the assembly meeting (see Book of Order, G-3.0501).
Alternates

f. Presbyteries may elect alternates in number up to, but not exceeding, the number of commissioners to which the presbytery may be entitled. Such alternates shall be seated with other visitors to the assembly.

2. Advisory Delegates

Definition

a. Advisory delegates are persons who are active members in one of the constituent churches or councils of the General Assembly (or, in the case of ecumenical advisory delegates, of a denomination of Christians designated by the General Assembly) who are selected to attend the meeting of the General Assembly in an advisory role so that the assembly may be assured of hearing and taking cognizance of their special viewpoints.

Categories

b. There shall be four categories of advisory delegates: young adult, theological student; missionary, and ecumenical. When the ratio of advisory delegates to commissioners exceeds one to three, the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly shall be authorized to make changes to the Standing Rules to create a ratio of less than one to three. The expenses of each advisory delegate shall be paid by the General Assembly (see Standing Rule I.3.) on the same basis as the expenses of commissioners (see Standing Rule B.2.f.(2) below for exception).

Voting Privileges

c. Advisory delegates shall be assigned to assembly committees as voting members and shall have the privilege of the floor of the General Assembly without vote. Only voting members shall have the privilege of proposing or seconding a motion. When certain issues come before a plenary session of the General Assembly, the advisory delegates may be polled prior to the vote of commissioners to determine their advice.

Young Adult Advisory Delegates

d. Young Adult Advisory Delegates

(1) Each presbytery shall appoint an active member of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), who shall be between the ages of seventeen and twenty-three years on the date the General Assembly convenes, to be a young adult advisory delegate.

(2) Presbyteries shall elect young adult advisory delegates in sufficient time to permit the list of advisory delegates to be delivered to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly 180 days prior to the convening of the session of the General Assembly to which they are elected.

Theological Student Advisory Delegate

e. Theological Student Advisory Delegates

There shall be a delegation of theological student advisory delegates each year: two from each of the theological institutions of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.); one from each of the theological institutions in a covenant relationship with the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.); and one each from three selected other theological seminaries. The selection process for these delegates is as follows:

(1) Each theological institution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) shall nominate three students who, at the time of the General Assembly, will have at least one year of study remaining in their degree program. Two of these students shall be designated by the institution as delegates and the other student shall be designated as the alternate. Such a student must be either an inquirer or a candidate in preparation for ministry under care of a presbytery, or a student nominated by the Presbyterian School of Christian Education. These nominations shall be forwarded to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly 180 days prior to the convening of the session of the General Assembly to which they are elected, who shall transmit the names of the two students to be delegates to the presbytery of jurisdiction for election. The presbyteries shall then certify the election to the Stated Clerk when completed.

(2) Each theological institution in covenant relationship with the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) shall nominate two students who, at the time of the General Assembly, will have at least one year of study remaining in their degree program. One of these students shall be designated by the institution as the delegate and the other student as the alternate. Such a student must be either an inquirer or a candidate in preparation for ministry under care of a presbytery. These nominations shall be forwarded to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly 180 days prior to the convening of the session of the General Assembly to which they are elected, who shall transmit the name of the delegate to the presbytery of jurisdiction for election. The presbyteries shall then certify the election to the Stated Clerk when completed.

(3) All non-Presbyterian theological schools represented by corresponding members on the Committee on Theological Education and one additional non-Presbyterian theological seminary shall be asked to nominate one theological student advisory delegate and one alternate. The additional non-Presbyterian seminary shall be chosen on a rotating basis, descending alphabetically, from those that have at least twelve Presbyterian enrollees (either inquirers or candidates under the care of a presbytery) as of October 1 in the year preceding the assembly. These nominations shall be forwarded to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly 180 days prior to the convening of the session of the General Assembly to which they are elected, who shall transmit the name of the delegate to the presbytery of jurisdiction for election. The presbyteries shall then certify the election to the Stated Clerk when completed.

(4) Nominated students shall have at least one more year of study following the assembly remaining in their degree program. The Stated Clerk shall forward the name of the nominated students to the presbyteries of jurisdiction for election and confirmation.

f. Missionary Advisory Delegates

(1) There shall be eight missionary advisory delegates who shall be chosen by the Worldwide Ministries Division from persons who are members of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and mission personnel assigned by the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) in another country in which this church is engaged in mission. To the degree possible, the selection shall provide a global geographical representation with no two delegates representing the same country or geographical area and rotating the geographical representation. The Worldwide Ministries Division shall notify the Stated Clerk at the time these persons are named.

(2) The expenses to the General Assembly of each missionary advisory delegate shall include transportation only from the point of entry or domicile of the delegate in the United States and return.

g. Ecumenical Advisory Delegates

There shall be up to fifteen ecumenical advisory delegates. Ten of these delegates shall be from churches outside of the United States. No more than five shall be from member churches of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches. Ecumenical advisory delegates shall be selected by the highest ecclesiastical authorities of their churches, in response to the invitation of a previous General Assembly. The assembly shall extend such invitations at the recommendation of the Presbyterian Mission Agency upon nomination by the General Assembly Committee on Ecumenical and Interreligious Relations.

3. Corresponding Members

a. The following persons shall be corresponding members: Moderators of earlier General Assemblies; the Stated Clerk, Associate and Assistant Stated Clerks, and other members of the staff of the Office of the General Assembly as designated by the Stated Clerk; the members of the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly; the members of the PMA Executive Committee and staff of the Presbyterian Mission Agency, and of the divisions and related entities designated by the council; all members of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution; the executives of synods; one person designated by each entity reporting directly to the General Assembly, including permanent, special, and advisory committees (additional persons may be designated by such bodies if authorized by the Moderator of the preceding General Assembly in consultation with the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly); the moderator of Presbyterian Women in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Inc. or her designee; and the presidents (or their designees) of the theological institutions of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), and seminaries related by covenant agreement.

b. Corresponding members shall be entitled to speak, under the rules, in meetings of the General Assembly and of assembly committees on matters related to the work of the body represented, but they may neither vote nor present motions.
4. Advisory Committee on the Constitution

During the General Assembly, three or more members of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution [this committee] shall be present at the session of the General Assembly to advise the General Assembly and its Moderator on constitutional matters.

5. Other Participants

- Special Guests

  a. The assembly, out of honor, courtesy, recognition, and the need for information and resource material, may recognize other persons as guests or observers. As such, they may be invited by the General Assembly to speak to the assembly for the purpose of conveying greetings or messages, or bringing enlightenment or information germane to the decision-making process. An assembly committee may extend a similar invitation at its own meeting.

- Assembly Committee Moderators

  b. When the moderator of an assembly committee is not a commissioner to the current assembly (Standing Rules C.1.c), they shall have voice in committee and voice in plenary on business from their committee.

- Ecumenical Representatives

  c. Ecumenical representatives are individuals sent at the initiative of another church to be the official representative of that church. The Stated Clerk may announce to member churches of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches the date and place of the next meeting of the General Assembly. When officially certified through appropriate ecclesiastical channels at least forty-five days prior to the convening of the General Assembly, these persons shall be welcomed as guests of the General Assembly and introduced to the council through the report of the assembly committee addressing ecumenism. The assembly may assume the expense and housing of such guests on the same basis as the expense of commissioners, but shall not reimburse any travel expenses to the assembly site.

- Resource Persons

  d. The assembly may welcome persons invited by the Presbyterian Mission Agency or another entity of the General Assembly for the purpose of establishing or affirming particular ecumenical, mission, or program relationships, or assisting the entity in the presentation of particular items of business. Any expense reimbursement shall be the responsibility of the inviting entity.

- Presbytery Staff

  e. The presbytery’s executive staff person (or designee) and the presbytery’s stated clerk shall be supplied with all reports and materials related to the General Assembly, but shall not be entitled to speak in plenary meetings or in meetings of assembly committees unless called upon by a moderator to provide information.

- Ecumenical Visitors

  f. Ecumenical visitors are individuals attending a session of the General Assembly at their own initiative. These persons are welcomed to the assembly as unofficial visitors. The assembly shall assume no expenses for these ecumenical visitors.

- Interfaith Representatives

  g. Interfaith Representatives—Three observers of other faiths or religious traditions, who shall be representatives chosen by recognized religious bodies of non-Christian religious traditions and/or faith communities shall be present at the assembly at the invitation of the General Assembly Committee on Ecumenical and Interreligious Relations. The interfaith representatives shall be present with the church in its deliberations, and to speak to the assembly for the purpose of conveying greetings or messages, or bringing information germane to the decision-making process. The assembly may assume the expense of housing and on the same basis as the expense of commissioners, but shall not reimburse any travel expenses to the assembly site.

6. List of Participants

Upon request, the Stated Clerk shall make available the list of participants registered for a session of the General Assembly to entities of the General Assembly, councils of the denomination, educational institutions, ministers of the Word and Sacrament, ruling elders, and independent organizations composed primarily of members of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). A fee will be charged for lists or mailing labels to cover the costs incurred for printing, postage, and handling.
Formation of Committees and Referral of Business

1. Assembly Committee Structure
   a. Number and Designation of Assembly Committees
   b. Committee Assistants
   c. Assembly Committee Moderator and Vice Moderator
   d. Assembly Committee on Business Referral
   e. Orientation

2. Assigning Commissioners to Assembly Committees
   a. Committee Assignments
   b. Notification of Assignment
   c. Assignment List Provided
   d. Random Selection Process

3. Referring Business
   a. Recommendation for Referral of Business
   b. General Assembly Action on Referrals
   c. How Business Is Referred
   d. Referral Considered by One Committee
   e. Referring Overtures to Committees

4. Tentative Docket

1. Assembly Committee Structure
   a. The Stated Clerk shall propose the number and designation of assembly committees to the General Assembly, which shall include a Committee on Mid Councils. The Stated Clerk shall present the proposed committee structure to the General Assembly for consideration and ratification at the first assembly meeting at which business is transacted. In making these proposals, the Stated Clerk shall consult with the appropriate General Assembly entity or entities, and may consult with other persons.

   b. The Stated Clerk shall propose to the General Assembly for appointment the names of persons to serve as committee assistants for the duration of the General Assembly. The Stated Clerk shall consult with the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly before recommending persons to serve as committee assistants. Persons proposed shall not be commissioners to the General Assembly or staff members of entities of the General Assembly or any person who is a member of the Presbyterian Mission Agency or any person who is a member of any other entity of the General Assembly. A committee assistant shall be appointed to provide staff services to each assembly committee. The appointments shall be made in accordance with Book of Order, F-1.0401.

   c. The Moderator of the General Assembly shall appoint a moderator and a vice moderator to each committee. The moderator positions are filled by commissioners to the upcoming General Assembly or may be from an assembly within the last six years. All vice moderator positions shall be filled by commissioners to the upcoming General Assembly. Final appointment shall be made only after consultation with the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, and then also with representatives of the General Assembly Committee on Representation regarding the inclusivity mandated in the Book of Order, F-1.0403 and G-3.0103. The moderators of at least one-half of the assembly committees, including any committees dealing with finance and budgets, shall be ruling elders. The moderators of at least one-half of the assembly committees should be women. The moderators of at least two-thirds of the assembly committees shall be current commissioners. No more than one person from any one presbytery may be appointed to serve as a moderator. All synods shall be equitably represented.
Assembly Committee on Business Referral

d. The moderators and vice moderators of the assembly committees, as a group, shall function as the Assembly Committee on Business Referral. The moderator and vice moderator of the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures shall function as the moderator and vice moderator of this committee as well. This committee shall report to the assembly for its action at the first meeting of the General Assembly for the transaction of business.

Orientation

e. The Stated Clerk shall conduct an orientation for moderators, vice moderators, and committee assistants of assembly committees no less than three weeks prior to the convening of the General Assembly. The orientation shall include information regarding business likely to be referred to each committee; suggested procedures for dealing with business referred to committees, especially the use of Robert’s Rules of Order, Newly Revised; utilization of available resources, both persons and materials; and preparation and presentation of assembly committee reports. The Stated Clerk, following consultation with the Presbyterian Mission Agency, may invite persons designated by the council as General Assembly resource coordinators to participate in the orientation. During this orientation, the Assembly Committee on Business Referral shall meet and carry out the duties given it by these rules. The Assembly Committee on Business Referral shall also meet, if necessary, just prior to the convening of the assembly and its function shall end at the convening of the assembly.

2. Assigning Commissioners to Assembly Committees

Committee Assignments

a. Forty-five days before the convening of the General Assembly, the Stated Clerk shall assign each commissioner and advisory delegate to one of the assembly committees by the random selection process described in this standing rule.

Notification of Assignment

b. No later than thirty days before the convening of the assembly, commissioners shall receive the number and designation of committees. At the same time that the number and designation of committees is communicated, the Stated Clerk shall notify each person of the assignment, the time of their first meeting, and the necessity to confirm appropriate housing and travel arrangements.

Assignment List Provided

c. The Stated Clerk shall provide a list of the assignments to those who need it to facilitate the work of the General Assembly.

Random Selection Process

d. Commissioners and advisory delegates shall be assigned to assembly committees by random selection as follows:

(1) The Stated Clerk shall divide the presbyteries into six regional districts. Each district shall be composed of one or more presbyteries so arranged that, insofar as possible, the presbyteries in the district have contiguous boundaries and the numbers of commissioners in the several districts are approximately equal. Within each district the presbyteries shall be arranged alphabetically. The commissioners from each presbytery shall be listed alphabetically in two parallel lists: the first containing the names of the ministers of the Word and Sacrament; the second, the ruling elders. In those cases where the presbytery has not designated commissioners, the position shall be listed as vacant so that the name may be inserted later when the Stated Clerk is notified. The names of moderators and vice moderators of assembly committees shall be removed from the list and the names below them shall be moved up to fill the vacated positions. The ministers of the Word and Sacrament commissioners and vacant positions for minister of the Word and Sacrament commissioners shall be numbered in sequence. The list of ruling elder commissioners in each district shall be rotated downward so that no ruling elder commissioner is opposite a minister of the Word and Sacrament commissioner from the same presbytery. Separate lists of groups identified in Book of Order, F-1.0403, shall be prepared, insofar as it may be practical, to assure the most equitable distribution of such commissioners to the various committees in accordance with Book of Order, F-1.0403.

(2) The Stated Clerk shall list the young adult advisory delegates in one list arranged in the alphabetical order of the presbyteries that designated the delegates. In any case where the presbytery has not designated a young adult advisory delegate, the position shall be listed as vacant so that the name may be inserted later when the Stated Clerk is notified.
(3) The Moderator shall pick by lot a number from one to ten. This number shall identify the number of the name in the first column of names in each district in which the assignment will begin. It will also identify the number of the young adult advisory delegates in which assignment will begin.

(4) The Moderator shall then pick by lot a second number equal from one to the number equaling the total number of committees. This number shall identify the assembly committee in the order in which the committees are arranged in the standing rules to which the first assignment of members shall be made.

(5) The assignment of members of the assembly committees shall then proceed in sequence. When initial assignments have been made to all committees in sequence so that the committees with the fewest number of commissioners are full, additional assignment shall be made to the other committees in the same manner, until all commissioners and young adult advisory delegates have been assigned to committees.

(6) The Stated Clerk shall assign missionary advisory delegates and ecumenical advisory delegates to assembly committees in consultation with those delegates. Ordinarily not more than two persons in each of these categories shall be assigned to any one assembly committee.

(7) Theological student advisory delegates will be assigned to committees at the same time and in the same way as are commissioners to ensure their full participation and attendance.

(8) Names of commissioners and advisory delegates received after these assignments have been made shall be inserted in the appropriate position in the original list and assigned to the committee to which that position was assigned.

3. Referring Business

Recommendation for Referral of Business

a. The Stated Clerk shall submit to the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly a recommendation for the referral of all items of business coming before the General Assembly.

General Assembly Action on Referrals

b. After making any necessary changes, this committee shall present the prepared referrals to the Assembly Committee on Business Referral so that it may recommend referrals to the first meeting of the General Assembly for the transaction of business. Ordinarily, this committee shall recommend referrals to the General Assembly for its action. When the General Assembly is not scheduled to meet in time to act on its recommendation, the committee may refer business. Such referrals shall be reported to the General Assembly at its next business meeting.

How Business Is Referred

c. Items of business to be considered by the General Assembly shall be referred in one of the following ways:

(1) for consideration by an assembly committee and recommendation for action by the General Assembly;
(2) for consideration and action by an assembly committee with a report of the action to the General Assembly;
(3) for consideration by the General Assembly through its inclusion in a consent agenda when the committee has approved a motion by 75 percent or more;
(4) for consideration by the General Assembly in a plenary business session.

d. Each item of business referred to a committee shall ordinarily be considered by only one assembly committee, but in no case should there be more than one committee making a recommendation on an item of business. Business of a related nature shall be assigned to a single committee insofar as possible.
e. The Stated Clerk shall present such items of business to the Assembly Committee on Business Referral, along with a recommendation for their referral. In the event that the presbytery or synod disagrees with the referral recommendation, this procedure shall be followed: The presbytery or synod shall be entitled to submit a written statement regarding the background and intent of the overture at the time the overture is initially being considered for referral by the Assembly Committee on Business Referral. If, after that committee makes its recommendation, the presbytery or synod still disagrees with the referral recommendation, the presbytery or synod shall notify the Stated Clerk, in writing, of its disagreement. The overture advocate will then be entitled to speak to the background and intent of the overture at a special meeting of the Assembly Committee on Business Referral that shall be held no more than twenty-four (24) hours prior to the convening of the assembly.

4. Tentative Docket

a. The Stated Clerk shall submit to the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly a tentative docket. After making any necessary adjustments, this committee shall present a proposed docket to the Assembly Committee on Business Referral so that it may recommend the docket to the first meeting of the General Assembly for the transaction of business.

b. The reports and recommendations of the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly regarding the initial docket of the General Assembly and referrals of business shall be referred to the Assembly Committee on Business Referral, along with any items of business not included in them (see Standing Rules I.4.b.(3) and I.4.b.(4)). Review of the minutes of the synods pursuant to G-3.0502c and of statement(s) of compliance with decisions of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission by councils, reported by the Stated Clerk pursuant to IV.B.2.d. of the Organization for Mission, shall be assigned to the same assembly committee. Following the convening of the assembly, such matters shall be directed to the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures.
Beginning of the General Assembly Meeting

1. Registration and Seating

- a. Registration of Commissioners and Delegates
- b. Commissioners with Disabilities
- c. Assigned Seats
- d. Alternates
- e. Ecumenical Representatives
- f. Presbytery Staff Seating
- g. Access to Commissioner and Advisory Delegate Seating

2. Quorum

3. Committee Moderators and Overture Advocates Meeting

Registration of Commissioners and Delegates

a. The Stated Clerk shall enroll commissioners and delegates on the opening day of the General Assembly and at such other times as may be necessary. The Stated Clerk shall determine any question that may arise regarding registration of commissioners and delegates. Any complaints regarding such decision shall be received by the Assembly Committee on General Assembly Procedures.

Commissioners with Disabilities

b. A commissioner certified by his or her presbytery as having a disability warranting assistance shall be entitled to designate a person to function as an assistant without vote during all proceedings of the General Assembly, including executive sessions and committee meetings, in order that the commissioner may fully participate in those proceedings. The expenses of the assistant shall be paid for by the General Assembly on the same basis as expenses of commissioners. The Stated Clerk shall also enroll assistants to commissioners who have been certified by his or her presbytery as having a disability warranting assistance.

Assigned Seats

c. The Stated Clerk shall assign each commissioner, advisory delegate, and corresponding member to a seat in advance of the meeting. They shall occupy the assigned seats during each meeting of the General Assembly at which business may be transacted. An assistant to commissioner who has been certified by his or her presbytery as having a disability warranting assistance shall be assigned a seat adjacent to the commissioner.

Alternates

d. When a principal commissioner is replaced by an alternate prior to or during the course of an assembly session, whether for the remainder of the session or for a period of time during the session, the alternate shall assume that assembly committee position and seat assignment.

Ecumenical Representatives

e. Ecumenical representatives shall be seated on the floor of the assembly in a section clearly designated for such guests.

Presbytery Staff Seating

f. The presbytery’s executive staff person (or designee) and the presbytery’s stated clerk shall be provided assigned seating in proximity to the area that corresponding members are seated.
g. The only persons who shall be permitted access to the commissioner and advisory delegate seating area during plenary sessions are commissioners, advisory delegates, assistants enrolled by the Stated Clerk to assist commissioners having a disability warranting assistance, the Stated Clerk, Associate and Assistant Stated Clerks, and other staff and assembly assistants who are assigned responsibilities that require access to this area, including assisting at the floor microphones, delivery of official messages to commissioner and advisory delegates, and locating commissioners who are needed on the platform. The Stated Clerk will provide special credentials for the particular staff and assembly assistants who are authorized to enter the commissioner/advisory delegate seating area. Registered presbytery staff may have access to the seating area to contact their commissioners and advisory delegates during breaks in business.

2. Quorum

At the first meeting of the General Assembly for the transaction of business, the Stated Clerk shall recommend to the General Assembly that the roll call of commissioners be established by registration. Alternately, the Stated Clerk may call the roll of commissioners and advisory delegates by calling the names of absentees as they appear on the roll. After any needed corrections have been made, the Stated Clerk shall announce whether or not a quorum is present (see Book of Order, G-3.0503). When commissioners and advisory delegates subsequently register, they shall be seated by the General Assembly. A commissioner who has not registered may not be seated and may not vote.

3. Committee Moderators and Overture Advocates Meeting

The Office of the General Assembly shall, on the first business day of the assembly, before committees meet to consider business, organize a forum where assembly committee moderators shall meet with overture advocates to discuss procedures for participation in committee discussion of business related to the overture that they are advocating.

1. Committee Leadership and Support

Moderator and Vice Moderator

a. The moderator presides over the committee’s deliberations. The moderator may request the vice moderator or others to preside and to assist in the work of the committee.

b. Each committee shall have available to assist in its work a recorder appointed by the Stated Clerk. The recorder shall be appointed from a pool of individuals who will already be attending the General Assembly, including staff members, local volunteers, and others. The recorder shall keep an accurate record of the actions of the committee with the votes on each indicating the number of committee members voting in the affirmative, or negative, or those abstaining; and shall assist in drafting the committee report.

c. Each committee shall have available to assist in its work a committee assistant. The committee assistant may address the committee offering suggestions regarding procedure, but shall not participate in its deliberations on any issue before the committee as an advocate of one position or view regarding its action. The committee assistant shall assist the committee in securing desired resources.
2. Procedures for Assembly Committee Meetings

a. Meetings of assembly committees shall be open to the public (as space permits) provided, however, that the committee may go into executive session at any time in accordance with the Open Meeting Policy printed in the Manual of the General Assembly. Ordinarily, the committee assistant will be expected to remain with the committee in executive session.

b. Each meeting of the committee shall include a time of worship and opportunity for prayer.

c. Committee meetings shall be conducted in accordance with Robert’s Rules of Order, Newly Revised except when in contradiction to the Constitution of the PC(USA). Prior to a vote, methods of deliberation shall be consistent with the principles of Presbyterian government. (F-3.02 and G-3.0305)

d. Use and Preparation of Resource Material:
   (1) Each committee determines the use to be made of the resource material or resource persons available to assembly committees. Each assembly committee determines whether or not to permit the distribution of particular materials to the committee members.
   (2) Resource material (except for previously published books or interpretive brochures), including advice and counsel memoranda, that provides background or advice on items of new business, including commissioners’ resolutions, shall be prepared as necessary by entities of the General Assembly and shall be as succinct as possible. This material shall be submitted to the assembly committee leadership team prior to presentation to the assembly committee to which the business has been referred. The Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures, with a commitment to equitable presentation of different perspectives, shall distribute this resource material to the full assembly.

   Resource material provided for the committee by the appropriate General Assembly entity shall include well-written presentations from the variety of different perspectives on any issue under consideration. These presentations on other perspectives should come from the most articulate and informed proponents of that particular point of view. A report including a summary of the actions taken on this issue by our ecumenical partners and previous General Assemblies shall also be prepared by an appropriate General Assembly entity.

e. When business has been referred by a previous assembly to a special task force, committee, or commission created for that purpose, the assembly committee receiving that report shall set aside no less than ½ hour (30 minutes) to hear a presentation by the special task force (or committee or commission) giving background on their report. Each committee shall determine if additional time is required for presentation.

f. During the deliberations of the committee, in contrast to public hearings, only the following persons, having been recognized by the moderator, may speak:

   (1) Members of the committee;
   (2) Committee assistant;
   (3) Persons with special expertise, including elected members or staff members of General Assembly entities; when such experts advocating a particular point of view have spoken to the committee, the committee moderator shall offer to the committee the opportunity to hear from experts advocating a different point of view;
   (4) Members of special committees, task forces, commissions created by previous assemblies (see E.2.d and K.1.f), overture advocates, and signers of commissioners’ resolutions;
   (5) Persons invited by the committee through a majority vote of the committee; and
   (6) Representatives of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution, who may speak to overtures, commissioners’ resolutions, or other business on which the Advisory Committee on the Constitution has presented advice or recommendations, or matters that propose amendments to the Constitution, or that affect compatibility with other provisions of the Constitution.
(7) In the event that business being considered by an assembly committee has been referred to the Advisory Committee on the Constitution for advice, representatives of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution shall be entitled to speak.

(8) The committee moderator provides that the total time allotted to persons, other than members of the committee, who speak for or against a recommendation be equal so far as possible except as outlined in E.2.e.

g. Overture advocates and one signer of each commissioners’ resolution shall be responsible for being available at the time selected by any assembly committee considering the matter. The overture advocate or one of the signers of a commissioners’ resolution shall be entitled to speak, as an individual (or in cooperation with other overture advocates in a pre-arranged presentation), to the background and intent of the overture or resolution immediately after the motion is made and seconded, placing the overture or resolution on the floor of the committee or subcommittee.

h. Overture advocates who have been designated by their presbytery or synod to speak to the response from a General Assembly entity to a referral of an overture shall be responsible for being available at the time selected by the assembly committee considering the response. The overture advocate shall be entitled to speak to the background and intent of the overture or as asked for clarification by the committee concerning the original intent of the overture.

i. A representative of any agency affected by an overture or commissioners’ resolution, either with respect to the use of its financial resources or its mission priorities, shall be entitled to speak to the item of business immediately after the presenter of the overture or the commissioners’ resolution, and shall be allocated reasonable time to speak.

j. The financial effect of each recommendation on any agency or entity of the denomination that would be affected by the action shall be clearly presented at the time that an overture or commissioners’ resolution is considered by the committee.

3. New Business

a. Each assembly committee shall consider only matters referred to it by the General Assembly. No assembly committee may initiate new business except as it relates to the business of the particular assembly committee.

b. New business initiated in an assembly committee proposing an amendment to the Constitution or requiring an interpretation of the Constitution by the General Assembly (Book of Order, G-6.04b and G-6.02) shall be referred to the Advisory Committee on the Constitution, which shall report its findings and recommendations to the General Assembly. constitutional matters shall be communicated in writing to the Advisory Committee on the Constitution and the Stated Clerk. The Advisory Committee on the Constitution shall consider each matter so referred and report its findings and recommendations, which may include proposals for constitutional change, to the assembly committee and the Stated Clerk. The assembly committee shall vote on the recommendations and may amend or decline to approve them. The advice of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution on these matters shall be transmitted to the General Assembly with the report of the assembly committee.

d. Recommendations and reports to the assembly regarding such new business must be approved in assembly committees by three-fourths of the committee members voting on the matter.

e. New business, other than that described in this standing rule, must be presented in accordance with Standing Rule A.8.
Referral to Advisory Committee on the Constitution

f. New business initiated in an assembly committee proposing an amendment to the Constitution (Book of Order, G-6.04) or requiring an interpretation of the Constitution by the General Assembly (Book of Order, G-6.02) shall be referred to the Advisory Committee on the Constitution, which shall report its findings and recommendations to the General Assembly. Any other new business initiated in an assembly committee that touches upon constitutional matters shall be communicated in writing to the Advisory Committee on the Constitution and the Stated Clerk. The Advisory Committee on the Constitution shall consider each matter referred and report its findings and recommendations (which may include proposals for constitutional change) to the assembly committee and the Stated Clerk. The advice of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution on these matters shall be transmitted to the General Assembly with the report of the assembly committee.

4. Organizational Meeting

a. Ordinarily, the initial meeting of each assembly committee is an organizational meeting in private session for up to one hour for the purpose of developing intragroup dynamics and determining procedural matters, such as approval of the committee’s agenda and consideration of the style in which the committee plans to operate.

b. During this executive session, business items before the committee shall not be discussed or acted upon.

5. Public Hearings

Schedule

a. Each committee, with the exception of the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures, shall schedule at its convenience one or more public hearings on matters before it, including on any commissioners’ resolutions submitted to it. Public hearings are the opportunity for the committee to hear from those who do not have other avenues for addressing the committee—including those who are not Presbyterian. For this reason, those who are given privilege to speak to the committee in E.2.f.(1–7) are not entitled to address the committee during public hearings.

Time Limits for Presentations

b. The committee may limit the time for the presentation by any person during a public hearing, including an elected member or staff member of an entity of the General Assembly. If the time allotted for the public hearing is not sufficient to accommodate all the persons wishing to speak, a method shall be approved by the assembly committee that ensures that an equal number of persons on each side of an issue have an opportunity to speak. Any person denied the right to speak at the hearing may appeal to the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures on the basis that the method employed in selecting speakers was not fair.

Hearing Form

c. Any person who wishes to be heard in a public hearing shall sign up on a hearing form, posted in a public place in the building in which the assembly is being held, no later than the close of business on the second day of the General Assembly or noon of the day after the subsequent referral of business to the committee by the General Assembly. The location of hearing forms shall be announced during the first session of the assembly. In the event that an issue is expected to be controversial, those wishing to speak shall be asked to indicate whether they wish to speak for or against the recommendation.

6. Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures

a. This committee shall neither retain any items of business for its own consideration, nor suppress any matter that comes before it. However, business that substantially duplicates matters already before the assembly may be declined by this committee and reported to the assembly with a statement of the committee’s action.

b. This committee shall keep itself informed of the subjects being considered by the other assembly committees, and, when any subject is taken up by more than one committee, this committee shall advise the moderators of those committees regarding ways to avoid redundant or inconsistent recommendations.
c. This committee shall determine whether or not particular materials may be distributed to the commissioners and delegates to the General Assembly, and specify the time and manner of distribution of any authorized by it. Particular materials distributed in assembly committees shall not be distributed to the full assembly without the approval of the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures, including the time and manner of distribution.

d. The committee shall review requests from entities of the General Assembly, councils, other entities related to the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) in any way, or coalitions in which this denomination or any of its entities participate, to schedule meetings, briefings, hearings, or other events of any kind during those hours when the General Assembly or its committees are in session.

7. Reports of Assembly Committees

a. The moderator, vice moderator, committee assistant, and recorder, together with such other persons as the moderator may designate, shall draft the report of the committee following the sample form provided by the Stated Clerk.

b. The reports of assembly committees shall contain only (1) the recommendations to be submitted to the General Assembly, and, where necessary, a brief statement of the committee’s reasons for such recommendations, and (2) the actions taken by the committee on items referred to the committee for action. Material necessary to identify the item of business and brief explanations may be included in the report. Extensive background information and detail contained in other documents in the hands of the commissioners shall not be included.

c. Each assembly committee shall include with each recommendation or action in its report statements advising the General Assembly whether or not the recommendation or action has fiscal implications affecting any budget under consideration by the assembly.

d. Recommendation for assembly action, or action taken by the committee, shall identify the entity that is directed to carry out and report back to the General Assembly regarding the matter dealt with by the recommendation or action.

e. When the entity to which an assembly action is directed is a part of the Presbyterian Mission Agency, such as a division or related entity, the Stated Clerk shall automatically amend the language so that the action is directed to the Presbyterian Mission Agency. The Presbyterian Mission Agency shall determine which entity shall carry out the responsibility and report to the assembly on the matter.

f. The votes recorded in the assembly committee on each recommendation or action shall be included in the report for the information of the commissioners, but shall be omitted from the Journal of the General Assembly.

g. If the report of an assembly committee proposes or records an action affecting the interests of an entity of the General Assembly or of a council other than the General Assembly, it shall be the responsibility of that assembly committee to confer with the representative(s) designated by the entity or council concerned before proposing such action to the General Assembly or taking such an action.

h. Minority Report

(1) A minority of the members of an assembly committee, or an individual member of an assembly committee, may submit in writing views that differ from those in the committee report. If the moderator of the committee shall affirm in writing that the positions expressed as recommendations for action by the assembly in a written minority report were presented to the whole committee during its consideration of the matter, the Stated Clerk shall reproduce the minority report and distribute it with the report of the committee.

(2) A minority report must be appropriate for consideration as a substitute motion (see Robert’s Rules of Order, Newly Revised, 2011, p. 527).

1. Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures Reports

   a. The Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures shall report at the beginning of each meeting, recommending any necessary changes in order of business and any referrals it may have considered since its last report.
The Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures may, at any time, recommend limits on debates or changes in the docket to facilitate the handling of business. The reports of the committee shall take precedence over any other business, including orders of the day.

c. This committee shall review the minutes of the General Assembly daily, report to the General Assembly any suggested corrections, and recommend approval of the minutes. The minutes shall be posted on the church’s website and two printed copies of the minutes shall be posted in different places during the following day for examination by commissioners. The minutes of the meetings of the General Assembly during the last two days of its session shall be submitted for review and approval within ten days after the adjournment of the General Assembly to a subcommittee of the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures.

d. During the assembly, requests for the privilege of communicating with the General Assembly shall be referred to the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures. This includes requests from assembly committees who wish to include reports or presentations that don’t relate directly to an item of business that is before the assembly. The Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures shall confer with persons making such requests about the time and the manner in which their concerns may be brought to the attention of the General Assembly. The Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures shall recommend to the General Assembly a response regarding any possible presentation to the assembly at the beginning of the plenary where the presentation will occur.

e. Protests expressing disagreement with an action or failure to act on the part of the General Assembly shall be referred to the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures, which shall decide whether or not the protest is decorous and respectful. Should the committee decide the protest is decorous and respectful, the protest shall be entered in the Minutes. The committee may prepare an answer to be printed with any protest so entered (see Book of Order, G-3.0105b).

2. Reports of Assembly Committees

a. Electronic copies of the written reports of assembly committees shall ordinarily be distributed to commissioners no later than the close of the meeting prior to the one at which they are to be considered. When necessary the Stated Clerk shall arrange for the reproduction and distribution of reports.

b. The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, in consultation with the Stated Clerk, shall docket adequate time for the reports of committees, including ample time for debate and action. If a report requires more time than docketed, the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures shall consult with the committee for additional time to complete consideration of the report.

c. Committee moderators should move the approval of recommendations with minimum comment, and material in the commissioners’ provided resources shall not be read.

d. The financial effect of each recommendation on budgets previously approved or under consideration shall be clearly presented at the time that the recommendation is considered by the assembly.

3. Minority Reports

a. In order to be considered by the assembly, a minority report shall not only set aside the majority report but also be able to stand as a full and complete substitution for the majority report recommendations. A minority report shall be moved as a substitute only after the majority report has first been moved. When this happens, the assembly shall first consider (and may amend) the majority report. When consideration of the majority report is completed, the assembly may then consider (and may amend) the minority report. Further efforts to perfect each report shall be held to a minimum in order that the assembly can concentrate instead on the issue of whether to make the proposed substitution.
b. The moderator of the committee, or another member of the committee, shall present reasons supporting the committee’s recommendation. They may be presented before any minority report is moved or presented during the narrative report of the committee, or presented during debate on the question of whether or not the substitution shall become the main motion. (See also Standing Rule E.7.h.)

4. Committee Reports on the Budget

a. At the first meeting of the General Assembly for the transaction of business following the meetings of assembly committees, the assembly shall hear a report on the per capita budget from the committee that has reviewed that budget.

b. On the final day of the assembly, an amended per capita budget that incorporates the financial implications of actions taken by the assembly shall be presented to the assembly for approval.

5. Plenary Meeting Procedures

a. In debate on any pending matter, no commissioner or delegate shall be allowed to speak more than two minutes until all other commissioners or delegates who desire to speak on the pending matter have been heard.

b.(1) The General Assembly shall ordinarily decide questions by electronic voting. The Moderator may also call for unanimous consent by voice vote or show of hands. All decisions made by assembly standing committees by a three-quarters (supermajority) vote shall be placed on the assembly plenary consent agenda to be considered as the first order of plenary business following committee meetings. Any actions requesting constitutional change must be considered in plenary.

(2) In addition to all consent items from assembly committees, the following items shall be placed on the assembly plenary consent agenda:

(a) All unchallenged nominations from the General Assembly Nominating Committee.

(b) Unanimous recommendations from assembly agencies and entities for confirmations of those offices that, according to the Manual of the General Assembly, require General Assembly confirmation.

(3) In all cases, the right of any commissioner to remove any item from the plenary consent agenda or to call for one of the other forms of voting shall be preserved.”

c. In view of the relative ease in which studies and programs may be approved, commissioners and other assembly committee members are cautioned to be mindful of the effort required of staff and elected members to carry out the General Assembly’s instructions.

d. When the General Assembly is in plenary session considering an item of business, questions arising in debate concerning constitutional matters shall be referred to the Advisory Committee on the Constitution (ACC) present at the plenary (see Standing Rule B.4.). In cases where the ACC cannot give an immediate response, the Moderator may entertain a motion to postpone the pending motion until the ACC is prepared to advise the assembly concerning the question that has been asked.

e. Commissioners are expected to be present when meetings are in session both physically and mentally. The use of electronic devices for purposes other than those directly related to the current topic is therefore discouraged when meetings are in session. Commissioners are also expected to adhere to the General Assembly Social Media Policy.
f. Emergency messages will be relayed to a commissioner or advisory delegate during plenary meetings by way of a written message delivered by one of the Stated Clerk’s designated staff or assembly assistants.

g. Any person permitted to remain during any executive session is expected to agree to be bound by the confidentiality required of commissioners.

6. General Assembly Nominating Committee

a. Unless the General Assembly shall have made some other provision, the nominating committee shall present to each session of the General Assembly a nominee for election to each vacancy on the entities of the General Assembly that shall exist because of a scheduled end of term, resignation, death, incapacity to act, change of residence, or any other reason.

b. The General Assembly Nominating Committee may decline to submit a nomination(s) to a particular vacancy(s) when requested to do so by the affected entity because of an expected merger of entity or a transfer of duties between entities in order to reduce the number of persons serving on a particular entity(s).

c. N nominating from the Floor

(1) Nominations by commissioners shall be in order unless the vacancy is required to be filled upon nomination from some other source.

(2) When any nomination for service on a General Assembly committee, council, or board comes from the floor of the assembly, the commissioner making the nomination will provide the General Assembly Nominating Committee, no later than 48 hours after the convening of the General Assembly, with pertinent information about the person whose name is being presented, as well as the name of the particular person nominated by the nominating committee whose nomination is being challenged. Such information shall be provided on the “Nomination by Commissioner Form” provided for use at the assembly and available from the Stated Clerk. The availability of the pertinent information provided by the person challenging the nominating committee’s nominee shall be announced to the assembly at least twenty-four hours in advance of the nomination being made from the floor.

(3) In the event that there are nominations from the floor, the election shall proceed as follows:

(a) The General Assembly will deal with one challenged position at a time.

(b) The name of the General Assembly Nominating Committee’s nominee shall be placed in nomination by its moderator. The Moderator of the General Assembly shall call upon the commissioner who is placing a nomination from the floor to put that name in nomination.

(c) Once the names are placed in nomination, the order of speaking shall be first, the commissioner or a designee speaking on behalf of the floor nominee and second, the General Assembly Nominating Committee member or a designee speaking to its nominee. Both the commissioner (or designee) and the General Assembly Nominating Committee member (or designee) shall speak from the platform. Such speech shall not exceed three minutes in length. There shall be no other speeches seconding the nomination of any nominee.

(d) Without further discussion or debate, the General Assembly will move to vote.

7. Docket Time for Special Greetings

a. When the Head of Communion of a member church of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches, the World Council of Churches, or the National Council of Churches is in attendance at a session of the General Assembly as an ecumenical advisory delegate or as an ecumenical representative, and proper notice is provided, the assembly shall provide up to three minutes of docket time to each such Head of Communion to present a greeting to the assembly.

<tr>
<td>8. Announcements and Nonofficial Printed Materials</td>
<td>a. Only announcements connected directly with the business of the General Assembly shall be read from the platform and all notices shall be submitted either to the Moderator or the Stated Clerk for approval. Telegrams and special letters shall be reported to the General Assembly only at times to be designated by the Moderator.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>b. Ordinarily, printed materials that are not official business before the General Assembly may only be distributed at authorized booths in the General Assembly Exhibit Hall. Other distribution is permitted to be handed out twenty-five feet or more from entrances to the building in which the General Assembly meets.</td>

</tr>
<tr>
<td>9. Distributing Study Documents</td>
<td>a. Whenever the General Assembly itself shall require the distribution of a document for study (whether the proposal originates through the recommendation of an entity, the presentation of an overture or resolution, or arises during the conduct of the assembly’s business) with a request for a response (whether the response is sought from individuals, congregations, councils, organizations of any kind, or any combination of these), the study document shall be accompanied by resource materials, bibliography, and aids as set forth in the document “Forming Social Policy,” Section 5, printed in the Manual of the General Assembly. Along with a response instrument and the resource materials, bibliography, and aids, the document shall be distributed on a schedule that provides for the study guide and all accompanying material to be in the possession of the proposed respondents for a minimum of twelve months before the due date of the response.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>b. The entity to be responsible for receiving the responses and reporting to the General Assembly the summary of the responses shall be identified in the material. <td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10. Forming Social Policy</td>
<td>The entities of the General Assembly, including its committees, commissions, and special committees, shall be governed by the document, “Forming Social Policy” printed in the Manual of the General Assembly, when that entity is considering making a social witness policy.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11. Peaceful Demonstrations</td>
<td>a. Peaceful demonstrations shall be allowed twenty-five or more feet outside of the entrances to the building in which General Assembly meets.</td>
<tr>
<td>b. Spontaneous or planned demonstrations by individuals or groups are prohibited inside the building where the General Assembly meets. The Moderator of the General Assembly shall declare all demonstrations that occur in plenary session out of order and, if demonstrators fail to immediately disband and desist, may recess the General Assembly to a fixed time and place. This rule does not prohibit the spontaneous or planned celebration of an action of the General Assembly or of any event in the life of the church.</td>

General Assembly Meeting Worship

Services of Worship

a. Moderator of Preceding General Assembly Responsible for Planning

b. Ecumenical Worship

c. In Conformity with Directory for Worship

Services of Worship

a. The Moderator of the preceding General Assembly shall plan daily worship at the General Assembly, and a worship service including the celebration of the Lord’s Supper; and shall provide, in advance, suitable leadership for these periods of worship. The Lord’s Supper shall be celebrated at the first service of worship of the General Assembly session, and the Moderator shall preside on this occasion and preach a sermon or deliver an address. The Moderator shall seek advice to ensure inclusivity in the planning of appropriate daily worship periods. The Moderator shall assure adequate transmittal of information about the planning of worship periods to the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

b. The Stated Clerk shall plan an ecumenical period of worship and provide, in advance, suitable leadership for this period of worship.

c. The various acts of worship planned for the session of the General Assembly shall be in conformity with the requirements of the Directory for Worship, and shall be developed and led according to the guidance of the document, “Presbyterians at Worship in Mass Assemblies.” In the preparation and conduct of all worship services, care shall be taken that all language, sight, hearing, accessibility, and other barriers be eliminated so that there can be full participation of all attendees. [Example: That printed orders of service also be printed in braille and that signing be available.]
1. Moderator of the General Assembly

a. Title/Functions

   (1) The Moderator of the General Assembly is an ecclesiastical person in ordered ministry, along with the Stated Clerk, of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A). The ministry of the Moderator is grounded in the ministry of baptized persons and in the particular ordained ministry of ruling elders and ministers of the Word and Sacrament.

   (2) The office of Moderator may be shared by Co-Moderators. In this case, the office of Vice Moderator will remain vacant until the next election of a Moderator.

   (3) The title of the Moderator is “The Moderator of the [number] General Assembly [(year)] of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).”

   (4) The Moderator of the General Assembly is a commissioner of the General Assembly.

   (5) When the Moderator presides at the assembly, it is to be a sign of the bond of unity, community, and mission in the life of the church. During the period between assemblies, the Moderator serves as an ambassador of the unity of the Spirit in the bonds of peace, telling the story of the church’s life and upholding the people of God through prayer.

   (6) The Moderator shall preside over the General Assembly that elects him or her, and over the meetings of the next General Assembly until a successor is elected. The Moderator possesses the authority necessary for preserving order and for conducting efficiently the business of the council (Book of Order, G-3.0104).

   (7) The Moderator(s) and the Vice Moderator (when filled) shall submit a written report of their work to the session of the General Assembly at which their successors are installed.

b. Stand with Either Co-Moderator or Vice-Moderator Candidate

   (1) At the discretion of the candidate, he or she may choose to stand for election with a Co-Moderator or with a Vice Moderator candidate. When choosing to stand with another Moderator candidate, both candidates:

   (1) must fulfill all the requirements specified in these Standing Rules,

   (2) notify the Stated Clerk of their intention to stand for election together, and

   (3) will together determine how to fulfill the duties of the office.
c. Election of the Moderator

(1) Each person nominated to serve as Moderator of the General Assembly must be a commissioner to the General Assembly. Action by presbyteries to endorse candidates for Moderator of the General Assembly shall not take place until after the adjournment of the immediately preceding assembly. The Office of the General Assembly shall provide resourcing and orientation for Moderatorial candidates.

(2) Ordinarily, no later than forty-five days prior to the convening of the assembly, the Moderatorial candidates will announce the name of a commissioner each has selected to offer to the assembly to elect as Vice Moderator, as appropriate.

(3) The following guidelines are intended to create an equal and open opportunity for moderatorial candidates. To this end, the following procedures shall be observed:

(a) Candidates shall covenant not to spend in excess of $2,000 in making their candidacy known to the church. This $2,000 includes out of pocket expenses as well as the estimated value of in-kind contributions, but does not include travel and meeting expenses.

(b) Each candidate shall submit to the Stated Clerk an itemized statement of expenses, including travel and meeting expenses related to his/her candidacy and in-kind contributions. This statement shall be submitted to the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly prior to the convening of the General Assembly. This information shall be distributed to commissioners and advisory delegates prior to the election of the Moderator. The statement of expenses of all candidates shall be kept on file in the Office of the General Assembly following the meeting of the General Assembly.

(c) The Office of the General Assembly shall not reimburse a candidate for campaign expenses, but shall assume expenses involved in printing and distributing material submitted for information packets as outlined in Standing Rule H.1.c.(3)(g).

(d) In order to encourage reliance on the leading of the Holy Spirit in the selection of the Moderator, neither candidates or their advocates are allowed to communicate with commissioners and/or advisory delegates.

(e) Distribution of written campaign materials at General Assembly shall be limited to the public distribution area.

(f) Candidates are encouraged to meet and make themselves available for conversation with commissioners and advisory delegates within the scope of these procedures.

(g) Not less than fifteen days before the convening of the General Assembly, the Stated Clerk shall publish for commissioners and advisory delegates an electronic information packet containing the following material regarding each candidate for Moderator who is known to the Stated Clerk and who wishes to be included:

(i) A photograph, a biographical sketch, a personal statement by the candidate that includes a statement regarding the candidate’s sense of call to the ordered ministry,

(ii) A written presentation by the presbytery having jurisdiction over the candidate, if that council has endorsed the candidate,

(iii) The responses of the candidate to a questionnaire developed by the Stated Clerk.

The layouts for the presentation under this standing rule (as outlined above) may be chosen by the candidates, but all material including photographs submitted for each presentation shall be provided in electronic format as well as print. The material shall be submitted to the Stated Clerk no less than forty-five days before the convening of the General Assembly for reproduction and distribution, and shall be accompanied by a statement indicating the willingness of the candidate to serve as Moderator, if elected.

(4) The Moderator of the General Assembly shall be elected in the following manner:
(a) When the General Assembly is ready to elect its Moderator, each candidate shall be nominated by a commissioner to the assembly in the following manner: the commissioners making nominations shall be recognized at microphones on the assembly floor. Upon recognition by the assembly Moderator, the nominator shall say one of the following statements:

(i) “Moderator, I place in nomination for the office of Moderator of the ___ General Assembly Ruling Elder/Minister of the Word and Sacrament ____ from the Presbytery of ______ and Ruling Elder/Minister of the Word and Sacrament ________ from the Presbytery of ___.”

(ii) “Moderator, I place in nomination for the office of Moderator of the ___ General Assembly Ruling Elder/Minister of the Word and Sacrament _______ from the Presbytery of _____. And for Vice Moderator of the ___ General Assembly Ruling Elder/Minister of the Word and Sacrament _____ from the Presbytery of ___.”

The nominator shall then return to his/her seat on the plenary floor. No seconds to nominations are required.

(b) After nominations are closed, each nominee shall be afforded an opportunity to address the General Assembly for a time not to exceed five minutes, expressing the concerns that nominee feels to be the most important for the church. The order of speaking shall be determined by lot, the drawing conducted by the most recent Moderator attending the General Assembly.

(c) At the conclusion of all the presentations by the nominees, they shall respond to questions from the floor. The first question shall be addressed to the nominee who spoke first in the original presentation, and the same question shall then be put to the other nominees in the same order in which they spoke earlier. The second question shall be directed to the second nominee in this order and then to each of the other nominees in sequence. Each nominee shall be afforded an opportunity to answer each question. This process shall continue for a period not to exceed the number of nominees times fifteen minutes, or for one hour, whichever is shorter, unless terminated earlier by vote of the General Assembly.

(d) Where there is only one nomination for Moderator, the election may be by acclamation. Where there is more than one, the election may be by secret ballot in a format which is determined by the Stated Clerk and announced to commissioners and advisory delegates prior to the convening of the assembly.

(5) The Stated Clerk shall provide a service of installation for the newly elected Moderator and Vice Moderator, as appropriate, as the last item of business at the session in which the Moderator is elected. The families of the newly elected officers and all present previous Moderators shall be invited to the platform. The service shall use the order of service for “Installation of Governing Body Officers and Staff” from the Book of Occasional Services. The processional banner of the Moderator shall precede the newly elected Moderator into the assembly. The Moderator’s cross and stole shall be presented by the most recent serving Moderator. The newly elected Moderator invites a person to lead the prayer of installation. The most recent serving Moderator gives the charge, a hymn is sung by the assembly, and the newly elected Moderator gives the benediction.

Vice Moderator

(d) Vice Moderator

(1) The Vice Moderator represents the assembly at the request of the Moderator. When the Vice Moderator serves in this capacity, all those duties incumbent on the Moderator shall be expected of him/her.

(2) Each proposed Vice-Moderator candidate shall include biographical information and a photograph in electronic format to be included with the Moderator candidate information.

(3) The Moderator may request the Vice Moderator to preside and to assist in the performance of other functions of the Moderator during and following the General Assembly.
Vacancy

e. Vacancy in the Office of the Moderator or Vice Moderator

(1) Should the office of the Moderator of the General Assembly become vacant, the Vice Moderator shall fulfill the functions of the Moderator. In such circumstance, all constitutional obligations and functions as prescribed by the Standing Rules of the General Assembly and the Book of Order shall be incumbent upon the Vice Moderator of the General Assembly.

(2) Should the office of the Vice Moderator of the General Assembly also become vacant, the most recent living Moderator shall fulfill the functions of the Moderator as specified in the Constitution of the church.

2. Stated Clerk of the General Assembly

a. Title and Functions of the Stated Clerk at the General Assembly

(1) The title of the Stated Clerk is “The Stated Clerk of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)” and may be used by the incumbent until a successor is elected and takes office.

(2) The Stated Clerk is accountable, through the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, to the General Assembly for the performance of the duties of the office, and shall present to each meeting of the General Assembly a report on the state of the church.

(3) The Stated Clerk is responsible for all matters related to the sessions of the General Assembly and all other matters relative to and arising from the General Assembly for which no other assignment has been made.

(4) The Stated Clerk shall also be responsible for guidance of the procedures for candidates seeking the office of Moderator, and for supervision of the election of each Moderator.

(5) In accordance with directives from previous General Assemblies and in consultations with the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, the Presbyterian Mission Agency, and other General Assembly agencies, the Stated Clerk is authorized to decide on matters pertaining to facilities and special events that must be established before the first meeting of the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures.

(6) The Stated Clerk shall receive all reports, communications, overtures, and any other materials appropriate for General Assembly consideration. The Stated Clerk shall recommend to the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, for presentation to the Assembly Committee on Business Referral, a referral of such items of business coming before the General Assembly (Standing Rule C.3.e.).

(7) The Stated Clerk shall prepare for consideration of the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly a proposed docket for the General Assembly’s consideration of its business (Standing Rule C.4.a.). The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly shall present the proposed docket to the first meeting of the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures so that it may recommend a docket to the commissioners at the first business session. The docket presented to the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures shall provide a time early in the General Assembly for a report by the Stated Clerk on the state of the church, and for a report by the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

(8) The Stated Clerk shall propose to the General Assembly the number of assembly committees and a name for each committee after consultation with the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly and the appropriate General Assembly entity or entities (Standing Rule C.1.). The Stated Clerk shall present the committee structure to the General Assembly for ratification at the first business session. Each commissioner and advisory delegate shall be assigned by random selection to one assembly committee at least forty-five days before the opening date of the General Assembly (Standing Rule C.2.).

(9) The Stated Clerk shall provide opportunity for orienting the commissioners, advisory delegates, and others taking part in the session of the General Assembly. The use of Robert's Rules of Order, sources of parliamentary advice, and the availability of resource persons and materials to facilitate their work should be part of the orientation.

(10) The Stated Clerk shall be the parliamentarian for the meetings of the General Assembly, or arrange for the service of a professional parliamentarian.

(11) The Stated Clerk shall transmit to the councils and agencies of the assembly, persons who presented business to the assembly, and others affected by the assembly’s actions, a report on actions of the General Assembly on matters pertaining to their concerns. The Stated Clerk shall transmit to the presbyteries all assembly actions on which the presbyteries are requested to take action.

(12) As soon as practicable after the adjournment of the General Assembly, the Stated Clerk shall publish the assembly’s proceedings and other documents as the assembly may direct in an appropriate format (i.e. print or electronic) to be determined by the Stated Clerk.

Election

b. Election of the Stated Clerk

(1) The Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) requires the election of a Stated Clerk and the standing rules describe the procedures for the election. The Stated Clerk of the General Assembly shall be elected for a term of four years and is eligible for reelection to additional four-year terms. The Stated Clerk is accountable to the General Assembly for the performance of the assigned functions.

(2) The Stated Clerk of the General Assembly shall be elected in the manner described in this standing rule. No member of the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly or other persons involved in this procedure as a member of the search committee or as a person providing staff services to the committee may be considered for nomination as Stated Clerk. The incumbent Stated Clerk may not participate in any way in the election process described in this standing rule. In the year there is an election of a Stated Clerk, the Moderator shall appoint a temporary Stated Clerk during the period of the election at the General Assembly.

(3) The General Assembly that meets prior to the end of the term of a Stated Clerk shall elect a Stated Clerk Nomination Committee.

(a) The slate of nominees for the nomination committee shall consist of the following: three members of the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (nominated by the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, one of whom shall serve as moderator of the committee), one member of the Presbyterian Mission Agency Board (nominated by the Presbyterian Mission Agency Board), and five at-large members nominated by the General Assembly Nominating Committee in the following categories: one mid council stated clerk and four persons (two ruling elders and two ministers of the Word and Sacrament) from among commissioners who have attended an assembly in the past six years. The General Assembly Nominating Committee shall present to the assembly for election the slate of nominees for the Stated Clerk Nomination Committee. The slate presented shall reflect the denomination’s commitment to inclusiveness.

(b) Nominations from the floor for the nomination committee shall be in order following the distribution of the printed list of proposed nominees by the General Assembly Nominating Committee and a declaration by the Moderator that the names are in nomination. Names placed in nomination from the floor shall be in opposition to a particular name of an at-large member placed in nomination by the General Assembly Nominating Committee, and must be in the same category (H.2.b.(3)(a)). More than one person may be placed in nomination from the floor in opposition to an at-large nominee.

(c) The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly shall be responsible for providing the nomination committee with an up-to-date position description.
(d) The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly will ensure that an adequate budget for the nomination process is provided in the Office of the General Assembly and shall designate staff services for the Stated Clerk Nomination Committee.

(e) The nomination committee shall begin its work no later than 300 days before the start of the assembly that will elect the Stated Clerk.

(f) The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly shall be responsible for conducting the end-of-term evaluation of the Stated Clerk.

(g) The nominating committee shall announce that persons seeking the position of Stated Clerk shall file a completed application form and a resume or personal information form (PIF) with the committee 180 days before the opening of the General Assembly.

If the incumbent wants to be considered, he or she will notify the committee in writing and submit a current resume or PIF 180 days before the opening of the General Assembly. The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly shall provide a copy of the end-of-term evaluation to the Stated Clerk Nominating Committee.

(h) Additional written material may be requested by the committee. No one may be nominated to serve as Stated Clerk who has not provided an application to the committee.

(i) The committee shall review and evaluate all applications to determine the constitutional eligibility of the candidates. Any candidate who is determined to not be eligible will be notified in writing within forty-five days of receipt of their resume or PIF.

(j) The committee shall interview all eligible candidates using the same methodology and select one as the committee’s recommendation. All members of the committee shall ordinarily participate in the interview. The committee shall declare its nominee no later than sixty days before the opening of the General Assembly.

(k) Any of the applicants for the position of Stated Clerk, including the incumbent Stated Clerk if not the nominee of the committee, who wish to be placed in nomination against the nominee of the committee shall declare their intention to the committee to do so no later than forty-five days before the opening of the General Assembly.

(l) At the convening of the General Assembly, the Office of the General Assembly shall distribute to commissioners and advisory delegates an information packet containing the following material regarding each candidate for Stated Clerk who wishes to be included:

(i) A photograph, a biographical sketch, a personal statement by the candidate, including a statement regarding the candidate’s sense of call to the ordered ministry,

(ii) The responses of the candidate to a questionnaire developed by the committee based upon issues that will be before the church as presented in business to be considered by the General Assembly.

(iii) The material submitted shall be typewritten on paper 8-1/2 x 11 inches in size. The layouts for the presentation under this standing rule (as outlined above) may be chosen by the candidates, but the copy submitted for each presentation shall be provided in one color on one side of one sheet. The material shall be submitted to the Office of the General Assembly no less than thirty days before the convening of the General Assembly for reproduction and distribution and shall be accompanied by a statement indicating the willingness of the candidate to serve as Stated Clerk, if elected.

(m) The candidates may not distribute any other materials, print or electronic, including flyers, buttons, tokens or other objects that would denote a campaign for the office of Stated Clerk.

(n) Other organizations supporting the candidacy of a particular candidate may not distribute materials electronically, through the mail, or at the General Assembly with the knowledge, support, or permission of that candidate. Should a candidate discover that an organization is advocating or campaigning for him or her, it is expected that the candidate will request that organization to cease its activities. The same expectation will be true of organizations that are critical of a particular candidate for Stated Clerk.
(o) Each candidate will be provided a place to meet and talk with commissioners and advisory delegates two days before the election. Only information provided by the Office of the General Assembly may be distributed in those rooms. Other materials, apart from that packet, are not permitted. Each candidate for Stated Clerk will be allowed to post the times when he/she will be available for conversation in that room.

(p) Any questions concerning interpretation of the election process outlined in H.2.b. shall be determined by the Stated Clerk Nomination Committee.

(4) The General Assembly, by majority vote, shall elect the Stated Clerk in the following manner:

(a) Within forty-eight hours of the convening of the assembly, the Stated Clerk Nomination Committee shall place in nomination a single nominee.

(b) The Moderator shall then invite other nominations from those who have completed the nomination process. Only one speech, made by a commissioner or a member of the Stated Clerk Nomination Committee not to exceed five minutes in length, shall be made to nominate each nominee. There shall be no speech seconding any nomination. Each person nominated from the floor shall reaffirm a willingness to serve as Stated Clerk, if elected.

(c) In the event there are no other nominations, the election shall proceed immediately as follows:

(i) The nominee for Stated Clerk shall be given an opportunity to address the assembly for a time not to exceed five minutes, expressing the nominee’s views regarding the functions and work of the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

(ii) The Moderator shall inquire of commissioners whether there are questions to be asked of the Stated Clerk Nomination Committee. Time allocated shall not exceed fifteen minutes. The Moderator shall inquire of commissioners whether there are questions to be asked of the nominee for Stated Clerk. The time allocated should not exceed fifteen minutes, after which the voting shall take place.

(d) In the event there are other nominations, the election shall proceed as follows:

(i) The election of the Stated Clerk shall take place as the first order of business on the next to last day of the assembly’s session.

(ii) Each nominee shall be given an opportunity to address the assembly for a time not to exceed five minutes, expressing the nominee’s views regarding the functions and work of the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly. The nominees shall speak in the same order as the presentation of nominating speeches.

(iii) The Moderator shall inquire of commissioners whether there are questions to be asked of the nominees for Stated Clerk. The first question shall be addressed to the nominee who was nominated first and the same question shall then be put to the other nominees in the same order in which they were nominated. The second question shall be directed to the second nominee in this order and then to each of the other nominees in sequence. Each nominee shall be afforded an opportunity to answer each question. This process shall continue for a period not to exceed the number of nominees times fifteen minutes, or for one hour, whichever is shorter, unless terminated earlier by vote of the General Assembly, after which the voting shall take place.

(5) Should there be a vacancy in the office of the Stated Clerk, the General Assembly Nominating Committee shall propose to the assembly, if the assembly is in session, members for the Stated Clerk Nomination Committee, or shall propose to the Moderator for appointment, if the assembly is not in session, to a Stated Clerk Nomination Committee. This committee shall be composed of members as outlined in Standing Rule H.2.b. and begin the process of a search for a candidate for Stated Clerk. The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly shall designate an acting Stated Clerk until such time as a Stated Clerk is elected.
(6) The Stated Clerk Nomination Committee shall be dismissed at the adjournment of the session of the General Assembly at which the committee presents a nominee for Stated Clerk.

(7) A new Stated Clerk shall normally assume office thirty days after the adjournment of the assembly. A longer period of transition between Stated Clerks may be negotiated by the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, but shall not exceed ninety days.

Acting Stated Clerk

c. Acting Stated Clerk

In case of the incapacity, resignation, or death of the Stated Clerk, the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly shall designate an Acting Stated Clerk until such time as the Stated Clerk is able to resume the duties or the General Assembly elects a new Stated Clerk. The person so designated may be one of the Associate Stated Clerks or another person eligible for election as Stated Clerk.

Associate Stated Clerks
d. Associate Stated Clerks

The General Assembly may elect one or more Associate Stated Clerks as the General Assembly shall determine. The Stated Clerk shall nominate persons to fill each such office after consultation with the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly. The term of office shall be four years, subject to reelection at the pleasure of the General Assembly.

1. Date and Place of Meeting

Determining Date and Place

a. The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) shall meet on the date and at the place fixed by the preceding General Assembly for a period, which shall be known as a session of the General Assembly, preferably between May 15 and July 31, subject to the possibility of change (see Standing Rule I.4.b.(10) and Book of Order, G-3.0503, for exceptions). The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly shall recommend to the General Assembly for its action the date and place of meeting six years hence and any necessary changes in dates and places of meetings previously set. Should action regarding date or place of meeting become necessary at a time when the General Assembly is not in session, this committee is empowered to fix a new date or place of meeting.

Presbytery Invitations

b. The host body for any session of the General Assembly shall be a presbytery(s) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). Any presbytery that desires to invite the General Assembly to meet within its bounds shall forward an invitation to the Stated Clerk no later than May 1 of the year that is seven years prior to the earliest effective date of the invitation.

Criteria

c. The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly shall determine the criteria that render a place an eligible site for a meeting of the General Assembly, including the requirement that all meeting arrangements shall be made to facilitate full participation by persons with disabilities. These criteria may be obtained from the Office of the General Assembly.

Rotating the Place of the Meeting

d. In order to distribute the benefits experienced from hosting a General Assembly meeting throughout the church, the place of meeting shall be rotated among the following four areas (unless prevented by financial or other practical considerations):
   • Area A: Synod of Alaska/Northwest, Synod of the Pacific, Synod of Southern California and Hawaii, Synod of the Rocky Mountains, Synod of the Southwest;
   • Area B: Synod of the Sun, Synod of Lakes and Prairies, Synod of Mid-America;
   • Area C: Synod of Living Waters, Synod of Lincoln Trails, Synod of the Covenant;
   • Area D: Synod of South Atlantic, Synod of Puerto Rico, Synod of the Northeast, Synod of the Trinity, Synod of the Mid-Atlantic.
2. Meeting Arrangements

a. The Stated Clerk shall oversee all arrangements for the meeting and housing of the General Assembly, including: the assignment of time and place for all special events and public meetings connected with or scheduled at the time of the General Assembly; the assignment of time and place for exhibits at the General Assembly; and the assignment of commissioners, advisory delegates, and others to hotels and other accommodations.

b. The Stated Clerk shall appoint persons to serve as assembly assistants for the duration of the General Assembly. Persons appointed shall not be commissioners to the General Assembly or staff members of entities of the General Assembly. Assembly assistants shall be assigned to particular tasks to facilitate the work of the General Assembly. The appointments shall be made in accordance with Book of Order, F-1.0403.

c. The Stated Clerk shall arrange for the simultaneous interpretation of proceedings into Spanish and Korean languages for any participant during plenary meetings of the General Assembly. This service shall also be provided during assembly committee meetings, services of worship, and other events during the assembly for commissioners, advisory delegates, ecumenical guests, and, when possible, for other participants.

d. An event scheduled before, during, or immediately following a session of the General Assembly and extending an invitation to any or all participants of the assembly shall clearly identify the sponsor or sponsoring organization(s) in any invitations, announcements, or other publicity about the event.

3. Reimbursing Commissioner Expenses

a. The approved reimbursement for the travel expenses, food, lodging, and other approved expenses of commissioners at the sessions of the General Assembly shall be paid by the treasurer or the treasurer's designee. The treasurer shall have the authority to deposit funds for such purposes in a bank or trust company where the General Assembly is to be in session. Commissioners shall be reimbursed by means of individual checks upon receipt of a voucher on a form provided by the treasurer. The Stated Clerk shall recommend to the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly the amount of any per diem. The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly shall set the per diem, and the Stated Clerk shall publish such per diem in the materials (print or electronic) provided to the commissioners. The treasurer shall determine the manner in which such checks shall be distributed and shall announce the place or places where such checks may be cashed.

b. The Office of the General Assembly shall reimburse an alternate commissioner for cost of meals (as specified in the per diem expenses for the particular session of the assembly to which the person is commissioned) during the period in which the alternate is actually seated as a commissioner. The total of the payments to the two persons shall not be larger than payment to a single commissioner attending the full assembly. The Office of the General Assembly shall reimburse either the original commissioner or the alternate who replaced the original commissioner for the costs of transportation and other approved expenses, but not both. It shall be the responsibility of the two individuals, with the assistance of the presbytery that elected them, to determine an appropriate division of the costs, whether reimbursement was in cash or a prepaid ticket was provided. Both persons shall be listed in the Journal as commissioners, with an indication of the period during which they served.

4. Assembly Meeting Work Group

a. The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly shall establish a work group on assembly arrangements to be composed of designated members from the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, the Stated Clerk, the Moderator of the General Assembly, and the Executive Director of the Presbyterian Mission Agency. The moderator of the Committee on Local Arrangements, and the moderator and vice moderator of the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures (when selected) shall be nonvoting members of the committee at all meetings in which matters will be considered that affect their particular work. This work group shall be assigned responsibilities (1) through (10) in this Standing Rule I.4.b.

Responsibilities

b. Responsibilities

(1) Review the evaluation of each General Assembly session secured by the Stated Clerk.

(2) Outline the programs for future General Assemblies sufficiently in advance to ensure an orderly progression of themes and emphases and to ensure the appointment of significant speakers and other program participants.

(3) Review and present to the Assembly Committee on Business Referral a recommendation regarding the Stated Clerk’s proposed docket for the next session of the General Assembly.

(4) Review and present to the Assembly Committee on Business Referral a recommendation regarding the Stated Clerk’s proposed referral of each item of business to an appropriate assembly committee.

(5) Assist the Moderator regarding the appointment of a commissioner to be the moderator of each assembly committee and a commissioner to serve as vice moderator of each assembly committee.

(6) Consult with the Moderator regarding the planning of all worship at the General Assembly.

(7) Coordinate the programmatic aspects of each General Assembly session, ensuring that adequate time is provided for the business that must be transacted.

(8) Review requests from entities of the General Assembly, councils, other entities related to the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) in any way, or coalitions in which this denomination or any of its entities participate to schedule meetings, briefings, hearings, or other events of any kind during those hours when the General Assembly or its committees are in session.

(9) Prepare a report, including recommendations on the docket and the referral of assembly business, to be printed and distributed with other materials provided to commissioners.

(10) Review and present to the General Assembly for its action the date and place of meeting six years hence and any changes in dates and places of meetings previously set.

3. Date and Location
   - a. Report of Decision to Call Meeting
   - b. COGA Sets Date and Place
   - c. Expense Plan
   - d. Letter of Notification

1. Method of Calling

   The Book of Order permits the calling of special meetings of the General Assembly (G-3.0503). The method of calling a special meeting is the required number of commissioners submitting a petition with the full text of the resolution to the Moderator of the General Assembly.

   Petition’s Subject Matter
   - a. A special meeting may be called providing the petition’s subject matter falls within the General Assembly’s responsibilities. (G-3.0501).

   Resolution Form
   - b. The urgent matter shall be brought in the form of a resolution or resolutions, stating the specific action proposed to be taken by the commissioners at the special meeting and shall include the reasons for proposing the decision to be made.

   Not Called for Discussion Only
   - c. A special meeting may not be called for the purpose of discussion only.

   Resolved in 1 or 2 Days
   - d. The matters should be able to be resolved in a session of one or two days.

   Full Text on Each Page of Petition
   - e. The full text of the resolution shall appear on each page of the signed petitions.

   Consult with Assembly Committee on Bills & Overtures
   - f. The Moderator may consult with the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures to determine any questions concerning whether the resolution meets the criteria for a called meeting or concerning the specific actions in the proposed resolution. This may take place by conference call.

   120-day Requirement
   - g. Resolutions requiring or proposing constitutional interpretation are subject to the 120-day requirement in G-6.02. The 120-day requirement begins upon receipt of the petition by the Moderator. The Moderator may consult with the Advisory Committee on the Constitution (ACC) to determine any questions concerning whether the resolution requires a constitutional interpretation.
2. Signatures

   The Book of Order establishes the minimum number of signatures to require a called meeting. The Moderator, upon receipt of the petition, shall ask the Stated Clerk to complete the following within thirty days:

   a. Send each presbytery stated clerk or clerk of session a letter verifying the current Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) membership of the individual signatory to the petition.

   b. Send each signatory to the petition a letter of verification asking the commissioner to verify the signature on the petition and if the commissioner concurs with the purpose of the request as stated in the resolution.

   c. During the verification process, a commissioner may request removal of his or her name from the petition by notifying the Stated Clerk.

   d. After all reasonable efforts to establish contact have been made, the name of a commissioner failing to reply to the letter of verification shall be removed from the petition.

   e. The Stated Clerk shall report to the Moderator the results of the verification process.

3. Date and Location

   The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly has the responsibility to fix the date and place of a meeting of the General Assembly when the General Assembly is not in session.

   a. Upon receiving certification from the Stated Clerk that the petition has met the requirements of the Book of Order and the Standing Rules of the General Assembly, the Moderator shall report to the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) the decision to call the meeting.

   b. The COGA shall set the date and place of a called meeting.

   c. The COGA shall submit to the called meeting a plan to pay for its expenses. This plan shall be considered to be part of the business of the special meeting.

   d. The letter of notification of the called meeting will be mailed to the commissioners no later than sixty days before the start of the meeting.
Commissions, Special Committees, and Special Administrative Review

1. Commissions and Special Committees

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Purpose</th>
<th>a. The General Assembly may establish special committees and commissions to carry out decisions of the assembly or make recommendations to the assembly on matters that cannot be undertaken or accomplished by an existing entity. (Book of Order, G-3.0109)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Considerations for Creating</td>
<td>b. In considering the creation of a special committee or commission the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures shall hear from relevant agencies, a representative from the General Assembly Nominating Committee, a representative from the General Assembly Committee on Representation, as well as from the assembly committee considering the proposal. Financial implications of special committees or commissions shall accompany any recommendation to the assembly.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appointed by Moderator</td>
<td>c. The Moderator of the General Assembly appoints members of special committees or commissions, unless otherwise designated, in collaboration with the General Assembly Nominating Committee and the General Assembly Committee on Representation. The Moderator is authorized to fill any vacancies that may occur. No person appointed may serve on more than one committee or commission unless otherwise designated by the assembly.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Length of Existence and Reports</td>
<td>d. Special committees or commissions shall normally complete their work within two years. Requests for an extension of work shall be referred to the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly. An extension shall require a two-thirds vote of the assembly.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Review</td>
<td>e. The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly shall review the work of each special committee or commission.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Representation at General Assembly and Funding</td>
<td>f. When the report of the special committee or commission is presented, its moderator shall serve as a corresponding member of the assembly and may be accompanied by one other member of the committee or commission. The expenses of these authorized representatives shall be reimbursed through the committee or commission’s budget.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

In the event of a minority report, a designated member of the minority shall also be invited to attend the assembly. The expenses of this member shall be reimbursed through the committee or commission’s budget.

Other members of special committees or commissions may be reimbursed for attendance at the assembly only if they are required to be involved in hearings or for other official purposes.
K.1.g.–K.2.b.

Coordination

g. The Stated Clerk shall provide staff services and other assistance to special committees and commissions. The work of the special committees and commissions shall be funded through the per capita budget of the Office of the General Assembly.

2. Special Administrative Review of Synods

a. The General Assembly has authority to undertake special administrative review of synods (Book of Order, G-3.0502c). There are three ways the General Assembly could be requested to consider such review:

(1) by an overture from a presbytery or synod (G-3.0302d; G-3.0402; Standing Rule A.3.);

(2) by request from one of the General Assembly entities (Standing Rule A.2.);

(3) By a commissioners’ resolution (Standing Rule A.6.). If such overture, request, or resolution is acted on favorably by the General Assembly, the General Assembly could undertake Special Administrative Review (G-3.0108b) through commission or special committee as provided for in Standing Rule K.1. and G-3.0109.

Written Request for Review

b. Special administrative review of an alleged synod irregularity or delinquency may occur when a written request for such review is received by the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly from another synod or a presbytery within the synod of the alleged irregularity or delinquency. If the request relates to an alleged delinquency, the request can only be filed with the Stated Clerk after the failure or refusal of the synod to cure the alleged delinquency at its next meeting, having been requested to do so in writing prior to the meeting. When the request for special administrative review is received, the Stated Clerk shall convene a meeting of the Moderator of the General Assembly, the moderator of the Presbyterian Mission Agency, and the moderator of the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly. If the request is in order and all the moderators agree that for the good of the church the special administrative review needs to be undertaken before the next meeting of the General Assembly (when the request could be considered by the whole General Assembly), the Moderator of the General Assembly shall appoint a special committee (Standing Rule K.1.) to conduct a special administrative review in accordance with G-3.0108b and report its findings and recommendations to the next General Assembly.
Amendment or Suspension of the Standing Rules

1. Recommending Amendments to the Standing Rules
2. Amending the Standing Rules
3. Suspending the Standing Rules

Recommending Amendments to the Standing Rules
1. In consultation with the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, the Stated Clerk shall recommend to the next session of the General Assembly any changes in the Standing Rules of the General Assembly deemed necessary. The Stated Clerk shall consult with the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly before proposing to the General Assembly any amendment to the standing rules.

Amending the Standing Rules
2. The Standing Rules of the General Assembly may be amended by a majority vote of the commissioners present and voting. A motion to amend the rules is debatable.

Suspending the Standing Rules
3. A motion to suspend the standing rules is not debatable and shall require a two-thirds vote of the total enrollment of the commissioners.
